Senate Unit Urges Full Inquiry Into D. C. Police

Rules Committee To Act Today on $25,000 Grant For Probe Costs

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

The Senate District Committee yesterday approved a resolution asking a full-scale investigation of Washington police forces.

The resolution seeking a complete investigation of law enforcement and administration for all police forces operating here was reported out to the Senate unanimously.

It was immediately referred to the Rules Committee, which meets this morning. The committee must approve spending of $25,000 on the probe before the Senate can vote on the measure.

Senators Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) and J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) said they would personally go before the Rules Committee to urge approval. Both sponsored the resolution with Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.).

Ball Criticizes Commissioners

"It is very obvious from the hearings we conducted Monday that the District Commissioners have paid no attention whatsoever to the operations of the police department," said Ball.

"The testimony of Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett shows a necessity for investigating the police department."

Senator McGrath declared "the record of the hearing fully justifies making an investigation of the kind we propose." "The record," he said, "speaks for itself."

Barrett admitted at the hearing that "many" robbery, sex and "possibly other" crime complaints had been left out of official police records. District Commissioner John Russell Young acknowledged that he had done practically nothing about the expose. He said he thought the practice of holding cases was routine.

Barrett Complains to Post

Meanwhile, two reporters who checked records of the Second and Thirteenth precincts, where most of the "hold" cases were found before the articles were printed, found the practice had stopped.

Soon after the reporters appeared at the precinct stations to examine the records, however, Barrett telephoned to J. R. Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post.

He protested that the Police Department's own examination of the books was being obstructed. Barrett was reminded that the newspaper was aware that under the regulations the police were not obliged to yield up the record books when in use for official purposes. The public is permitted to examine the records when they are not in use.

Barrett said he did not wish to avail himself of this right. He was assured that study of the records by The Washington Post would be kept to a minimum and every effort would be made to avoid conflict with the work of the department.

Garmatz Victor In 3d Maryland House Election

Baltimore, July 15 (AP).—Edward A. Garmatz, Baltimore Democrat, was an overwhelming victor over two opponents in today's by election to fill the House of Representatives seat vacated by Thomas D'Alesandro when he became mayor of the city in May.

Complete unofficial returns from the Third Congressional District's 104 precincts gave Garmatz 12,179 votes, to 3776 for Republican Edward Panetti and 7070 for Democratic City Councilman Simon P. Jarosinski, who ran as an independent.

Garmatz ran with the backing of D'Alesandro and the Democratic State Central Committee. The campaign was waged on local issues, although national attention was focused on it when Philip Murray, national president of the CIO, indorsed Garmatz in an action which may provide for a test of the Taft-Hartley bill.

Won't Reintroduce Bill

Knutson Concedes Tax Defeat, Sees Cut as Campaign Issue

House Ways and Means Chairman Harold Knutson (R., Minn.) announced yesterday he will not reintroduce his four-billion-dollar tax reduction bill.

Virtually conceding the President's second veto will stick in the Senate, Knutson said the still unenacted bill will be carried into the 1948 campaign.

Knutson said it seemed "futile" to him to try to buck a third veto.

"I prefer to submit it to the voters," he said. "It will be a very, very lively campaign issue."

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), repeated what he said after the first Knutson bill veto:

"It looks like we must have a Republican President before we have tax reduction."

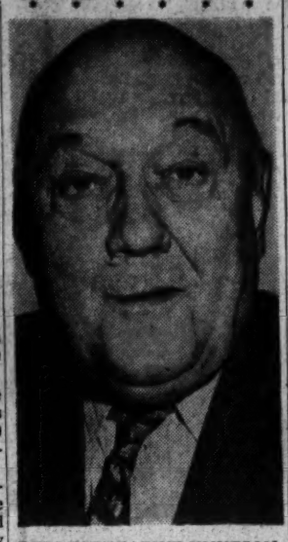
White House aides meanwhile said the President will send his promised veto of the 10½ to 30 per cent income tax cuts to Congress on Friday.

Martin said the House will probably vote to override the same day. The House, which sustained the initial Knutson bill veto by 2 votes, apparently was well over the required two-thirds majority to override the second.

In the Senate, where the chances of overriding are virtually nil, leaders said they will not vote on the veto before Monday and may even delay the session's last tax round until later in the week.

Privately they conceded that only a major miracle could wipe out the 2-vote sustaining margin registered in Monday's 60-to-32 Senate vote on the bill.

Knutson's announcement that he will not reintroduce the bill either this session or next was in sharp conflict with views expressed over the weekend by Senate Finance Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.).



REPRESENTATIVE KNUTSON

Millikin conceded that initial action is up to the House, but said he favored sending the bill once again to the President, this fall if Congress meets in special session, and in any event next year.

Other Republican leaders on both sides of the Capitol meanwhile suggested inclusion of income tax reduction in the over-all tax

D. C. Wants To Cut New Schools Fund

Commissioners Ask $915,000 Transfer For Other Purposes

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

District officials dropped a $915,000 hot potato onto the collective lap of the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday.

The Commissioners urged that the sum, earmarked by the House for new school construction, be used instead for other local improvements which they consider more important at present.

School heads, however, warned that the money was needed to carry out a minimum expansion program necessary to ease an "alarming situation."

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), chairman of the Senate subcommittee conducting the hearings, caught in the middle of argument, sharply scored the District tax system. He said:

"I can't understand why District leaders can't come up with a sales tax or something to take care of minimum education requirements."

What prompted his outburst is the situation in which the District finds itself today. The House approved expenditures of 96 million dollars for the District for fiscal 1948, which began July 1. The 96 million dollars represents all the revenue it is estimated the District will raise in the year.

Thus, with the revenue of the District virtually fixed, the Senate cannot appropriate more than 96 million dollars, so that any additional funds sought by the Commissioners must come out of money already okayed for other District of Columbia projects.

The House, after hearing pleas of school authorities, raised the Commissioners' estimates of school construction needs for this fiscal year by $2,500,000. The Commissioners feel that $915,000 of that additional sum ought to be cut back into the local treasury for:

Four hundred thousand dollars for moving the Industrial Home School from its 100-year-old building on Wisconsin ave. nw. to Laurel, Md.;

One hundred and seventy thousand dollars for building an

World Bank's Issues Sell Out In Two Hours

$250 Million Bonds Bring Premiums Well Over Offering Price

New York, July 15 (AP).—The World Bank sold out $250,000,000 of its own bonds today in a deal that made financial history.

Two hours before bank officials announced heavy oversubscription of its first two issues, the bonds made their initial appearance on the Stock Exchange at substantial premiums over the offering price of par, or 100.

Proceeds of the financing will go into the Bank's fund for general lending purposes. The Bank uses its resources to supply capital to member nations for productive purposes, to assist in financing the rebuilding of war-devastated areas, and to develop the resources of member nations.

Closes at 102⅛.

The Bank's $150,000,000 long-term 3 per cent issue, dut in 1972, closed at 102⅝ after hitting 103⅛ at one time. The $100,000,000 short-term 2¼ per cent issue, due in 1957, ended at 101 11/32 after reaching 102.

Announcement of the oversubscription climaxed one of the largest and most intensive marketing jobs in Wall st. history.

Some 1600 security leaders throughout the country participated in the offering, which was preceded by weeks of work by a score of investment syndicate specialists, and cross-country trips by Bank officials who explained the nature of the Bank and its bonds to potential investors.

The dealers now have the job of moving the two issues into such retail outlets as banks, insurance trust funds, estates and other institutional, as well as individual, investors.

Dealers will be allowed a sales concession of $2.50 for each 10-year lease bond sold and $5 for each 25-year bond.

In May this year the Bank authorized its first loan, one of 250 million dollars to France. John J. McCloy, president, recently announced that several other loans were under consideration, including 60 million dollars re-

Navy, Legislative Measures Adopted; 2 Other Funds Acts Hurried Along Way

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday sent two important appropriation bills to the White House and moved two others within sight of passage.

Then the House, seeking to avoid payless paydays for thousands of employes of Government departments whose funds bills have not been completed, approved and sent to the Senate a measure authorizing departments and agencies to meet their payrolls for the first half of July.

The compromise bill giving the Navy $3,433,046,100 for the current fiscal year was approved by the Senate by voice vote soon after it had been adopted by the House.

The 55 million dollar measure for legislative expenditures, also a compromise, was passed by both houses.

War Gets Six Billions

The Senate adopted by voice vote and sent to the House an appropriation bill for the War Department providing $6,160,000,000 for this year's expenses. This amount was 600 million dollars greater than the amount previously passed by the House.

Should the House decline to accept the Senate's additions, the measure will be referred to a conference committee to iron out differences before a final vote by both houses. In case the House accepts the Senate bill, an affirmative vote would send it to the White House for action by the President.

The Senate also passed the independent offices bill carrying $8,307,978,247, including $6,985,504,300 for the Veterans' Administration. The total is $140,109,220 more than the House had voted and the bill goes back to the House for concurrence in the increases or for a conference.

60 Millions More Than Asked

During debate on the Army bill, Senator Gurney (R., S. Dak.) told the Senate it contained about 60 million dollars more than the President's original budget recommendation, including both cash and contractural authority.

Just before passage of the Army bill, the Senate rejected an attempt by Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) to place in the measure a rider that would prevent any

GM Stops Auto Output for Week Because of Steel

Detroit, July 15 (U.P.).—General Motors Corporation announced tonight it was closing down all passenger car production for one week, idling 180,000 workers, because of a shortage of steel.

GM President C. E. Wilson said all fabricating plants of the Fisher Body Division and their assembly plants in Michigan would be closed next week and that Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac assembly lines in the State would be closed for the same period.

It was believed the shutdowns would cost the auto-buying public approximately 25,000 passenger cars.

Greek Forces Block Invasion By Encircling 2500 Guerillas; U. S. Fears Balkan 'Explosion'

Security Council Of U. N. Requested To Move Quickly, Quell War Threat

By Larry Hauck

Lake Success, July 15 (AP).—The United States told the United Nations Security Council today that the situation in Greece "might burst into an explosion any day" and urged delegates to meet continuously to quell the threat to world peace.

"A situation is developing dangerously along the Greek-Albanian border which might burst into an explosion any day," Deputy Delegate Herschel V. Johnson said. "The events of the past few days indicate that the situation has worsened.

"The United States urges the Security Council to proceed with all possible dispatch in setting up this (border watch) commission."

Johnson asked the Council to hold two special meetings tomorrow and to vote "as soon as possible" on proposals to end the border disturbances.

The Council voted down Johnson's appeal for two meetings tomorrow after Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko objected on the grounds that the U. N. schedule was filled and he could see no reason for the Council "to blindly follow the Greeks in this noise."

Yugoslavia Discounts Danger

Britain, Australia, Syria, Belgium and Brazil supported the United States on the ballot. The motion lost because seven votes were needed. No negative vote was taken. The other members are Colombia, Russia, Poland, China and France.

The Council then decided to meet twice on Thursday and once on Friday. It adjourned at 6:44 p. m. (EDT).

Nesti Kerenxhi, Albanian representative, told the Council that a "so-called international brigade" was merely a repetition of previous reports—"completely without foundation"—spread by Greek officials.

Yugoslavia said the reports were without foundation and the situation was not as difficult as it had been pictured by some delegates.

Greek Ambassador Vassili Dendramis retorted quickly that "there have been real battles going on along the Albanian border for two days." He backed Johnson's appeal for speed.

Deplores "Vulgar" Accusations

In the tussle over speeding up the schedule, Gromyko said:

"The noise raised by the Greeks in the last 48 hours has a very obvious aim."

He said Greece was attempting to bring pressure in the Balkan case and the Security Council was not a "stock exchange," but an international organization to study problems calmly and cooly.

Johnson took the floor again to deplore "the accusations that have been cast at the head of the Greek delegation here with such vulgarity."

Johnson gave the first indication that the United States might be ready to compromise on sections of its demands. He said he was willing to stress conciliation, but noted that certain sections such as

U. S. Calls 11-Nation Parley To Start Work on Jap Treaty

Red Vetoes Stall Korea Conference, General Declares

Seoul, Korea, July 15 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown, chief American delegate to the United States-Soviet Commission, today accused the Russians of trying to use an "arbitrary veto power" to prevent consultations with Koreans on their future government.

Brown, in a 2000-word document charged the Russian delegation with violating an agreement reached May 10 after an exchange of letters by U. S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

The document revealed that the two delegations have been deadlocked for three weeks on two "basic issues"—Soviet insistence on a right to veto Koreans eligible to consult the commission and an "uncompromsing Russian stand against South Korean leaders who object to trusteeship."

A similar stand by Russia broke up the commission last year. Virtually every south Korean leader is opposed to trusteeship.

Brown, in issuing a unilatral press statement despite an agreement that only joint communiques were to be released, placed the blame for the deadlock on the Soviet delegation.

Brown said the American delegation was willing to compromise but that the Soviets adamantly refused to budge.

Action Indicates Readiness to Proceed Without Russians

The United States has summoned an 11-nation conference to meet in Washington on August 19 to start work on the peace treaty with Japan, The Post learned yesterday.

Invitations have gone out to Australia, Canada, China, France, India, the Netherlands, New Zealand, the Philippines, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union.

It is by no means sure that Russia will be willing to discuss the treaty in this company of large and small Pacific Ocean powers. The invitations were issued after consulting Russia but without, apparently, waiting for Soviet approval.

Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith discussed the subject with Foreign Minister Molotov, on instructions from the State Department, shortly after returning to his post in Moscow from a visit here.

Molotov objected promptly and emphatically. He argued that the Council of Foreign Ministers could handle the Japanese treaty-making without the participation of smaller powers.

The Ambassador replied that other countries had taken an important part in the Pacific War, that the Council of Foreign Ministers had not been created to deal

House Group To Make Study Of Aid Needs

GOP Resolutions Will Provide Check On Situation Abroad

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Republican leadership resolution authorizing a special House committee study of foreign economic needs, including the Marshall plan, yesterday was introduced in the House.

The resolution, drafted by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.), in effect let the House in on the ground floor of Marshall plan discussions leading up to the ultimate program of European self-help.

Backed solidly by the leadership, the measure was assured of swift clearance by the Rules Committee and passage by the House.

Although the proposal will provide Congress with its own check on European and Far Eastern economic requirements, Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) is expected to appoint two men sympathetic to the Marshall plan to head up the study.

House Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) is slated to direct the 19-member committee study, with Herter as vice chairman.

Eaton warmly indorsed the plan but said the European countries themselves must get together and decide on a unified program of self-help before America can assume further responsibility in the rehabilitation of Europe.

Herter said actually "there is no Marshall plan," adding:

"It will have to be evolved as we appraise Europe's ability to help herself and our own ability to help her."

He said the House investigation should not be viewed as "antagonistic" to the plan.

Peasant Party Chiefs Seized In Bucharest

Leaders Opposed To Leftist Rulers Arrested in Flight

Bucharest, Romania, July 15 (AP).—Several leading members of the principal government opposition, the National Peasant Party, were arrested yesterday at Tamadau airport just outside Bucharest while trying to flee to another country, it was announced tonight.

Among those arrested were Ion Mihalache, vice president of the party; Nicholae Penescu, its secretary-general, and Dr. Constantin Gafnko, a prominent member.

Dr. Iuliu Maniu, president of the party, is being held incommunicado at a sanitarium in Bucharest which he entered six days ago for treatment.

The arrests were confirmed tonight by the Ministry of Internal Affairs, which issued a communique saying:

"Full of hate for the popular democratic regime and wanting to overthrow the regime; being implicated in the criminal actions of elements hostile to the people and afraid of the responsibilities before justice and the people's anger at the illegalities they have committed, several leaders of the National Peasant Party, at the direct order of Iuliu Maniu, attempted on July 14 to escape to a foreign country.

"For that purpose they bribed several pilots of the military air force.

3 Brigades Spring Snare in Savage Fighting 19 Miles North of Ionnina

By L. S. Chakales

Athens, July 15 (AP).—Airborne Greek army reinforcements halted abruptly today a drive by 2500 savagely fighting guerilla troops 19 miles from their objective, the Epirian capital of Ioannina in northwestern Greece, and enveloped them in a trap from which they "cannot escape," a cabinet minister said tonight.

The guerilla drive, which the Greek government contended originated in Albania, was stopped short at the village of Negradhes, 19 miles north of Ioannina (Janina) during the first clash between government troops and the insurgent band.

The government minister said it had not been determined on how large a scale the battle at Negradhes had been waged, but that the government was confident the threat to Ioannina and its population of 20,000 had been dispated.

[The United Press reported that the Greek war ministry announced tonight that six strong guerilla forces are concentrated along the Albanian and Yugoslav frontiers, poised to join the fight already going on.

[United Press said chiefs of the American and British military and naval missions took part in a meeting of the Greek national defense council tonight. Gen. W. G. Livesay, chief of the American Army mission, and Admiral John A. Snackenberg, chief of the U. S. Navy mission were reported to have been in the meeting.]

They "Cannot Escape"

War Minister George Stratos said that two army ... 1500 men, each moving dow... on the guerilla forces from the north, and a third brigade moving against them from the opposite direction had halted the menace to Ioannina.

The guerillas "cannot esc... and they have to give battle," Stratos declared.

A source close to the Greek general staff said a "showdown" battle between the army and the guerillas, who began a surprise offensive Sunday against the village of Konitsa, probably would take place soon near the village of Yeroplatanos, 25 miles north of Ioannina.

Guerillas in the area of Yeroplatanos and nearby Vasilikon, a few miles to the north, now are surrounded, he said, while 9 miles west of Yeroplatanos the insurgents who were repulsed at Konitsa now are trapped by two Greek brigades.

Arms Concentrations Found

Stratos said his government had ascertained there were large concentrations of arms and military supplies at three points in Albania just over the Greek frontier and at three points in Yugoslavia.

He added that 20 guerilla prisoners admitted that the "invasion" force included contingents of an "international brigade."

The War Minister said that members of the United Nations Balkan Investigation subcommission, currently probing Greek border incidents, returned to Salonika today after viewing certain

House Passes Bill to Check Loyalty of Federal Employes

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Ignoring warnings that the bill was unconstitutional and that it would lead to a witch-hunt and thought control, the House late yesterday passed the Rees bill which provides for a loyalty check of each Federal worker and applicant for a Government job.

The vote on passage was 319 to 61.

The bill goes to the Senate where action on it is believed unlikely at this session of Congress.

Only several minor amendments were written in the bill as proposed by the House Civil Service Committee. A score of amendments that would give accused employes greater protection and an appeal to the courts were shouted down.

A motion by Representative Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) to send the bill back to the committee was beaten by a 248-to-133 vote. Kefauver, who led the floor fight against the bill, insisted in vain that an employe who is ordered fired on loyalty charges be permitted to appeal to the United States Court of Appeals. He said that the five-man loyalty board to be created by the bill would be prosecutor, jury and judge.

The Tennessean charged that the bill presumed a Federal worker to be guilty when his case is called before the independent loyalty board. He said the bill didn't give Federal workers as much legal protection as the Nazis who were tried at Nuernberg.

"The result of this bill," he cried, "will be to drive thoughtful and able people out of the Federal service. Anyone who has original ideas will leave the Government for fear he'll be charged with subversive thoughts, and it will result in a Government administered by robots."

Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee and Representative Almond (D., Va.) took turns defending the bill in the four-hour debate.

Rees contended his bill was "misunderstood" and that it was being deliberately misrepresented. He insisted that his bill followed the President's plans as to loyalty standards and objectives. He said he would not create a "gestapo," and that it followed Federal practices of long standing in that no accused employe could appeal to the courts or face and cross-examine his accuser.

Opponents of the bill pounded away at three provisions in the bill. They were: (1) That section which would permit the Attorney General to list organizations he believes to be subversive; (2) another which would cause a Federal worker to be fired if there is "reasonable doubt" as to his loyalty, and (3) finally the section which would cause to be fired any employe who has a "sympathetic association" with subversives or a subversive group.

Two Brothers Die in Crash Of Their Air Freight Plane

Two brothers, both air freight pilots, were killed yesterday in a mid-afternon plane crash just off Skyline Drive, at Panorama, Va.

The plane, a single-engined C-63, sliced through a telephone pole to crash in flames on Lee Highway less than 100 yards east of its intersection with the scenic, mountain ridge drive in the Shenandoah National Park.

A. Watrous

Park Police removed two bodies from the burned wreckage. They were identified as Arthur H. Watrous, 31, and Francis A. Watrous, 25, both of Meriden, Conn. Identity was established only by a card found in the debris.

The two are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Watrous, of Meriden. The father told The Post last night his sons had been in air freight business for themselves since February and left home yesterday to fly a load of chickens to New Market, Va., their third trip of that contract.

The plane crash occurred under a heavily overcast sky and was witnessed by dozens of motorists. Police said the pilots were apparently flying low because of the overcast and were following Lee Highway (Route 211) across the mountains.

The crash interrupted both telephone and electric service in the area.

A park employe said he rounded

Let Germans Have Socialism If They Wish, U. S. Tells Clay

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The increasingly sharp controversy within the United States Government over socializing German industries was settled yesterday by a new directive of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, approved by the State, War and Navy Departments.

The directive tells Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, that the German people are perfectly free to put their industries under public ownership if they decide, by democratic methods, to do so. It orders him to do nothing to stop the process.

On the other hand, it gives him permission to tell the German people of the benefits of the free enterprise system, presumably through his own speeches and through the various propaganda instruments at the military government's command.

The exact language of this part of the new directive, which may settle many future disputes, is as follows:

"While it is your duty to give the German people an opportunity to learn of the principles and advantages of free enterprise, you will refrain from interfering in the question of public ownership of enterprises in Germany, except to insure that any choice for or against public ownership is made freely through the normal processes of democratic government."

The directive applies only to the American zone, but it probably will help to remove one of the

Greek Government In Mountains Likely

Treason Charge

American Link Hinted In Finn Case

Helsinki, Finland, July 15 (U.P.).—Former State Police Chief Hannu Kunnas, who faces a secret trial July 24 on treason charges, was involved in spying for western powers, Finnish newspapers reported today.

A reliable source said Kunnas had "curious connections with Americans."

A communique from Communist Yrjoe Leino's ministry of interior denied reports that cabinet ministers were spying on each other, but did not mention charges against Kunnas.

Finnish newspapers said Kunnas would be charged with selling maps to western powers and "exercising double spying between east and west." Many newspapers said Kunnas cooperated with Eino Aaltio, former Finnish consul in Minnesota and legation member in Washington, who also has been arrested.

Kunnas was chief of the powerful state police from July, 1946, until January. He was arrested in June.

Communist Move Would Be Reply To U. S. Mission

By M. W. Fodor

(Post reporter, authority on the Balkans and the Near East, author of "South of Hitler" and other works.)

Athens (By Press Wireless): Announcement of the formation of a Greek government "in the mountains" which would be recognized by Russia and her satellites would surprise no one.

This announcement may come this week as the Communist answer to the arrival of Dwight P. Griswold, administrator, and the American Aid Mission.

Arrests Answered

The arrest and deportation of hundreds of Communists and leftists last week in raids that the government announced were timed to defeat a Communist coup were countered by the siege of Konitsa by an "international brigade" which crossed the Albanian border into Greece on Sunday.

Coincident with this attack, the Communist newspaper here featured an editorial signed by Nicholas Zachariades, party leader, calling for formation of a "free Greece" government in the mountains.

"American intervention on behalf of the Monarcho-Fascist regime on the one hand must be met by the peoples' resistance against such enslavement on the other," the editorial said. "Material separation therefore is essential to fight the Fascists. A new democratic government is the answer."

No Large Territory

Such a development would probably find a phantom government and cabinet meeting in one village today and in another tomorrow. It would not have large territories to control, but if it were recognized as the legal government by Russia and her satellites, as it undoubtedly would be, the present government would be subject to constant harassment.

No American commission ever undertook a more difficult task than that facing Administrator Griswold.

Response Disappointing To U. N. Relief Plan

Lake Success, July 15 (AP).—Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, reported today that an "extremely serious" situation existed as a result of a disappointing response to the U. N. plan for providing post-UNRRA relief on a voluntary basis.

In a report to the Economic and Social Council, Lie declared the contributions so far would meet no more than 60 per cent of urgent relief needs. The council meets next Saturday.

Lie reported that only 5 of the 55 members of the United Nations had offered cash contributions.

These were the United States, Britain, Canada, Australia and Denmark. Greece agreed to make a "token" contribution of dried currants for Romanian children. Ten countries said they were unable to help, and the remainder, including Russia, did not even reply to a U. N. inquiry.

The United States contribution, if approved by Congress, would be between $310,000,000 to $335,000,000.

Austrian Fears 'Curtain'

Vienna, July 15 (AP).—A high Austrian official expressed fear today that a "second iron curtain" would be erected along the boundary of the Russian occupation zone if Austria participates in a general European recovery plan such as that being discussed now in Paris. Austria is participating in the talks.

The Russian zone includes Austria's most productive agricultural areas, most of the country's industry and oil production. By a rigid control of this zone, the Soviet effectively could counter Austria's participation in any program upon which the Russians might frown.

Wheat Set for Italy

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 15 (U.P.).—An Italo-Argentine economic agreement about to be signed grants Italy a 150-million-dollar credit and 400,000 tons of Argentine wheat a year, Italian and Argentine sources said today.

Nimitz in Hospital For Leg Treatment

The Navy announced yesterday that Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, chief of naval operations, is in Bethesda Naval Hospital for treatment of an inflammation of his right leg. Nimitz is 62.

The Navy said the admiral's illness was not serious. Hospital officials expect Nimitz will stay there about a week.

Four Generations Celebrated His Birthday

battle grounds "convinced" the current attacks in northwest Greece were launched in Albania.

The subcommission, he said, would return to Konitsa, which he described as now entirely "free," to question guerilla prisoners.

Despite government victories at Konitsa and Negradhes, there was some speculation here those guerilla attacks had been diversionary operations to screen even greater actions planned in the Florina and Kastoria regions, just south of the Yugoslav border.

Greek battle veterans also were rushed from Ioannina to Kalpaki, 25 miles to the west, where regulars and guerillas joined battle last night.

A report from the Second Army Corps said the regulars and gendarmerie had dislodged guerillas from passes and heights in the Kalpaki region, 10 miles east of the Corfu Channel.

Fifty guerillas were taken prisoner in skirmishes last night near Kalpaki, the government reported.

(The United Press said the left-wing EAM announced in Athens that 15,000 Greeks have been arrested in the government's five-day roundup of political opponents and that the mass seizures were not over. EAM said 7000 were arrested in Athens and Piraeus and 8000 throughout the remainder of the country.

(The most the government has claimed to arrest was 6000—3000 last week who were accused of plotting against the regime and 3000 this week after the invasions of north Greece.)

(The British Foreign Office announced in London Britain was investigating Greek reports that an international brigade had invaded Greece. The spokesman said that if this were found to be true, Britain and the United States might protest to the United Nations Security Council.

(Whitehall sources said British and American civil and military representatives in Greece were conferring on the "very serious turn of events."

Octogenarian Has Made Life A Satisfying Adventure

By Charles J. Yarbrough

Post Reporter

A man who mourns "my old friends who got the habit of dying" gathered three generations about him for his 84th birthday anniversary yesterday.

He is Frank H. Lancaster, of 6615 Harlan pl. nw., whose personality still twinkles with the satisfaction of having led a life he wanted to lead. A one-time newspaperman who started as a carrier boy, he has followed his whims from then until now.

His first newspaper job on the San Francisco Chronicle paid him $15 a week and a horse to ride—("they fed the horse"). But it wasn't enough.

Lancaster took up gold mining work on the side, worked it five days a week and his newspaper job, too.

In both of them, there was money. He returned east, started a factory making machine screws first; then split-bamboo fishing rods. "One was a necessity; the other a whim, so I quit the fishing rod business."

He sold the factory after some reverses and started for Denver and a job on the Rocky Mountain News. "I hit Denver with a nickel, learned that the city editor who had promised me a job had been fired in the meantime. I had a riotous breakfast on the nickel, landed another job as timekeeper."

Things brightened. He went back to mining, made enough to follow a ranching whim and then bought a shingle mill.

"The shingle trust busted me," he chuckled.

Lancaster dabbled at investigating testimonials for a patent medicine firm, then went to London to return as representative of an embossing and printing press firm; then got back into the news business. He published the first trade journal for newspapermen—Fourth Estate, in 1893 and started another, Newspaper Maker in 1895.

Coming to Washington in 1914, he saw service on various service papers during World War I. Since retirement, he has been doing free-lance writing, largely reminiscenses for western newspapers, "but arthritis doesn't encourage it much."

The admission was his only concession to 84 years.

He gathered his daughters, Mrs. William MacMillan Palmieri and Miss Margaret C. Lancaster; a granddaughter, Mrs. George W. Hutchings of Ann Arbor, Mich., and a greatgranddaughter, Harriet Christina Hutchins, around for his birthday. A friend, Grosvenor Dawe, formerly with Review of Reviews, also celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday at the party.

Anyone who had a birthday date on July 15 would have been welcome. He's trying to make a club out of the event.

Russian Plan To Aid Albania Believed Near

Moscow, July 15 (AP).—Russia was believed drafting plans today to give economic aid to Albania, while the Soviet press hinted at a gloomy fate for European nations which accept American assistance.

The presence in Moscow of Gen. Enver Hoxha, Communist Premier of Albania, gave rise to speculation that an economic agreement between Russia and the Balkan nation would be announced soon.

Hoxha, who arrived yesterday, said Russia "gave us freedom, gave us victory and now is giving us light and life."

Izvestia hinted that the 16 nations at the Paris Conference would fall into a "dollar trap."

The newspaper said the United States loan to Britain was going fast and that Britain now, under the terms of her agreement had to buy goods from the United States or go without.

Propaganda Blast Opens

London, July 15 (U.P.).—Russia's "iron curtain" countries opened a concerted blast of propaganda against Greece today in support of the guerilla force which invaded that country from Soviet satellite Albania.

Russia, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria joined in the barrage.

Pravda alleged that an American military mission had suggested the dspatch to Greece of American troops posing as Greek nationalists living in the United States.

Pravda quoted alleged reports also that secret clauses of the Greek-American aid agreement provided for the cession by Greece of American naval and air bases.

establishment of the commission were "fundamental."

Earlier, French Delegate Alexandre Parodi called attention to the "grave" reports from Greece and counseled delegates to "keep calm."

He urged delegates to await full confirmation of dispatches before forming conclusions and cautioned that the Council must confine its action to limits of the U. N. Charter.

He agreed with the American demand for a semipermanent border commission, but suggested it be comprised of small neutral states rather than the 11 Council members, which include the major powers. The French delegate also stressed that conciliation should be the watchword of the group which would operate with great "moral authority."

Dr. Alfonso Lopez, Colombia, also sought to inject a compromise on the American plan by asking for a seven-nation commission which would have headquarters outside the Balkans.

Lopez said Greece had "become a frontier between the East and the West in an ideological war" and this was making the solution difficult.

Earlier, Johnson, declaring he was speaking on direct instructions from Washington, said the Balkan situation was a matter of "genuine urgency" to the world.

Delegates had two resolutions before them. A United States proposal called for establishment of a semipermanent watch over Greece's troubled frontiers with Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria and blamed the three Soviet satellites for the disturbances. A Russian proposal, directly opposed, charged the fault rested with the Athens government and rejected the idea of a U. N. investigating commission.

U. S. Protests Red Hesitance To Arm U. N.

Lake Success, N. Y., July 15 (U.P.).—The United States complained today that Russia seemed "unwilling or unable" to contribute its share to the world police force, but said that should not stop other countries from arming the U. N. as soon as practicable.

United States Delegate Herschel V. Johnson said the western powers' idea of each big power giving the U. N. a "comparable" but not identical allotment of armed force afforded "exactly equal privileges" to all the big five.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko insisted that Russia would not be ready to talk about size of the U. N. force until the East-West dispute over the kind of big five contributions to U. N. is settled.

Russia insists each big power must contribute exactly equal land, sea and air forces except in some heretofore unspecific special cases.

Gromyko effectively forestalled action at today's session of the Security Council.

Hungarians May Dissol Parliamer

Budapest, July 15 [illegible] agossag, Social Dem [illegible] wspaper, said today t [illegible] arian Parliament might [illegible] ssolved next week —a step [illegible] ch would deprive opposition members of their parliamentary immunity from arrest.

The paper said passage of new election laws would precede adjournment. Anti-communist leaders have predicted these new laws would guarantee sweeping left wing victories in the Septembe elections and clinch the Commu nist coup of May 31.

Szabad Nep, Communist newspaper, published what it said were provisions of the new election laws. The description was totally different from versions published previously.

The new laws, the Communist organ said, will provide one seat in Parliament for every 14,000 voters instead of one for every 12,000.

Those who would be deprived of the vote would include all members of previous parties now considered "Fascist," plus members of the German minority.

An announcement said the Small Holders Party, after meeting with President Zoltan Tildy yesterday at Lake Balaton, had decided against calling a party assembly before the election. Small Holder informants said the decision was the result of Communist pressure.

Anglo-Soviet Trade Talks Take Upturn

Improved Outlook Cheers British, Fearful Congress Won't Aid Europe

London, July 15.—The Anglo-Soviet trade talks were reported tonight to have "taken a quite definite turn for the better" and will probably culminate in an agreement this week. They were on the verge of collapsing last week.

This development was particularly cheering to British officials, now in deep gloom over the announcement that President Truman tentatively agreed not to summon a special session of Congress this autumn on American aid to western Europe.

The result was feared to be a refusal by Congress to grant any effective aid.

Britain today fears that:

1. American aid to Europe will become embroiled in the 1948 Presidential election. The chances of a nonpolitical assessment of the European rehabilitation problem was seen to be in grave danger.

2. The program, when it emerges from the 16-nation conference at Paris on September 1, is likely to become entangled in the mass of other legislation facing the January Congress. British officials recall that the American loan to Britain took about nine months to get through Congress.

3. Even if American aid to Europe is granted early next year, it might be too late. The big question confronting Italy and France, as well as Britain, is whether they can survive another winter without substantial American help, or without enormous political upheavals.

British officials expect the dollar credits from the United States and Canda to last until the end of this year, with further cuts in the living standard.

Despite its effect on dwindling dollar balances, Britain today met the loan deadline and made the pound sterling freely convertible into any currency for current busines transactions.

Effect of high prices on the value of the loan to Britain was shown by Hugh Dalton, who told the Comons the $3,750,000,000 (B) loan had decreased 28 per cent, or more than one billion dollars in purchasing power since 1945. Since October 1, 1946, the loan value decreased 16 per cent.

[Food Minister Strachey told Britons he did not believe wheat imports from Russia would end bread rationing, the United Press reported. Strachey said he felt food imports were more important that importing newsprint.]

The Labor Government's bill to nationalize inland transport was approved on final reading by the Conservative House of Lords today, after it had been amended a dozen times over government protest.

The bill would bring bus lines, railroads, and long distance truckers under government ownership by next January.

LITTLE VISITORS—Cecelia Caicuts, 4, and Marco Bellosi, 3, gave Washington police an interesting time yesterday, after they boarded a streetcar in Seat Pleasant and were taken off, obviously lost, at Washington Circle, nw. Cecelia gave her name as "ChichChi," and "Celie." Marco volunteered his last name was "van Pertettiburti." Cecelia thought they lived in Indian Head, Marco thought "around the corner" in Seat Pleasant. They then had a wonderful day at the Women's Bureau, until they were claimed by Master Sergt. and Mrs. Eli Caicuts of Indian Head, Md. Mrs. Caicuts, 20, explained she left the children at her grandmother's home in Seat Pleasant while she went to the hospital. Russian 'Isolation' Threatens World Peace, Governor Says

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 15.—Blunt language today replaced the guarded phraseology of Secretary of State Marshall, as a Southern Governor openly called Russia a threat to world peace and asked for all-out preparedness in the United States.

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, a much decorated veteran of World War II, charged that "isolationist" Russia, by boycotting the Paris economic conference and splitting Europe in two, has created a situation "that leads to war and not to peace."

He then put the matter squarely up to the thirty-ninth annual Governors' Conference by introducing a set of resolutions that called for:

1. Legislation now for "total mobilization" in the event of a national emergency or state of war. Total mobilization would mean instant conversion of all industry to war production, a civilian defense set-up, rationing, price control, and the harnessing of scientific and manpower resources.

2. Unification of the Army and Navy.

3. Universal military training.

Governor Thurmond spoke less than 12 hours after Secretary Marshall told the Governors Conference that the United States was now at a "turning point" and must help its friends in the Old World or risk seeing them abandon democracy.

Secretary Marshall, after finishing his prepared speech in the LaFollette ball room of the Utah Hotel, gathered with the 46 State Governors in the Pioneer Room, and behind locked doors gave them an off-the-record briefing on the world crisis.

The reaction of the Governors was, on the whole, favorable. A heavy majority of them appeared to recognize that the United States, in the interests of its own prosperity and security, must go to the rescue of Europe and thus prevent Russian domination of the continent.

True, a good many of the Governors, although agreeing in principle with Marshall, preferred to wait until they had more facts at hand. They said they were not in favor of proffering Europe a blank check.

But on the question of doing something or doing nothing to prevent the Communist wave from engulfing Europe, the great bulk of the Governors felt that there was no alternative to bold action by the United States.

"We may as well face the facts," Governor Thurmond said. "What has transpired at the council tables of the world during recent months points not to peace but war. One of our great allies in the recent war has embarked on what appears to be a policy of isolationism.

"As a Nation we are pledged to peace. But when we see one of the great powers of the world adopting a policy of isolationism, of refusing to join with her sister European countries in preparing a plan for the rehabilitation of Europe, and when we see that government using its power to block the effectiveness of the United Nations, we in the United States are deeply concerned."

Governor Thurmond then outlined his program for national preparedness. If the conference fails to adopt the resolutions he submitted, it won't necessarily indicate that a majority of Governors are out of sympathy with the program. One vote can block adoption of the resolutions when they come up for action tomorrow.

Blueprint for Marshall Plan Finished at Paris Conference

By Joseph L. Dynan

Paris, July 15 (AP).—The 16-nation European Economic Conference completed today its blueprint of an organization to draft and administer continental reconstruction outside the Russian sphere and under the Marshall plan of United States aid.

The conference's third plenary session, meeting for only 45 minutes, unanimously approved a rules committee recommendation to establish a general "committee of cooperation," or steering committee, a five-nation executive board and four technical boards.

The lesser committees will survey Europe's resources and dollar needs by September 1. Delegates perused with care Secretary of State Marshall's address in Salt Lake City last night indicating the program would not be submitted to Congress before January.

280 Million Outsiders

With Russia outside the conference were Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Yugoslavia, about 280 million people.

Nations inside the conference were Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Greece, Iceland, Eire, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and the United Kingdom—with some 218 million persons. Spain was not invited.

Claude Bouchinet-Serreulles, secretary general, summoned a steering committee session for 10 a. m. (4 a. m. EST) tomorrow. A schedule for the other committees will be drawn then.

The next plenary meeting probably will be late in August or around September 1.

Bidault, Bevin Pleased

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault in an oblique reference to Russia, said the conference "has shown that when various peoples approach a problem with good will, they can agree." Bevin remarked that "we can go away from Paris with the certainty that people of the world want to agree and will agree if they are permitted to."

As the delegates left, many expressed satisfaction with Marshall's frank statement of the connection between U. S. security and their own economic success. Some were disappointed that American dollars could not be expected before late winter or early spring.

GOP to Set Up House Group To Study Foreign Aid Needs

jective and constructive study," he said. "We will work of course with the three advisory commissions the President has set up but we will reach our own conclusions."

Herter said he believed this was the first time Congress had counted itself in on the "take off" of a major foreign policy undertaking.

Probable Timetable

In one quarter it was said that the Marshall plan timetable calls for development of the program in these stages:

1. Reports by the European participants on their needs in September.

2. "Screening" of the reports thereafter by the President's own advisory groups as well as the Special House committee.

3. Meetings in December by the various congressional committees concerned with separate phases of the plan.

4. Formal presentation to Congress in January.

Deadlines would be moved up if the President finds it necessary to call a special session.

Representative Chester E. Merrow (R., N. H.) meanwhile took issue with the White House view that no special session seems necessary. Merrow urged Congres be called back in October to consider the Marshall plan.

There were these other developments:

Robert E. Wood, board chairman of Sears Roebuck Co., told the Joint Committee on the Economic Report that America should stop most of its aid because "Western Europe is to a large extent finished." He said that "no amount of money" can restore the economic conditions that formerly prevailed in Western Europe and said loans in that area cannot be repaid.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said shipments of grain to European countries within the Russian sphere of influence will be virtually halted. Anderson said the United States does not intend to ship grains into areas where needs may be supplied from other sources. Russia is reported to have a bumper wheat crop this year.

Herter's resolution went into the House hopper along with another by Eaton giving the House Foreign Affairs committee authority to travel abroad.

The foreign economic study, however, will be undertaken exclusively by the 19-member special group set up in the Herter resolution. Speaker Martin is expected to pick members from key House committees—Foreign Affairs, Appropriations, Armed Services, Banking and Currency and possibly Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

All five members of the Foreign Economic Policy Subcommittee of the Foreign Affairs Committee are expected to be named to the special group. These include Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), subcommittee chairman; James G. Fulton (R., Pa.), Jacob K. Javitz (R., N. Y.), James P. Richards (D., S. C) and William M. Colmer (D., Miss.).

Objectives of Resolution

The Herter resolution directs the special committee to study:

1. Actual and prospective needs of foreign nations and peoples, including those within the United States military zones.

2. Resources and facilities available to meet such needs, within and without the continental United States.

3. Existing or contemplated agencies, whether private, public, domestic or international, qualified to deal with such needs.

4. Any or all measures which might properly assist in assessing relative needs and in correlating such assistance as the United States can properly make without weakening its domestic economy.

Woman Air Victim Lost 4 Husbands In Plane Mishaps

Houston, Tex., July 15 (AP).—Relatives disclosed today that the air-age had caught up with Mrs. Joyce Schultz MacKinnon of Houston.

Her fourth husband was killed in an air crash Sunday, the same air tragedy which snuffed out her own life.

Mrs. MacKinnon was killed with her co-pilot husband, Roderick P., in the crash of a DC-3 chartered airliner near Melbourne, Fla.

Mrs. MacKinnon first was married to John Dalquist, a Navy lieutenant, who was killed at Pensacola, Fla.

Bernard H. Peterson, her second husband, another Navy flier, was killed off the Atlantic coast near Norfolk, Va., shortly after the wedding.

The third husband, Ensign Banard Volm, was killed in combat over the Atlantic less than a year after their marriage.

Mrs. MacKinnon, 26, married her fourth husband two months ago. He was a former Navy pilot.

House Group Blocks New Navy School

Efforts of the Navy to establish a postgraduate school at Monterey, Calif., were blocked yesterday by the House Rules Committee.

The committee declined to send to the floor for debate a bill authorizing the Navy to acquire the Del Monte Hotel at Monterey for that purpose. Chairman Allen (R., Ill.) of the committee said he felt the bill "probably will be tabled for the remainder of this session of Congress."

Representative Jack Z. Anderson (R., Calif.) had appeared before the committee in a final attempt to have the school approved as "vitally necessary" for training a sufficient number of Navy line officers. It was his third appearance in behalf of the bill.

In connection with testimony for and against the measure, Allen said he objected personally to statements attributed to Navy Secretary Forrestal and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, that "we have a second-rate Navy and a second-rate Army." He said Congress had given both services more money than ever before in peacetime.

Prior to sale of the Bank's securities, the only money the Bank could lend was some 721 million dollars subscribed by the United States. The United States thus far is the only member nation that has agreed to let the World Bank use its subscription payment to lend to other nations. Thus the only method the Bank had to add to its lendable funds was to sell its own securities.

Total authorized capital stock of the World Bank—or, formerly, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development—is 10 billion dollars, of which slightly more than eight billion dollars has been subscribed.

"stop-watch" or "time-measuring" studies in War Department agencies.

Magnuson said such a rider had been included in every Army-Navy appropriation since 1912 after the late Senator Borah (R., Idaho) investigated such studies. He said the studies "make time slaves" of workers.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) succeeded in blocking a War Department request to allow an exemption from the ceiling upon the number of its civilian employes which had been approved by the Appropriations Committee. The Virginia Democrat said the War Department has 547,000 civilian workers or more than one for every two soldiers.

"The War Department has more not efficiently employed than any other agency," Byrd said.

Reich to Pick Own System

major disagreements in the coming Anglo-American conference in Washington over raising coal output in the Ruhr, which is in the British zone.

For several months, and increasingly in recent weeks, American and British negotiators have been at odds over public ownership in the Ruhr. General Clay, with some support from the War Department and other agencies in Washington, has been urging a five-year moratorium on any socialization of Ruhr industries. He has argued that uncertainty over their future is hampering the production efforts of German owners and managers.

The British, on the other hand, contend that the public ownership issue is a red herring drawn across the trail of the Ruhr coal problem and in this they have had support from the civilian agencies in Washington.

The new American directive supersedes the famous Directive No. 1067 issued secretly to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in April, 1945, when he was American commander in Germany. It represents a clean break from the emphasis on punishment of Germany which dominated the 1945 document.

Stability Emphasized

Today, two years later, it tells General Clay to concentrate on establishing stable political and economic conditions so that defeated Germany can make the greatest possible contribution to European recovery.

Most of the directive's provisions have already been embodied piecemeal in American policy in the past two years, but several of them settle controversial issues that have been undecided or in dispute between General Clay and Government agencies here. Among them are:

1. A provision that the rights and privileges of any authorized political party may be restricted or withdrawn if General Clay finds that it "is adopting or advocating undemocratic practices or ideas." Until now the American Military Government has had to be strictly neutral among the various authorized parties.

The new provision means that a political party can suffer reprisals if it breaks up opponents' meetings, or advocates totalitarian methods, or acts as a front for the Communists. Except for this, General Clay is told that he must tolerate no infringement of the right of every authorized party to state its views and to present its candidates to the voters.

2. A provision that trade unions in Germany shall be allowed "to bargain collectively regarding wages, hours and working conditions within the framework of such wage and price controls as it may be necessary to maintain." This is an advance on previous American policy statements on this subject.

The new directive reaffirms the rights of responsible trade unions, and also reaffirms that "any federation of trade unions shall not impair the financial and organizational autonomy of member unions." In this the directive is guarding against some Moscow-sponsored organization affecting the independence of individual unions in the American zone.

3. A provision that General Clay shall "develop and maintain organizations and facilities for the operation of media of information, including those sponsored by the military government, designed to further the objectives of your Government." This means the continuance of the American-edited newspapers which have been existing side-by-side with licensed publications edited by Germans. General Clay had been reported anxious to discontinue the so-called "overt" American publications and turn them over to Germans.

Urges Production Stimulus

In line with the present-day spirit of the American military government in Germany, the directive orders General Clay to give "highest priority" to increased production of coal, food and export goods. It urges him to seek a production and foreign trade program which will increase the standard of living and put Germany on a self-sustaining basis.

It directs the general to oppose vigorously any attempt to impose any "external forms" of government on the Germans.

"Your Government believes," it says, "that the ultimate constitutional form of German political life should be left to the decision of the German people. Your Government does not wish to impose its own historically developed forms of democracy and social organization on Germany and believes equally firmly that on other external forms should be imposed."

The new directive speaks of "the necessary restraints to insure that Germany is not allowed to revive its destructive militarism." Otherwise it contains few if any references to punishing Germany, like those in the 1945 directive which placed major emphasis on making Germans feel their responsibility for the war.

Whereas the 1945 document ordered General Eisenhower to be "just but firm and aloof" toward the Germans, the new directive stresses the need of rebuilding the national German culture and reviving Germany's cultural relations with other countries.

End of Kowtowing Seen

Berlin, July 15 (U.P.).—The new United States directive to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, military governor, was interpreted here as meaning among other things that the United States will stop backing down to Russia in order to get harmony in discussion of occupation problems.

Clay said the directive would be an excellent guide in determining the American position in discussion of the many questions which arise. These include those concerning the economically merged American and British zones, the three western zones of the United States, Britain and France, and all four zones including that of Russia.

Clay said incidentally that he though there was still a good possibility of economic merger of all four zones. The fact that the Allies are still working here, "even though we are accomplishing very little now," is a point toward eventual harmony, he said.

The outstanding authority on Lincoln photographs, Stefan Lorant, has just made an important discovery: a magnificent "lost" photograph of Abraham Lincoln—perhaps the best character portrait of Lincoln ever made. He also uncovered the unpublished diaries and sketchbook of Francis B. Carpenter, the painter who lived for six months in the White House while working on his famous Emancipation Proclamation picture. Reproductions of this hitherto-unknown photograph and some of Mr. Carpenter's preliminary sketches of Lincoln and his cabinet appear for the first time anywhere in today's Saturday Evening Post.

Truman Finds Unanimity on Foreign Policy

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday pictured the Nation as united on foreign policy and stressed anew "our desire to assist nations willing to cooperate in the common objective of reconstruction."

The President's remarks came at a time when European nations outside the Russian sphere are holding an economic conference at Paris as a result of a suggestion by Secretary of State Marshall. Marshall proposed that Europe get together on a program of recovery, and said the United States would give aid where practicable.

The President's statement was regarded as an effort to allay any doubts that Congress would support the Marshall plan when the time comes to decide on American financial assistance.

The President issued his statement in signing legislation, passed at his request, continuing export and import controls over certain scarce goods until next March 1.

Finds Congress Willing

He said that with enactment of this measure "we have again demonstrated to the world our unanimity on matters affecting our international relations."

"This is particularly significant and timely," he added, "at this moment when so much attention is focused abroad on our desire to assist nations willing to cooperate in the common objective of reconstruction."

Congress again has shown, he said, "its willingness to support the achievement of our foreign policy objectives."

Mr. Truman said he had been reluctant to ask continuation of the controls, which would have expired today, "but world shortages have by no means been dispelled and the threat of inflation has not been dissipated."

He observed that "haphazard distribution" of our products throughout the world would have bad economic results. Our objective remains, he said, "the removal of interferences with world trade."

Drops Control of Manila

The legislation includes authority to direct delivery abroad of goods required for "production in foreign countries of commodities urgently needed in the United States, or required for carrying out our foreign policy," Mr. Truman said.

It condtinues the Office of Defense Transportation along with its powers to allocate transportation equipment.

It drops controls on manila and other types of fiber and cordage. Import controls on rice and rice products are retained.

Materials on which the emergency wartime regulations are continued include tin and tin products, except for imports of tin ores and concentrates; antimony, fats and oils, petroleum and petroleum products.

The President said the controls will be used sparingly and dropped as conditions allow. He added, however, he expects the need "for some supervision of our foreign trade will continue beyond next February."

Armed Forces Merger Nears Floor of House

The House Committee on Executive Expenditures yesterday approved a bill for unifying the armed services similar to that recently passed by the Senate.

Chairman Hoffman (R., Mich.) of the committee said he would seek House passage tomorrow.

The House bill, in common with the Senate measure, would establish a National Security Council responsible directly to the President. It differs from the Senate bill only in naming the new head of the armed services "Secretary of Defense" rather than "Secretary of National Security."

Both bills provide that this officer would have Cabinet status with three undersecretaries, one each for Army, Navy and Air, without Cabinet rank.

7 Flat Tires, Jail, All on Sunday, 13th

Barrington, N. J., July 15 (AP).—James Bark, 39, set out for the shore on Sunday, the thirteenth, with his wife, five children and two in-laws, had seven flat tires going and coming and ended up in the Audubon, N. J., jail.

Charged with taking a wheel from a parked car after the seventh flat, Bark, a Philadelphia naval base employe, got his first break when Police Recorder Howard J. Rowen suspended a $10 fine.

U. S. Collapse Was Eisler's Aim, Jury Told

A Government attorney told a jury of five women and seven men in District Court yesterday afternoon that Gerhart Eisler came to America "to disrupt the economy of the United States, in accordance with the wishes of Moscow."

The remark, made by Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz in his opening statement in the trial in which Eisler is charged with passport fraud, brought from Eisler's attorneys threat of a motion for mistrial.

Hitz began his opening statement against the 50-year-old reputed No. 1 Communist agent in this country after a day and a half spent in selecting a jury. During the detailed, lengthy questioning of veniremen, Eisler's attorneys excused ten, the Government five and the court nine.

Hitz told the jury he would introduce witnesses and documents to prove Eisler lied, in September, 1945, in answering three questions on an application for an exit permit to Mexico. He charged Eisler answered "None" to a question asking organizations to which he belonged, that in response to another question he had failed to give various aliases by which he was known, and that he had failed to list a previous period of residence in the United States in answering a third question.

During Hitz's statements, Chief Defense Counsel Abraham J. Isserman rose 11 times to object to points which, he said, had not been included in the bill of particulars.

He objected to Hitz' reference to Eisler's activities in China where, Hitz said, Eisler had served as a Communist "propagandist" and "as a matter of fact, a spy." He objected to statements by Hitz that Eisler entered the United States in 1933 "under a false French passoptr," and that Eisler, later the same year, threatened a Cleveland Communist Party leader with expulsion unless the Cleveland leader brought party members there into line with Moscow policies.

Miss Ruth Fischer, sister of the stocky, German-born Eisler, would be the first witness for the Government after the initial technical witnesses, Hitz said.

Selected for the jury, which was sworn in at 2:30 p. m., were: Mrs. Irene Lowe, 1018 1st st. nw., supervisor at the Victory Building; Miss Ethel Boston, 1232 5th st. ne., a former Government employe; Henry Baker, 1610 21st pl. se., a hacker; James Caul, 1222 Franklin st. ne., an American Red Cross driver; Louis Perry, 53 K st. ne., laborer; Mrs. Pearl McLendon, Census Bureau clerk, 70 O st. ne.; Miss Margaret Fleming, 1736 Columbia rd. nw., librarian, formerly with the Department of Commerce; Charles P. Gibson, 5351 Hayes st. ne., District schools engineer; Joseph C. Farrall, 2936 Northampton st. nw., naval electrician; Harvey Coley, 1937 Providence st. ne., handy man at the Chevy Chase Club; Mrs. Zelma Chait, 2032 Belmont rd. nw., housewife and former Treasury Department employe; and Frank H. Jacobs, 1531 C st. se., a baker. Alternate jurors are: Herbert E. Gaskins, jr., 1236 Owens pl. ne., and FHA clerk; and Milton H. Greenbaum, 1307 Fort Stevens dr. nw., jewelry employe.

Senators Hunt For Strayed Atom Secrets

By The Associated Press

The Senate War Investigating Committee has joined in the hunt to determine whether atomic secrets have been lost to foreign agents.

Chairman Brewster (R., Me.) reported yesterday that the committee's staff has revived a wartime inquiry into the spending of two billion dollars for development of the atomic bomb.

Brewster told a reporter the investigation would be broad enough to go into the question of whether "Russian pipelines" were draining highly restricted information from the project. He added that he had no information personally on that question other than what he had read in newspapers.

"If there were Russian pipelines operating into it, that would come under the head of waste and extravagance," he said. "If we found such evidence, we would consult with the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and the Department of Justice to see what information they had about it."

Brewster said the inquiry had been under way some time, although he had not received a progress report.

London, July 15 (U.P.).—Britons want a wedding of pomp and splendor for Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten.

The Daily Express reported today that its readers voted, 6 to 1, against an "austerity" wedding, probably in October.

British Arrest 15 in Search For Kidnapers of Sergeants

Jerusalem, July 15 (AP).—British troops, continuing their house-to-house manhunt in the martial-law area of Natanya, arrested 15 persons today for questioning in connection with the kidnaping last week of two British sergeants.

An official announcement said three of those detained were leaders of the Jewish underground.

The army was considering the possibility that the kidnaped pair may have been smuggled to a seret hideaway by ship.

The United Nations special Committee on Palestine heard a charge by Samuel Mikunis, secretary of the Jewish Communist Party, that British troops were in the Holy Land "in preparation for a third World War."

Mikunis asserted that British troops were stationed not on Jewish or Arab areas but "in the south in big military camps." He said the "troops are here with the help and assistance of American imperialism."

U. S. Calls 11-Nation Parley To Start Work on Jap Treaty with the Far Eastern treaty, and that in any case the Big Four ministers would be fully occupied with German problems in their coming meeting in London in November.

Molotov finally agreed to consider the matter, but so far as could be learned yesterday a reply had not been received before the American invitations were issued.

The American action suggests that the United States is ready to go ahead without Russia, if necessary, rather than delay the treaty-making any longer. By August 19 it will be more than two years since the surrender in Tokyo Bay.

General MacArthur said publicly last month that a treaty with Japan must be concluded "within a year or eighteen months at the most." Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia told his House of Representatives that "an early peace settlement should be negotiated."

Secretary Marshall has been increasingly impatient at the long delays, and the issuance of invitations for August 19 shows that he has taken the plunge whether Russia likes it or not.

Russians Fear Majority

The invitations, as issued, suggest that decisions of the conference be taken by two thirds vote—another reason why the Kremlin may dislike and oppose the conference. The Russians have always dreaded and fought against any proposal that involves a majority or two thirds vote without a veto.

The same 11 nations that have been invited for August 19 are represented on the Far Eastern Commission, which makes policy decisions for governing Japan. On this body, however, no vote is valid unless it has the concurrence of all the Big Four of the Pacific—the United States, the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and China.

The August 19 date fixed for the conference threatens to collide with a British Commonwealth conference in Canberra, Australia, on August 6 to discuss the Japanese treaty.

Conference Seen as Routine

Official eyebrows were lifted in Washington when this conference was summoned, chiefly because it might give the Russians the impression that others were "ganging up" on them in advance of the proposed treaty discussions.

The United States, however, never objected to the Canberra conference, since it follows a recognized pattern of British Commonwealth relations in international matters.

Before the war it was usual for the United Kingdom and the Dominions to have prior discussions before entering a conference. The same practice was followed before the San Francisco conference at which the United Nations Charter was written.

The Canberra conference will not commit its participants, although official Washington suspects that Evatt of Australia might like to have a solid Commonwealth bloc to support his ideas.

King's Cousin Arrested on D. C. Warrant

New York, July 15 (U.P.).—Lady Iris Mountbatten, tall, blonde, 27-year-old cousin of King George VI of England, was arrested today on a fugitive warrant charging her with passing bad checks in Washington, D. C.

Police went to Lady Iris' Park ave. apartment this afternoon with a warrant charging her with writing a bad check for $88.95 for the purchase of a dress or dresses at a Washington shop on June 9. The warrant also charged she passed two additional worthless checks for about $100.

She was taken to the local precinct station to be photographed and fingerprinted.

Lady Iris then was taken to police headquarters and from there to a private conference in the chambers of Chief City Magistrate Edward Bromberger, unusual procedure for a check charge.

Paroled to English Consul

Bromberger paroled her to Sir Francis Evans, British consul general, and her attorney, Arthur Barker. Hearing was scheduled for July 22.

"Everything will be straightened out in Washington," Barker told reporters. "It is merely a misunderstanding between British and American law."

Peiping Sees U. S. Cool to Full Arms Aid

Peiping, July 15 (AP).—Belief grew here today that the United States will not undertake all-out military support of Chiang Kai-shek's government against Chinese Communists.

Instead, it appeared American efforts would concentrate on urging the Chinese government to institute basic reforms—particularly in land rents and ownership—in an attempt to gain wider support from the people.

The government's total mobilization order—approved officially today by the executive Yuan in Nanking—ignored such liberal steps, and it is generally believed the order disappointed Washington.

Chinese government troops, meanwhile, regained Taian, on the Tientsin-Pukow Railroad 33 miles south of Tsinan, but field dispatches acknowledged the loss of two other railroad towns—Kiaochow and Kaomi, west of the Shantung Province port of Tsingtao.

Quintuplets Of Argentine Four Years Old

Buenos Aires, July 15.—The Diligenti quintuplets, three girls and two boys, were 4 years old today, which is old enough, according to their published diet, to warrant coffee or tea for breakfast and baked and fried potatoes for lunch.

Their father, Franco G. Diligenti, a wealthy textile manufacturer, still is guarding their private lives. Four years ago, terrified by the publicity given the Dionne quintuplets, he tried to keep the multiple births a secret. The story finally became public when an older half brother inadvertently let the secret slip.

War Flares In Indonesia; Dutch Invade

Batavia, Java, July 15 (U.P.)—Undeclared war between the Netherlands and Indonesia flared on land and sea today and a Dutch communique said Netherlands troops had been "forced" to invade the republic at an undisclosed point.

An Indonesian communique reported a savage 90-minute gun duel between republican shore batteries and five Dutch patrol ships, supported by one plane, at Ketapang in east Java yesterday. It said the battle was resumed at 8 a. m. today.

The Netherlands government communique on the fighting said three clashes took place in the western sector of the Batavia area and four east of Batavia "as a result of republican aggressiveness."

Discussions were still at a stalemate over the Dutch demand for a joint police force, which the Indonesians have steadfastly rejected.

U. N. Need at Peak, Scientists Say

Prof. Albert Einstein and other noted members of the Federation of American Scientists warned yesterday that "human security can never be assured until the world has been made safe for atomic energy."

They appealed for international atomic energy control through the United Nations.

"There must be one world or none," they said.

Einstein signed the warning both as a federation member and as chairman of the Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists.

The scientists said that although they knew from the beginning that the task of achieving international control would be difficult, "the lack of progress to date has been discouraging."

Dreaded Her Visit

Ex-First Lady Aided Morale, Halsey Says

New York, July 15 (AP).—Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey said yesterday he dreaded the visit of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to his South Pacific area command in 1943, but he later decided she had accomplished much for the morale of his men.

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, the former Third Fleet commander said he "marveled" at Mrs. Roosevelt's hardihood and told of her eagerness to visit Guadalcanal at a time when he believed the trip too dangerous for her.

Halsey also wrote of arguments with Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Despite these, which "always ended pleasantly," Halsey said he could recall "no flaw in our relationship." He expressed his deep admiration for the general's wartime leadership and his "masterly administration" of occupied Japan.

Halsey recalled in particular a controversy preparatory to assaults on Rabaul, Kavieng and Manus islands. He said the general was "fighting to control his temper" because Admiral Chester K. Nimitz had suggested Manus be placed under Halsey's command.

The general, Halsey recalled, then "lumped me, Nimitz, King and the whole Navy in a vicious conspiracy to pare away his authority," and ordered work stopped on important naval facilities there.

In his turn, Halsey told MacArthur: "General, I disagree with you entirely. Not only that, but I'm going one step further and tell you that if you stick to this order of yours, you'll be hampering the war effort."

This, Halsey continued, "made his staff gasp. I imagine they never expected to hear anyone address him in those terms this side of the judgment throne, if then."

MacArthur came around at that point, Halsey says, but got mad overnight and went back to his original stand.

Finally, after a third conference, MacArthur "gave me a charming smile and said, 'You win, Bill.'"

Fear of Inflation Discounted By Three Business Leaders

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Three business leaders told Congress yesterday that the Nation has a bright future, with no great danger of inflation.

All three told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that if production held up the present rising price trend probably would flatten out.

Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said prices leveled off in the last four months.

Gen. Robert Wood, chairman of the board of Sears Roebuck & Co., said there were small price cuts in his 1947 fall catalog for the first time in seven years.

Cheaper Coal Predicted

George M. Humphrey, chairman of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., the world's biggest producer, said the new coal wage contract should stabilize output and lead to cheaper coal.

Bunting said the Nation ought to be able to absorb this year's round of wage boosts without going into an inflation spiral. He said prices are high, as compared to those before the war, but that they have gone up less than wages have. Bunting urged the Congressmen to think about setting up a better Federal tax system.

Tax cuts would tempt new capital, Bunting said, and would help build up industry, and provide 500,000 new jobs a year.

Beside being Consolidated chairman, Humphrey is president of M. A. Hanna Steel Corp. He and Benjamin Fairless, president of United States Steel, worked out much of the recent coal contract with John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers.

Coal Raise $1.20 a Day

Humphrey told the committee that he wanted to make it plain that the new coal contract gave the miners a take-home raise of only 15 cents an hour, $1.20 a day—just as President Truman said on Monday—and that this was the same wage boost that had been given in other industries.

While Humphrey did not speak of Mr. Truman's appeal to coal and steel men to hold up price increases until they saw how the new contract worked, he did say that he thought the coal companies could not absorb all the cost of the higher wages. His own firm has raised coal 73 cents a ton.

But this is not final, Homphrey said, because if the UMW comes through with the cooperation it has promised, the cost of producing coal would come down.

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) suggested that Homphrey might lead the way by holding prices steady.

"I don't think," Homphrey replied, "that you ought to go out and bust a lot of people who can't afford to take the risk." He said if big companies did not join in the raises it would lend force to the charge that they were out to break small ones that could not pay the higher wages.

"That's the trouble," O'Mahoney said later, "big management is still unwilling to take the chance to prevent inflation, although they know it will mean disaster. They won't take a little loss, but are running the danger of collapse."

Calls Coal Pact Inflation Curb

apartment house at the Glenn Dale tuberculosis hospital, to attract doctors there;

Twenty-four thousand dollars additional for the recently increased duties and jurisdiction of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole;

Two hundred and twenty-nine thousand dollars additional for District payments to St. Elizabeths Hospital for care of District patients there;

Eleven thousand eight hundred dollars for the Office of People's Counsel, whose appropriation was wiped out by the House;

Ninety-five hundred dollars for the Metropolitan Police Band;

Seventeen thousand dollars to increase the investigating force of the tax collector's office;

Fifty-three thousand five hundred dollars more to increase personnel of the tax assessor's office;

The Commissioners' attitude on the $915,000 was summed up by Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, engineer commissioner. He said the Commissioners favored "in principle" the House action in increasing funds for school construction, but the Commissioners had to think of a "balanced program" and there are other important projects that need available funds.

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, declared the House appropriation, although nearly double the Commissioner's estimates, would only take care of a minimum need. The House appropriation, he pointed out, would permit the start of construction of 20 schools and annexes to relieve a situation of overcrowding whereby 7000 pupils attend school only half a day.

The part-time schooling affects chiefly Negro students, Dr. Corning said.

"That situation is extremely critical for the general welfare of the community," the school superintendent asserted. "It breeds distrust. Unless something is done quickly, these tensions will grow to bounds we cannot control."

Another tough-nut question was posed before the Senate group yesterday—dealing with the Health Department.

Testimony developed that the House bill recommends, among other things, four health projects: cancer control, tuberculosis survey, housekeeping aids, and reconversion of the Gales School into a health clinic. The four projects call for a total expenditure of $227,000, but the House appropriation bill provides only $114,000 for the four items. Question is: Where does the missing $113,000 come from?

Dewey Choice Of Most GOP Governors

By Jack Bell
Associated Press Reporter

Salt Lake City, July 15.—A secret-ballot poll disclosed today that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York is the odds-on choice of GOP State executives for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948.

Bunched with Dewey in the total number of ballots cast for them in first, second and third choice positions by 17 participating Republican Governors were Gov. Earl Warren of California and former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota.

But with 10 first-choice votes to Warren's 2 and Stassen's 1, Dewey far outstripped the field in that category.

Dewey had a total of 12, counting one second and one third choice. Warfren tied that over-all total with one second and nine thirds, in addition to his two firsts. Stassen had six seconds and one third, besides his one first, for a total of eight.

Democrats Split Votes

Democratic Governors, asked to express their preference for a vice presidential nominee only, split their selections so widely that former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes topped the list with two first choices. Nine others each received a single first choice designation.

The poll, conducted by the Associated Press in cooperation with the Salt Lake Telegram and the Deseret News at the annual governors' conference here, reflected only the personal preferences of the governors and not necessarily the views of their States.

Dewey told reporters he had "no comment" on the result of the poll. In response to a newsman's question, however, he said he had not participated in the balloting. Governor Warren also declined comment.

Secret Ballot Used

To insure complete freedom of expression, governors wrote their choices on unmarked slips which could not be identified when ballot boxes were opened. Of the 43 State executives present, 17 Republicans and 11 Democrats consented to list their choices. There are 25 GOP governors and 23 Democrats.

Dewey's surprising margin of 10 to 2 over Warren, the next highest favorite, was interpreted in some quarters as reflecting a personal as well as political popularity gain for him among his colleagues.

Governors' Choice Shown By Table

Salt Lake City, July 15 (AP).—Results of a poll by the Associated Press, Salt Lake Telegram and Deseret News of Republican governors for a Presidential nominee and of Democratic governors for a Vice Presidential nominee follow:

The Gallup Poll

Dewey Holds Sizable Lead Among 1948 GOP Favorites

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 15.—One year ahead of the nominating conventions, Republican voters expressing a choice of presidential candidate name Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Harold E. Stassen, Senator Robert A. Taft and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg as their top favorites.

Virtually no change in the standings of these four has occurred since April.

Governor Dewey, who remained silent during the political crisis engendered by the Taft-Hartley bill, retains a comfortable lead in popularity at the moment. The Governor is at present on a "non-political" tour which has taken him into the Southwest and Mountain States.

Candidate popularity is tested periodically by the Institute on the question:

"What man would you like to see elected President of the country in 1948?"

Republican voters naming a choice today divided as follows, as compared to a similar poll in April. Only one in five (23 per cent) expressed no choice.

	April	Today
Dewey	51%	50%
Stassen	15	15
Taft	7	9
Vandenberg	10	9
Warren	3	4
Eisenhower	4	4
Bricker	6	3
MacArthur	2	3
Saltonstall	1	..
Others	1	3

* * * *

THE FACT that a man is popular one year before nominations does not in any sense mean that he will necessarily be picked by the convention delegates as the standard bearer.

In 1940, for example, right up to a few weeks before nomination time, Dewey was found leading by a substantial margin in the Institute's poll of Republican voters. He had been leading in popularity for more than a year.

But Wendell Willkie, in a meteoric preconvention popularity rise, finally overtook him as the leading choice of the rank and file and got the nomination.

On the other hand, in 1944 Dewey was the popular choice a year or more before the convention; he held his lead, and was nominated.

* * * *

A MAN'S popularity is subject to wide changes from year to year. In 1945, for instance, Governor Dewey was far ahead as the candidate choice of his fellow Republican voters. During 1946, however, he slumped sharply, while Mr. Stassen's popularity rose.

At one point, in May, 1946, the two were running neck and neck.

Then, after Governor Dewey's reelection as Governor of New York by a smashing majority in November, 1946, he pulled out ahead of Stassen and has remained there ever since.

The sharp changes in the popularity of the two leaders may be seen in the following trend based on Institute polls among Republicans.

It suggests the possibility that once again between now and 1948 Mr. Stassen may gain sharply and Governor Dewey decline, as happened in 1946.

	May 1945	May 1946	Dec. 1946	Today
Dewey	59%	35%	52%	50%
Stassen	15	34	17	15
Taft	2	3	2	9
Vandenberg	4	5	9	9
Bricker	8	10	8	3
Eisenhower	..	3	3	4
MacArthur	7	5	2	3
Warren	1	..	5	4
Saltonstall	1	1	1	..

Delay in Checks For GI Students Studied by VA

An investigation to discover why some veterans in local colleges have had their subsistence payment checks delayed is being undertaken by the Veterans Administration.

The probe, begun last week, was initiated after some former servicemen reported they had not received checks due them on June 30.

Cause for the delays is expected to be determined "within a few days," according to Chester F. Naumowicz, manager of the Washington regional VA office. He has been meeting with officials from branch headquarters in the area to map a corrective system for the future.

Mormon Trek Reenacted at Centennial

Nauvoo, Ill., July 15 (AP).—The departure of the Mormons 100 years ago from Nauvoo was reenacted today by descendants of the original pioneers.

The first night out in 1847 the caravan, forced by mob resentment to leave, camped in snow and sleet and several persons died of exposure. At today's centennial reconstruction of the westward trek, the 148 costumed participants were cheered on their way.

Tonight, their first open-air encampment on the eight-day journey to Salt Lake City was made at Garden Grove, Iowa, a point it took Brigham Young's party months to reach.

The caravan started from the site of the old Nauvoo Temple and crossed the Mississippi in 72 automobiles covered with plywood and canvas riggings to resemble prairie schooners. Plywood oxen were fastened in front of them.

Music Betrays Pub to Police

Music failed to sooth the fevered brow of Joe Webb Hayer, 304 7th st. sw., when he appeared before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday charged with selling drinks after closing time.

Two policemen told the board they were attracted to Hayer's place of business by dance music at 2:35 a. m. When they entered the pub, they said, they found a bartender pouring drinks for four men and two women.

Hayer told the board he'd closed at midnight, but had admitted some friends who knocked on the door while he was cleaning up. ABC took the case under advisement.

The board also announced yesterday it had revoked the beer and light wine sale license of David and Eli Daumit, who operate a grocery at 239 H st. ne.

The board originally ordered the revocation May 26 after finding the Daumits guilty of permitting gambling on their premises.

The defendants appealed the case to the Commissioners, but the city heads upheld the ABC board decision.

Court Studies Durant Freedom Plea

Charleston, W. Va., July 15 (AP).—Former WAC Captain Kathleen Nash Durant was returned to a Federal reformatory today to await a decision on her plea for a writ of habeas corpus and freedom from an Army courtmartial sentence of 5 years.

District Federal Judge Ben Moore, at the end of a hearing on her plea, said he would decide as soon as possible, but the judgment will take at least 20 days, the time allowed for counsel to file supporting briefs.

Mrs. Durant and her husband, Col. Jack Durant, weer convicted by court martial of complicity in the theft of the Hesse crown jewels in Germany, valued at $1,500,000.

An attorney for the 43-year-old Hudson, Wis., woman declared that she held a certificate of service dated May 30, 1946, and that despite the Army's contention it was inadvertently issued, the instrument was valid.

Defendant in Slavery Trial Calls U. S. Prosecutor 'a Stalin'

San Diego, Calif., July 15 (A.P.).— Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls declared at her slavery trial today, after an outbreak in which she called the Federa prosecutor "a Stalin," that she and her husband had provided financially for Negro maid Dora Jones.

The former Massachusetts clubwoman declared also that she and Ingalls, former Massachusetts lawyer and legislator, had sought through "high influences" in Washington and New York to "stop the injustice" of the trial.

Mrs. Ingalls, 62, accused with her husband, 64, of reducing the maid to slavery under years of threats and drudgery, told U. S. Deputy Attorney Eugene A. Tolin that:

Dora Jones had been turned against her "after being under the power of a Stalin for five months.

"My two girls have been made monsters under your influence and now my character has been ruined."

She was admonished a number of times by Judge Weinberger against such outbreaks.

Mrs. Ingalls—who had previously admitted that Dora Jones had been paid wages for only one year since 1907—testified that she and Ingalls made a will in 1941 or 1942 setting up a trust with the National Shawmut Bank in Boston for the maid.

Income for Life

Dora, she said, was to get the income from the trust for the rest of her life, after which it would go to Mrs. Ingalls' two daughters, Mrs. Ruth Castendyk of Chicago and Mrs. Helen Roberts of Berkeley, Calif.

She had previously expressed doubts if she would take Dora Jones in her household, saying she had found it "so pleasant" to prepare breakfast for her husband herself.

revision bill definitely slated for action next session.

Asked if he favored such a course, Knutson said he personally did not, adding, "But if we get orders to that effect, I'll go along."

Steering Group Sets Pitch

In the well disciplined Republican House, the GOP Steering Committee generally sets the pitch on tax and other major domestic policies.

Knutson's first bill, made party policy by the Republican steering group, made the income tax cuts effective July 1, 1947.

When the House sustained the President's "wrong bill, wrong time" veto, Knutson offered an identical second measure, simply moving the date up to January 1, 1948."

Said Knutson: "I don't see any point in offering a bill dating it January 1, 1949."

Montgomery Reassessing 40,000 Homes

Assessors in Montgomery County have begun reassessing residential property, it was disclosed yesterday.

Wilton T. Allen, supervisor of assessments, said the work of reassessing more than 40,000 homes in suburban Montgomery County must be completed by May 1, 1948. The new figures will be placed on the tax lists effective July 1 next year, he said.

The recently completed commercial, apartment and industrial reassessment, Allen said, added about 14 million dollars to the county's tax lists.

He said the residential reassessment is expected to erase all inequities and place like properties on the same value basis.

North Carolina Negro Denied $3200 Auto He Won in Lottery

Ahoskie, N. C., July 15 (U.P.)—Negro war veteran Harvey Jones, 23, won a $3200 green Cadillac at a Kiwanis Club lottery today but the Kiwanians decided his ticket was "unauthorized" and a second drawing gave the car to a doctor who already owns a Cadillas.

The ticket, which he bought from a grocer for $1, read: "You do not have to be present." But Kiwanis President Rupert Massey said the drawing was just for white folks and Jones' dollar was refunded.

Jones was asleep in his little farmhouse when Sheriff Charlie Parker and two other Kiwanians knocked at 1:30 a. m. They told him he had the lucky number but his ticket was "unauthorized" because he didn't buy it from a Kiwanian. Besides he wasn't eligible to attend the dance where the drawing was held.

Carmen Cavallero, pretty vocalist, was blindfolded and drew Jones' number at the dance.

"We discovered this was an unauthorized ticket, went out and explained this to the Negro and he voluntarily surrendered it," Massey said. "He was refunded the full purchase price."

The vocalist was outraged. She refused to draw again. So Cavallero pulled out the second number.

The car went to Dr. Charles Townes of Waverly, Va. He already had a Cadillac.

Jones, a tenant farmer, said he needed a car. He has a wife and child.

Massey said, "We've done this thing in the best spirit in the world. We've tried to do right all the way through."

Curran Hits ABC Board in License Denial

Curran

The District Court jurist said the ABC board had heard no evidence upon which it could predicate its refusal of a Class "C" license to the Clore Restaurant, 2001 14th st. nw.

Justice Curran said that the record of ABC board hearings showed that the only testimony presented was favorable to the restaurant. No testimony was presented which indicated the restaurant should be denied a license, the justice said.

At the ABC board hearings, Justice Curran said, both policemen and private citizens testified that the restaurant's location was appropriate for a license. Yet, he said, the ABC board refused the license on the ground that the area of the Clore Restaurant was "adequately serviced" by places dispensing liquors.

Trucker Finds Money on Trees: A Million (Bogus)

A new tourist attraction was added today to the scenic wonders of southern Nevada and Utah—money on trees.

More than one million dollars in 10-dollar bills was discovered in the 20 miles between here and St. George, Utah, by a truck driver last Friday. Unfortunately, it was all counterfeit.

It was believed a strong windstorm several days ago had uncovered the cache.

Las Vegas police said the recent gangland slaying of Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel in Beverly Hills, Calif., may have forced counterfeiters to hide their product and delay flooding Nevada casinos with bogus money.

Sally Haines Says Safe Deposit Cash Belonged to Her

New York, July 15 (U.P.).—Movie actress Sally Haines testified in Kings County Court today that everything found in a safe deposit box impounded during investigation of the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. swindle case belonged to her—except two cuff links.

She said the cuff links were the property of Jimmy Collins, alias Julius Lobel, who is serving a 20-to-40-year prison sentence for his part in the $804,000 swindle.

The other contents, including $5400 in cash, were being held for her by Collins as her New York agent, she said.

She testified she "shared" a $308-a-month hotel apartment with Collins and paid the rent, but denied she lived with him "as man and wife."

OUR LABOR FORCE

As it is and as we use it, can we reproduce our former standard of living?

Our government was in a panic about unemployment after the war. Its economists said there would be eight millions or more out of work shortly after the fighting ceased. The lawmakers had wisely passed a law that employers must give jobs back to every enlisted man. They apparently were thinking there would not be jobs enough. Henry Wallace tried to stir things up with his evangel of "sixty million jobs." Short of that, he suggested, industry would have failed to do its job, whereupon the government must act; etc., etc.

I live in a town that was blown up by the war from 16,000 industrial workers to 35,000. We all worried about what would happen to those extra people when we deflated and got back to our peace-time size. We tried to evolve plans to get our labor "imports" to go home, but before we could get very far with that idea a plant or two talked of moving away unless the Chamber of Commerce could guarantee more men. Soon there was more help-wanted advertising than at any time during the war.

I thought at first it was local. Now I am thinking it is national. The second city in Michigan, Grand Rapids, had surplus labor all through the war. Today it's as hard put for men as we are. When we want parts or material and push for delivery on orders long overdue, the answer is always the same: "We need more men." Domestic help isn't plentiful. Office workers are scarce everywhere. Men want higher wages, not more hours at time and a half.

A STATISTICAL MIRACLE?

During the five war years we heard much about our high production. Everyone praised industry. The flow of guns and ships and planes to the front was astounding. The President lauded labor on every occasion for its hard work and marvelous productivity. He said industry had been restored to a high place in his esteem (or maybe that's overstated). We all assumed these things to be true, with the gross national product, according to the government's figures, going from $88 billions in 1939 to $120 billions in 1941; $187 billions in 1943; $197 billions in 1945—and $200 billions for 1946. Everyone seemed contented with such facts and there were certain things to be said for them. OPA was keeping official prices down. The statistical cost of living had risen only from the index figure of 96.7 in 1930 to 114.6 in September, 1946 (using 1926 as 100). We believed a miracle had happened in production.

I now am of the opinion that even industry was misled by these magnificent figures. Much adulation may have turned our heads. We don't generally analyze a compliment. We overlooked that war material was bought on a cost-plus basis, or at negotiated prices, with nothing basic to protect the government's purchasing agents and the suppliers protecting themselves. Possibly we were distracted by the OPA propaganda. We forgot to look at the consumer—at what it cost him to survive.

AS CONSUMERS

Let us look now at some comparative prices:

	Autumn, 1946	In 1936	Up
Wheat	$2.10	$1.11	89%
Corn	2.03	.88	130
Cotton-bale	192.50	60.10	220

	Autumn, 1946	In 1939	Up
Automobile	$2200.00	$1250.00	76%
Automobile	1600.00	900.00	77
Automobile	1039.00	680.00	52

A chain store manager gave me these figures:

	Autumn, 1946	In 1939	Up
House dresses	$5.95	$1.98	200%
House coats	8.95	3.89	130
Gloves	2.59-3.49	.98 to 1.00	164
Curtains	5.39	1.95	175
Underwear, rayon	59-.69-.79	.25	136
Rayon, No. 1	1.15	.59	95
Towels	.66	.36	83
Wash cloths	.19	.10	90

I am suggesting that our high national income is not a measure of our productivity; that, for what it will actually buy, it is below what the United States has been used to, even below what is needed to maintain our old standard of living, and that somebody is hoodwinking the people into believing that they are going to get the goods they got before, plus extra for some or all of their savings, plus rebuilding Europe and Russia and Japan, re-equipping English mines and plants, starting a manufacturing economy in South America and a few other countries.

I now test my supposition on a different base. I take the period 1929-1930 as a composite year. It was one of the last good years, undisturbed by depression or war—when unemployment was normal (only 3 million total unemployed), when cost of living was an index figure of 97, as compared with 115 now. The gross national product in that year was $88 billion. It was a year of good living; you could buy anything you wanted.

In the year 1929-1930 much employment was on a 48-hour-a-week basis. Other things being equal, it will take 120 men now to produce as much as was produced by 100 men in 1929-1930, simply because they now work fewer hours. The 40-hour week was made a federal edict in 1934 under the Blue Eagle, the first of the New Deal's regulations of business. Shorter hours appear in more union negotiations all the while and some industries now are working 35 hours a week. For the past twelve years labor, whether organized or not, has been coming steadily closer to a 40-hour week nationally. The workers of the nation march en masse to the chant, "Shorter hours for all."

THE LABOR FORCE

If it took 46,000,000 gainfully employed to produce our standard of living in 1929-1930 it will probably take 9,000,000 more now to produce the same volume of goods and services, other things being equal. And since there are 139 million people in the United States now and there were only 123 million then, it will take 12 per cent more produce, or 12 per cent more producers, to give to all the same standard of living that 123 million enjoyed in 1929-1930. So we now have our 46 million workers increased by 9 million, plus 12 per cent, making a total of 61.6 million workers needed at 40 hours a week to give the old 1929-1930 standard of living to our present population. But that is not all.

Vacations take their toll of production. The old-fashioned two weeks of paid vacation for the office force now is extending to the factory workers. It begins as one week, but an avowed union objective is two weeks and even three for employees long in service. It is doubtful if it will stop short of two weeks in a complete coverage. The paid vacation sounds too reasonable to be opposed and seems in fact to have a place in our higher standard of living. Then holidays are being added. The number is now seven. The ultimate two weeks' vacation means a loss of 4 per cent to production time. In fact, 2 per cent would be a conservative figure; it allows for office workers, railroad workers, teachers and those others who are already getting vacations. Thus, to make up the vacation loss and still maintain our 1929-1930 standard of living, we need 1,200,000 more workers—bringing the figure to 62,800,000.

UNPRODUCTIVE DEMANDS

But now we have a few increased demands on the labor force, when compared with 1929-1930.

The Federal Government now employs 2,400,000. In 1929-1930 the number was 550,000. So the demand on the labor force is increased by 1,850,000.

Then there is the defense establishment. In 1945, there were 11,300,000 in the military services. In May, 1946, there were 4,000,000, estimated. In 1947-1948 or 1949 there will be, I've heard, some 2,000,000, against some 300,000 in 1929-1930. Assuming half of these would enter gainful employment, we may say the increased military demand on the labor force is 850,000.

Our government is trying to provide for veterans some of the education it took away from them in their four years of war, and there are some 500,000 of them in our colleges for one to four years, off the gainful pay rolls.

Adding all these increased demands to our 62.8 million, we find that the labor force needed to reproduce the 1929-1930 standard of living now is 66 million.

Next we should recognize the effect of our social progress. Benefits of various kinds are drawing off gainful workers from the labor force. The effects of unemployment compensation, old age insurance over 65, and the veteran program are estimated for me at three and one half to four million people, divided as follows: The beneficiaries of the veteran program number 1,600,000; of unemployment compensation, 1,400,000; and of old age pensions 2,000,000. If we discount the old age figure by 75%, and, to be conservative, admit that all the veterans in college are included in the veteran program, it leaves the total of these three social activities at three million workers withdrawn from the labor pool.

It seemed very high to me, but adding these three million brings to 69 million the "labor force" needed to produce now a standard of living equal to that produced in 1929-1930 by a labor force of 46 million.

There are two counteracting factors to be considered—(a) technological advance, which increases output per man hour and decreases the number of workers required, and (b) the growing inefficiency of labor for the past six years which increases the number required.

Technological improvements hitherto have raised industrial production two or three per cent per year; but for the economy as a whole the average is not more than one to one-and-a-half per cent a year, or eleven to sixteen per cent for the years from 1930 to 1940. From 1940 on, there is no gain in production per man per hour.

The inefficiency of labor is no delusion and it is a tangle that's difficult to unravel and evaluate. Less work for more men seems to be labor's objective. It varies in different plants and different industries. One national service recently estimated the efficiency of labor generally at 65% to 70% of normal. One manufacturer said it took 120 man hours today to produce the equivalent car that 84 man hours produced before the war. If these were typical, it would take 50% more labor to offset this loss. It seems unbelievable, but it has a powerful effect on production and must be considered in an estimate of this kind. To be conservative, we might estimate that the technological advance of sixteen per cent since 1930 would be offset by the inefficiency of labor.

HAVE WE GOT IT?

Now, how many workers can be had out of the present population of 139,000,000? If you eliminate children up to fourteen years, there are 108 million left.

In 1929-1930 the number of those above fourteen years of age who accepted gainful employment was 54.5%. If we apply this ratio to the present population the result is 58,860,000. That figure, therefore, represents the total potential of gainfully employed, or, as we call it, the labor force. (Under the pressure of war the figure of 54.5% may have been exceeded as much as 10%, but that is not attainable in peace times.)

The conclusion is that we now have a labor force of approximately 59 million, whereas we need one of 69 million to assure ourselves of a standard of living equal to that of 1929-1930—and we are looking for that 1929-1930 standard again, with a large plus sign after it.

This is not a rigid calculation. It is a businessman's approximation, based on some experience, some observation and some help and advice from others on the percentage effects of new conditions. Certainly there is a shortage of labor now and there is reason to believe that this will be true for some years to come.

What effect will this have on labor rates? Will labor efficiency rise while there are more jobs than men? And what then of prices? Must we pile upon an unsatisfied, lopsided domestic demand a lot of foreign orders, and should we encourage them by loans, ostensibly to hold up our prosperity? Would it not be better to work 45 hours a week for a few years than to keep on talking about working less? When we need to recover our own standard of living by repairing and re-equipping plants that have had six years of hard wear and tear, shall we re-equip the rest of the world first? If so, do we realize it means sacrifice and self-discipline?

Mr. Young's Fiasco

When our news department uncovered the concealment of crime records by the police, we were convinced that this practice should be subjected to a thorough senatorial investigation. Now we are convinced that the investigation should go further. The preliminary inquiry before Senator McGrath's Subcommittee has disclosed either gross indifference or incompetence on a higher level of local government than the police. We think the Senate should also inquire into the failure of the Board of Commissioners to meet their simple obligations as a governing body in this matter.

In the face of The Post's well-documented charges vitally affecting the quality of law enforcement in the Nation's Capital, the Commissioners have done virtually nothing. Senator McGrath asked Commissioner J. Russell Young if the Board of Commissioners had held a meeting to discuss the situation revealed by The Post. His answer was: "Not as such. I read the inspector's order to the other Commissioners, and it seemed to be satisfactory." Then follows:

> Senator McGrath: You did not take any formal action? They did not instruct you to do anything in particular?
> Commissioner Young: No.
> Senator Ball: Did you make any attempt, Commissioner, to find out whether this pocketing or concealment of felonies was going on in any other category besides robbery?
> Commissioner Young: No.
> Senator Ball: All you did was ask your superintendent of police, is this being abused, and when he said he did not think it was, you were satisfied and said, "If you find any abuse, stop it."
> Commissioner Young: If there is any abuse of it, stop it.

Here is a complete abdication of the governing authority vested in the Commissioners. It is their duty to determine whether police rules are being violated and whether the rules themselves are sound and effective. It is to them that the President, Congress and the people of the District look to investigate any weakness in local administration and to adopt corrective measures if that is within their power. But this responsibility has been recklessly dumped into the lap of a new police superintendent who was chief of detectives when these abuses developed in the first place. Shocked Senators, who thought that the only issue was police malpractice, thus witnessed the crumbling of District governmental authority in their very presence.

With this sort of attitude toward the police at the top level of the District government, it is amazing that they function as well as they do. In any well-governed city, disclosure of a shocking practice of crime concealment would have brought the city council into quick action. The council would have launched an independent investigation to be followed by sharp and specific orders. But here the board meekly passes the buck to Commissioner Young and he in turn passes it along to Major Barrett. Local government is thus reduced to a fiasco.

We have often urged the granting of additional authority to the Board of Commissioners. But in this case the board has pathetically failed to use the power it already has. It has backed away from its responsibility in a bumbling and shameful manner. This performance was undoubtedly a factor in inducing the Senate District Committee to approve the resolution calling for a local police investigation yesterday and it should likewise count heavily with the Rules and Administration Committee when Senators McGrath and Ball go before it to request funds to finance the inquiry. In our opinion, the investigation is imperative, and we think that it should be made broad enough to cover this apparent breakdown of administrative authority as well as the system of pocketed crime reports.

Treaty On Genocide

In conformity with a mandate given it by the General Assembly of the United Nations at its last session, the U. N. secretariat, with the help of expert counselors, has prepared a draft convention outlawing genocide as an international crime. The draft has now been sent to the 55 member nations for scrutiny and comment and is to be brought up for discussion by the Economic and Social Council when it convenes on Saturday. It should be ready for action by the Assembly when that body has its next meeting in September. The time is short, yet not too short, we think, for settlement of a matter on which there has already been unanimous agreement in principle.

Genocide has been defined by Prof. Raphael L[illegible]kin, who coined the term, as an organized and systematic effort to exterminate a human group as an entity. Prior to its last adjournment, the Assembly acted unanimously to condemn genocide as a crime under international law. But to make this condemnation effective, it is now necessary for each member nation to enact the legislation necessary for prevention and punishment of the crime and to ratify a treaty as to methods of dealing with it. The draft convention would pledge all its signers "to prevent all acts of genocide and to punish all persons guilty of such acts, wherever they may occur." This would mean that an organized and systematic attack upon an ethnic group, such as Hitler's programs of extermination in and out of Germany, would be a violation of international law punishable by any nation which could lay hands on those responsible. The lessons of the past should have made the need for such an international statute self-evident. It would do no more than give the sanction of the United Nations to elementary standards of human decency. We hope that the General Assembly will choose to make this the first order of business when it convenes and translate what is universally accepted morality into international law.

Turning Point

General Marshall's address to the State Governors assembled in Salt Lake City preceded the final session of the initial plenary meeting of the 16-nation European conference. He spoke of the historic implications of the gathering—implications that now leap to the eye with the aid of the evidence (freshly supplied from Sweden) of Russia's almost frenzied threats to the conferring nations. It is plain that these conferees were earmarked as Russia's satellites as soon as enough chaos arising from do-nothingness had been created. The meaning of the threats from Moscow will not be lost on western Europe, nor, for that matter, on eastern Europe. This is, indeed, a last chance to pool resources and blend reconstruction programs as the only safeguard of independence. And the nations in Paris are recognizing that this independence can be maintained only by joining with like-minded nations in what Secretary Marshall calls a "coordinated approach to Europe's problems."

The giant task confronting western Europe amid the shadow of the Kremlin's frown calls for the utmost encouragement from the American people. Since the days of Jefferson our policy toward Europe has been governed by a single-minded determination not to see Europe fall under the tyrant's heel. It is sheer self-interest which provokes the consuming concern of our policymakers in the proceedings at Paris. We ought to consider ourselves fortunate that 16 nations are not so far sunk in war strain and postwar apathy as to be unable to arouse themselves in behalf of self-protection. And they deserve to feel, as Secretary Marshall said, "that their work will be followed in this country with genuine sympathy and good will."

But, in order to appreciate the historical implications of what is going on in Paris, the American people need assistance from Europe. The conferees must not work in the dark. As Secretary Marshall says, "To make up its mind, this country will need the facts," meaning the continuing facts of the conferences, as well as the end product in figures and hopes. It was a reminder that Mr. Bevin might well digest. Mr. Bevin believes in keeping world opinion informed by offical communique. His effort to reintroduce this traditional and outmoded method failed egregiously at the initial British-French-Russian conference when the Russians refused to play ball. This time Mr. Bidault, sensing the paramount importance of publicity, stamped on secrecy, and got consent for open deliberations. To repeat, to make up its mind, this country will need the facts.

The publicity needs to be as spectacular as the dramatic occasion, that is to say, as a turning point in history. That is why we suggested recently that the conference ought to nail its unifying purposes to its masthead before splitting up into expert committees. In other words, we looked to an immediate declaration of interdependence. Such a declaration, we are convinced, would have expedited the work, eroded the Russian bloc, and inspired the people of America in whose bones both Europe's travail and the sought solution are imbedded. Evidently the delegates shied away from such a statement of intentions, but what they did in putting their representatives to work expeditiously and schematically is impressive of the new determination which has been aroused in western Europe. The State Governors, we are glad to note, appear to have shared Secretary Marshall's satisfaction with the progress so far made in Paris.

Welfare Department

The rival Taft and Aiken bills to establish a Federal Department of Health, Education and Security have been blended through intelligent compromise into an alliance retaining the best features of each. The result, as reported by the Senate Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, is a sound and simple measure, strengthened by its resolution of differences respecting administrative structure.

The primary purpose of the measure is to elevate to Cabinet status the Government activities now carried on under the Federal Security Agency. It creates no new functions and confers no new authority. But it does provide for more effective recognition and better integration of the related health, education and social security services which the Government now renders. Three bureaus, each headed by an undersecretary, would be established under a Cabinet official. Sensibly, in our judgment, the revised bill omits Senator Taft's original stipulation that each of the undersecretaries be chosen from the professional field he is to supervise. The committee recommended instead that "the President should not be restricted to limited fields in the selection of qualified administrative officers, and that it is more essential to appoint officials with high administrative qualifications than might otherwise be possible if the selection is limited to persons with specialized professional training."

It is obvious, we think, that the tripartite department proposed in this measure is preferable to the demand advanced by some educators and physicians for separate departments in each field. The committee is indisputably correct in its opinion that "there was little chance that three such departments would be created by Congress." Moreover, it seems to us an affirmative virtue that governmental activities so closely related as health, education and security should be given the coordination of joint supervision. There is no reason to fear that any of the three will be ignored or slighted. On the contrary, each should be strengthened through association with the others. We hope that this carefully considered measure will enlist the attention of the Senate as a whole and of the House before the summer recess. The creation of this new Federal department will lend fresh vigor to the struggle against disease, ignorance and want.

Too Little Time

Europe's 850,000 displaced persons seem doomed to sympathy but precious little action as far as the United States is concerned. Senator Vandenberg's announcement that bipartisan congressional leaders find it impossible to wedge in the Stratton refugee bill before adjournment must come as a cruel joke to the men and women who have already spent five or even eight years of their lives in a homeless limbo. Statistically no doubt it is possible to show that Congress has its hands full with other matters without taking up the bill that would admit 400,000 refugees to this country within a period of four years. But these people are not mere statistics; they are 400,000 human beings with human aspirations, coldly classed under the label of "DPs." During the concentration camp days many of them lived by sheer spiritual strength in the hope of deliverance. That hope cannot sustain them much longer when the verdict on the measure that would enable them to reestablish themselves is "too little time."

We have been generous, yes, in feeding and caring for DPs, the bulk of whom are in our zone in Germany. But this is an expedient which in the end may be far more costly than a permanent solution. For what the great majority of these people want is not a soup-kitchen existence as vagrants, but an opportunity to earn their bread and lead constructive lives. Our ability to absorb refugees in the numbers envisaged in the Stratton bill within our quota system is beyond question. So, too, is the fact that these people, most of them anti-Communist and of the hardiest stock of Europe, would contribute greatly to the income and welfare of this country. The principal barrier is the necessary adjustment of immigration quotas and permission to employ unused existing quotas—plus the matter of time. We share a sense of the difficulties facing Congress in winding up the legislative session. We also know that Congress is capable of both speedy and humanitarian action when it sets its mind to it. Anything less in this case would be unworthy of the high principles the United States is upholding before the world.

Numbers Racket

That indefatigable iconoclast, Dr. George Gallup, has now delved into the sacred realm of personal habit to disclose that only one motorist in three remembers his license number. What launched Dr. Gallup on this startling revelation we cannot say. Perhaps it was a particularly frustrating experience of his own—such as might occur at a crowded parking lot on a rainy night when he had lost his car check. At any rate, the pollsters have put their finger on an extremely vulnerable spot. The affliction probably does not stem from the same cause that makes a woman unable to remember her age, though undoubtedly it is akin to the trouble experienced by the person who cannot recall where he put his driver's license when confronted by a particularly menacing minion of the law.

The malady is a familiar one. Many is the man who can recite some lines from Chaucer by heart, or who knows the formula for manufacturing glue, but who at the same time is as defenseless as a baby when it comes to recalling the numerals on his shiny new auto tag. We are intrigued not so much by the 32 per cent of people polled who pride themselves on their memories or the 48 per cent who admit frankly they don't know, as by the 20 per cent who are not sure whether they know or not. Doubtless from this considerable segment come the frustrated housewives who are always putting their packages in someone else's car. Indecision in such matters is perilous.

There is a moral, we suppose, in the area of ignorance that the Gallup Poll exposes. It might occur to some officials—though we doubt it—that there is virtue in assigning permanent license numbers that remain the same year after year. This system works very well, we understand, in some States. If it were put into effect, a simple recitation, committed by heart, could be the prerequisite, say, for an operator's permit. That is a solution which our licensing bureaucrats might well ponder. Meanwhile we are worried about Dr. Gallup and any sallies he plans elsewhere in the bewildering field of personal statistics. What will he uncover when the question concerns birthdays and wedding anniversaries?

Third Party

The extent to which Mr. Wallace has fallen under the intellectual domination of the Communists can be measured by his assertion in a newspaper interview that he would not support Truman for President in 1948 and his current encouragement of a third party movement.

President Truman's vetoes of the wool tariff increase, the Taft-Hartley antilabor bill, and the help-the-rich Republican tax reduction scheme, his denunciation of the rent increase bill, and his support of stronger civil rights legislation and of the bill to admit additional refugees from dictatorship, all indicate that he is taking the humanitarian and progressive side on every issue. Only the Russians, and therefore the Communists, oppose Truman, because he is opposing aggression by Russia and her puppets; and Mr. Wallace follows the Communist line.

A third party movement would only result in cutting down the number of progressive Congressmen by splitting their support and letting reactionaries get in. This, no doubt, would please the Russians and the Communists by helping to give a little color of truth to their charge that America is Fascist and imperialist. But it would not help our country, yet Wallace supports it.

DPs Vs. GI Brides

President Truman's message to Congress and the communication by General Morgan in The Post of July 8 have again put the spotlight on the problem of the displaced persons. I wish to mention my own experience with two cases which are significant of thousands of similar ones.

Miss B. from the Bergen-Belsen camp came to see me while I was on Justice Jackson's staff in Nuernberg. She had survived three years of hell in the Auschwitz concentration camp. While on leave in Berlin I went to see Miss S., a woman of extraordinary charm and beauty who, with the aid of Germans, had survived "underground." Miss B. and Miss S. have a brother each in this country, American citizens and businessmen. These brothers have tried everything to get an immigration visa for their sisters, they have filed applications, cabled, made out affidavits, advanced transportation costs, written to Congressmen and the President—with no avail. They run up against the clear cold quota figures.

The unspeakable suffering of these girls, the miracle of their endurance, their undiminished courage and obvious integrity have made an indelible impression on me. But I feel that the disgraceful indifference of the world toward their fate might achieve what the fiendish cruelty of the Nazis did not accomplish. Hostility evoked resistance. Hope of liberation and delivery enabled survival. Now, that these stimulations are gone and there is nothing but cold indifference, frustration and uncertainty will exert that "corroding" influence mentioned in the President's message.

The more so as it can be no secret to them that German girls are admitted to the United States in considerable numbers as GI brides. It is a scandal that German girls—no matter how honest they may be—are admitted to this country in preference over the unfortunate victims of Nazi persecution. If argued that such admission is granted not in their interest but rather in the interest of the GIs concerned, it should not be overlooked that equal consideration should be given to relieve the anxiety of those American citizens who have tried in vain to be reunited with a brother, a sister, a nephew or a niece who, in most cases, are the last surviving relative in Europe. If for no other reason it is for the benefit of these American citizens that Congress should act without delay.

Central Europe Problem

Under the caption, "Putting the Pieces Together," in The Post of July 10, Mr. Barnet Nover discusses with his usual clarity and logic the strategical position of Germany and her immediate neighbor, Czechoslovakia. He tells us: "Leaving out European Russia, it (Europe) contains a population of more than 300 millions, occupying an area smaller than that of the United States."

As Mr. Nover has emphasized, how precious that central European space is only a real student of economics would appreciate. To talk too glibly of Russian hegemony outside of territory where the Russian tongues are spoken would indicate that many are chattering their fears, for the many Russian tongues and dialects constitute a formidable barrier in Moscow's program for universal European expansion.

The western bloc these days is forming of itself. An empty belly is ever ready for quick-cure solutions, and this may explain something of Poland's present-day psychology. But Moscow will make little headway either in Austria or Germany, and less still in France. The empty-belly knows but one language, and its sole objective is to get itself filled. (Those of us who have ever been in that predicament will know the only right answer.)

Russia, without any satellite conversions or expansions whatever, is fully half of all continental Europe, — geographically. The several "unconquered" border states are, by tradition, language and religion so anti-Russian in their essence that Moscow has no chance of converting them to her new way of life. It is up to us to handle this central European problem with our habitual business acumen and skill. We have the men to do it: they have done bigger things, and they are big enough and efficient enough to do this thing.

Hospital Brushoff

About 9:15 p. m. Saturday my wife discovered a tick imbedded in my 4½-year-old daughter. She plucked it out, and to ascertain what was the next stop—I called the Emergency Hospital. The name seemed appropriate to the occasion. We were concerned about Rocky Mountain fever, which ticks sometimes carry.

I explained what I wanted to the telephone operator. She said, "Hold on." A nurse then answered the phone, I explained what happened, and she asked: "Did the tick come out whole?" I said, "Yes, what do we do now?" She hesitated a minute, then said: "I'm sorry, we don't give first-aid information over the phone. If you bring the child in, we can look at it."

I then asked her to connect me with a doctor. Her answer was: "The doctors are all busy." I said, "This seems strange for a hospital named Emergency. Is there nobody who can tell me what is the proper treatment?" She repeated: "Bring the child in." This, by the way, was in the middle of a rainstorm.

I said, "May I have your name, please?" She answered, "We're not allowed to give out our names." With that, I called up Doctors Hospital. There I was referred to a physician, who told me just what I wanted to know.

How would Emergency Hospital have responded if, say, somebody had accidentally taken poison, and sombody had telephoned to ask the proper antidote? Would the response have been, "We don't give first-aid information over the telephone. Bring the patient in"? Perhaps dead.

Legalistic Reasoning

The sort of legalistic reasoning used by Justice James W. Morris in dismissing the OPA case against the Wright Beef Co.—as reported in The Post of July 12—is one of the reasons laymen have contempt for much judicial procedure. Under such reasoning, every time the head of a Government agency is changed, the new head would immediately be expected to review all pending legal actions to give his approval to continuing previous actions of the agency. To the layman, it would seem that if Congress did not wish previous legal actions to continue, Congress would so specify.

Pronunciation of "Monticello"

A letter from Robert S. Porter, Tonawanda, N. Y., appears in The Post of July 11 in regard to the pronunciation of Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson.

As the great-great-great granddaughter of Thomas Jefferson, I can speak authoritatively as to the correct pronunciation of Monticello. Mr. Jefferson pronounced the word with the Italian "c"—"Mont-i-chel-lo"—the same "c" which is used in the word 'violoncello" (often called "chel-lo").

Thomas Jefferson knew the Italian language. From 1784 to 1789, he was Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States to France. During this period he traveled in Italy and later, in order to start the cultivation of grapes in Albemarle County, Virginia, he brought a number of Italian vine growers to this country.

There is no question as to the fact that Thomas Jefferson used the Italian pronunciation in the name of his home. I was much pleased to hear President Truman and most of the radio broadcasters say — correctly — "Mont-i-chel-lo" in the recent July 4 celebration. I am sorry that Mr. Noah Webster made a mistake in his dictionary; but, of course, he was a New Englander, and, in the days in which he lived, New England was a long way from Virginia.

The descendants of Thomas Jefferson, all of whom have, for many generations, tried to inform the public as to the correct pronunciation of "Monticello" will appreciate it if Mr. Porter, broadcasters, lexicographers, and all others will grant to Thomas Jefferson the right to the pronunciation which he himself always used.

OLIVIA TAYLOR.
Washington.

Every Virginian of any education knows the name is "Montichello."

As if this were not enough, Mr. Porter goes on to make an analogy, stating that musicians in their efforts to Italianize the word "violincello" have fallen into the same error. However, he goes off the beam in that respect because the name is violoncello with an "o" as the fifth letter instead of an "i." Therefore, the pronunciation is "Vee-o-lon-chello".

JOHN EDWIN GROSCUP.
Washington.

Mr. Porter's pronunciation is the reasonable one, not for his reasons, but because it is the natural pronunciation for an American who sees the name printed for the first time. Had Jefferson so chosen, he might have spelled the name of his home as "Montichello". What has this to do with "desecration"?

World Health Problem

By Malvina Lindsay

Neurotic Nations

GOVERNMENTS are getting together to check smallpox, malaria, typhus, other diseases that don't respect national boundaries. This may lead eventually to concerted attack on the more serious epidemics rampant in the world—the national delusions, hysterias, and phobias that breed war.

Control of the physical diseases common to humanity has been stressed in recent congressional hearings on the bill to have this country participate in the World Health Organization, which 63 nations say they want to join. This agency, whose director is a celebrated psychiatrist, may be expected to go further. It is now understood to be laying the groundwork for a world conference next year in London to tackle the knotty problem of humanity's immature and diseased thinking.

Attack on this will have to be slow and cautious—even though Mars is breathing down the necks of the psychiatrists. For peoples of all countries are fanatically devoted to their national prejudices and fears. And treatment of these depends largely on catching the patients early enough, preferably before the age of 8.

YET THE results of not catching them are revealed strikingly in Nuremberg Diary, a study of Nazi leaders by Dr. G. M. Gilbert, prison psychologist at Nuernberg jail. It pictures the schizophrenic Hans Frank (butcher of Jews) the neurotically obsessed Strecher, and the "pathological egotist" Goering. Hitler's obsessions, growing out of his frustrated youth, are of course common knowledge.

An even more serious problem to which the pooled professional intelligence of the World Health Organization might bring help is the prevention of mass mental illness in a nation. For almost any nation may fall mentally sick. Germany, in the opinion of some authorities, suffered what is popularly called a nervous breakdown after its defeat in World War I and its failure in reconstruction. It has also been diagnosed as a victim of a national fear psychosis under Hitler's diseased leadership.

A national group under certain conditions may become inferiority ridden, obsessed by secret guilt or delusions of grandeur, say authorities on mass behavior. According to Dr. George M. Stratton, author of International Delusions, every nation clings to three cherished ideas; that it is the most peace-loving of all nations, that its armaments are for defense only and will never be used for attack, and that its wars are all righteous ones. Every nation's legacy from its tribal ancestors is the firm faith that it is alone upright in a world of knaves.

THE MORE isolated and backward a nation the more likely it is to be childishly fearful and emotionally immature in its international behavior, and to have suspicious tribal concepts of the rest of the world. Hence any world effort toward better international health will always contend with the backward pull of peoples unable to recognize and deal with their own immaturity or phobias.

Yet in the past, families, tribes, clans, cities, states were able to overcome their delusions concerning each other and get together to attain order and safety. Out of this grew nations. The big problem now is how to calm down the fanatical nationalist and get his exaggerated love of country into line with a wider loyalty to a larger community of human beings.

It is unlikely this can be done quickly. For even in the United States, where many citizens are supposedly well informed, efforts failed in Congress to get the study of man (social sciences) included in the National Science Foundation bill. Legislators in committee were willing to approve advance in technology, but not in human relations.

However, if the World Health Organization extends its exchange of information on diseases to those of a mental nature, and brings together researchers and students in this field from all countries, peoples of the world are bound to hear more and learn more about the war virus within themselves, and to seek its antidote.

Closed Immigration

The gravest problem which confronts America is not that of trusts or labor unions or tariff revision or crime or prohibition. It is that raised by the multitudes of foreign born who come to our country with ideals and ideas of human rights and human freedom alien and hostile to those of America. The size of the stream of immigration is itself a menace, and the gates should be closed to every class, race and color, for the next 10 years.

The fact that aliens settle for the most part in largely congested centers of population makes the problem more serious. Plague spots are thus packed with peril. Crime centers become saturated with undesirables. Many of these newcomers belong to strains that do not easily assimilate. They are stubborn in their resistance of American customs and cling with a dogged tenacity to the very evils from which they flee.

I favor feeding them, and sheltering them, but not permitting these 400,000 to come to our shores. We have thousands of Latin Americans crossing our border in Texas, illegally. Others from Puerto Rico and the West Indies are slipping in. Some have found their way into our large cities and are working as American citizens. This is no reflection on the [illegible] work being done by our [illegible] agents, but we do need a [illegible]r check of these aliens in Amer[illegible].

Naval Air Record

A Communication

BURIED DEEP in a small article in The Post of July 8 was the briefest mention of the contents of one of the most authoritative and revealing documents on the Pacific war. This was the report of the Joint Army-Navy Assessment Committee assigning credit among the several services for the destruction of all Japanese naval and merchant vessels sunk during the war.

The burial of this news was not the fault of The Post, but was another of the brilliant feats which give rise to the suspicion that Navy public relations men do not have sense enough to come in out of the rain. The committee's report was published by the Navy Department as 180 pages of dull tables, with utterly no explanatory text, and was apparently released to the press without explanation, expansion, or comment on its contents. No newspaperman could be expected to turn into a tabulating machine to figure out what the report said.

One would hardly know from this treatment of a report which shows so conclusively the Navy's wartime achievements that the Navy is engaged in a great struggle with the Air Force over theories, weapons and methods of warfare. Or that the joint committee had spent innumerable months of work to reach its unanimous and proven findings for the principal purpose of shedding light on which weapons and methods were successful. Nor, from the principal emphasis given in the report to submarines, would one be able readily to discover how naval aviation stacked up against the Army Air Forces, which is the heart of the inter-service struggle. I have extracted some data on this point from the report, and present it herewith.

THE PACIFIC war was a sea and air war. The major Japanese strategic target was the shipping on which the empire depended for its industrial life. It is highly relevant, therefore, to a study of the relative effectiveness of the various services' weapons in strategic warfare to study their relative achievements in the war against Japanese shipping.

The United States Navy sank 78 per cent of all Japanese ship tonnage lost, the Army Air Forces 15 per cent. The Navy sank 87 per cent of all Japanese warship tonnage lost, the Army Air Forces 6 per cent. The Navy sank 87 per cent of all Japanese tanker tonnage lost, the Air Forces 7 per cent. Forty-five per cent of all Air Force merchant ship sinkings were in the last six months of the war, after the Jap merchant fleet, largely destroyed by the Navy, had already been forced back to its home waters. Most of the Air Force tanker sinkings were in the last few months of the war when the Japanese no longer had access to their oilfields.

Most of the Navy sinkings were by submarines, which accounted for over half of the Jap tankers and other merchant ships sunk, plus 30 per cent of the warships, or specifically for over 5 million tons of Japanese vessels. It should not be necessary to labor further the submarine contribution to the war; sinking ships was their job, and they did it magnificently with a relative handful of men. What is more important is to compare the respective contributions of naval aviation and the Army Air Forces, to see what lessons may be found therein.

CARRIER AIRCRAFT sank single-handed 40 per cent of the Japanese navy's tonnage. Combined with other forces they sank about 875,000 tons of Japanese warships, or 48 per cent of the total lost. Carrier aircraft were in on the sinking of six battleships, 13 cruisers, 13 carriers, 29 destroyers, and 13 submarines. Of these 79 major vessels the carrier planes polished off 62 without assistance, including five battleships, 10 cruisers and 10 carriers.

Army aircraft were credited with a full or partial share in the destruction of only 22 vessels of the same classes; in only eight of these cases were they unassisted, and all eight of these were destroyers, the smallest of these classes of vessels. Army aircraft did not strike the major blow that sank a single enemy battleship, cruiser or carrier (as against 23 for our carrier planes), though they assisted in five of the sinkings of these heavy ships. Even the Navy and Marine land-based planes had as good a record against warships as Army planes; they sank four destroyers and four submarines unassisted, and were a major factor in the sinking of four battleships and cruisers.

United States Navy carrier aircraft sank 76 Japanese tankers, amounting to nearly 400,000 tons. Army aircraft sank less than one fourth this tonnage. The carrier sinkings, furthermore, were concentrated in the period from February, 1944, to January, 1945, and thus exerted maximum effect on curtailing the Japanese fuel supply at the time most critical for Japan. During this period carrier planes sank 15 times the tanker tonnage destroyed by Air Force planes.

IT WAS during this same period that the Japanese merchant marine as a whole was taken off the high seas. It was the cumulative injury suffered during this period that induced thoughtful Japanese leaders to begin work for surrender before the B-29 raids first began—because they saw that with their shipping reduced to a fraction their military and industrial machine was already crippled beyond hope of recovery. This is attested by reports of the strategic bomb survey.

In this important 12-month period the Army Air Forces accounted for only 306,000 tons of Japanese merchant vessels, or one-thirteenth of the total sunk by all forces. Carrier aircraft sank 191,000 tons in two days at Truk, and 100,000 tons at Palau six weeks later, to equal the Air Forces year total during the first two months of the 12.

It is commonly regarded that the capture of the Phillipines marked the complete military and strategic defeat of the Japanese. This campaign lasted from September, 1944, through January, 1945. During this period 1,975,000 tons of Japanese merchant shipping were sunk, but only eight per cent of this by the Air Forces.

During this same five-month period carrier planes, alone or in cooperation with surface ships, sank 787,000 tons of merchant shipping in the Philippines, against 105,000 tons by Far East Air Force; 322,000 tons of enemy warships against 32,000 tons by FEAF. The carrier forces sank over 100,000 tons of shipping at Manila on September 21-22 alone, the same amount again on November 13-14, and 158,000 tons in the China Sea on January 12 alone. The most credited to the Far East Air Forces in any entire month is 57,000 tons of merchant and naval vessels.

IT IS FROM the Far East Air Forces, led during the war by General Kenney, that have come the most strident claims of Air Force superiority in the war at sea. Let us examine the record. From the beginning of the war through January 1945—38 months—the Far East Air Forces were credited with sinking only 330,000 tons of merchant shipping unassisted, plus some 40,000 tons with the assistance of other forces. This total was far exceeded by the carrier forces in the three months of September to November 1944 alone.

The Far East Air Force record against major Japanese warships is negligible: 4 destroyers sunk unassisted, 7 with the help of other forces, plus Air Force assists in the sinking of two light cruisers damaged in the Leyte battle. And a host of small patrol craft, but no submarines.

The principal FEAF claim to fame was the attack on the convoy off Lae in March 1943. The whole available air force was thrown into this battle against approximately 25 ships, most or all of which the Air Force claimed to have sunk. This tonnage was far exceeded by naval aircraft on each of over 20 different days during the war.

THE LESSONS to be drawn from the foregoing are these:

1. Army Air Forces claims and statements may generally be taken with a large grain of salt.

2. Navy claims, particularly aviation claims made through the lackadaisical surface-minded Navy public relations organization, can safely be considered conservative.

3. Naval carrier forces, being highly mobile, can penetrate deep into enemy territory to seek out the most important and vulnerable targets. Air Forces planes are tied to land bases, which can be moved forward only very slowly and with difficulty. A major reason for the Army Air Force failure to destroy much shipping, particularly tankers, was the inability of Air Force planes (other than heavy bombers whose accuracy was seldom adequate to hit targets as small as ships) to reach this shipping. This was particularly true in the Philippines campaign, when Far East Air Force immobility was embarrassing. The carrier force had repeatedly to attack Japanese reinforcements enroute to Leyte, with which the Air Force could not cope from its limited bases ashore. This resulted in delaying for three months the first Navy attacks on Tokyo.

4. Naval carrier planes are capable of attacking small, fast-moving targets such as ships with great accuracy and efficiency. This efficiency was so great that naval aviation's sucessful campaign against Japanese warships and major merchant vessels required only 10 per cent of the total attacks made by naval planes.

5. These factors of mobility and accuracy are applicable not only to attacks on shipping but to attacks on all types of small land targets located on or near coasts, including vital strategic targets such as bridges, power stations, rocket launching sites, and camouflaged or partly buried factories, which cannot be seen or hit accurately by high-altitude Army long-range bombers. These are the targets of tomorrow's war.

6. These facts are pertinent to the unification controversy, and to the struggle over methods of warfare which will continue even under unification. It is no secret that the Air Forces wish and intend to restrict the development and employment of naval aircraft, by one means or another, in directions that will prevent the full application of their potentialities to the strategic and atomic air warfare needs of the future.

For many purposes naval planes and methods are superior for strategic attack to those of Air Force bombers. Naval aviators fear, the Air Force enthusiasm in behalf of unification confirms, and the private statements of Army airmen illuminate the intent, that the present unification bill is designed as a major means of facilitating this restriction. Army airmen generally affect contempt for naval aviation. The figures quoted herein suggest that this affected contempt may well be aired by an Air Force feeling of inferiority to naval aviation in some of the more important aspects of air warfare, or by an equally dangerous ignorance of the comparative capabilities of the two air services.

Washington Calling

Atomic Security And Democracy

DURING THE war and for a year and a half afterward, responsibility for atomic security was divided, with the Army supervising all military personnel and with the Federal Bureau of Investigation acting at the request of the Army where civilians were concerned. This made for jealousies which have continued under civilian control by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Childs

The division was shown in an episode which occurred in October, 1946. A former sailor went to the Baltimore News-Post and offered to sell for $7000 what he said was a photograph of the atomic bomb. The newspaper promptly telephoned FBI headquarters in Washington, detaining the former sailor on the pretext that his offer was under consideration until FBI agents arrived. This happened while the Army still was in control of the atomic project.

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover commended the News-Post for acting so promptly in a matter so vital to national security. Then came the question whether the former sailor should be prosecuted.

Hoover favored presecution. He believed an example should be set to deter others. Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, then head of the atomic project, ruled against prosecution, insisting that to show photographs to a jury would further endanger atomic secrecy. He maintained this attitude even though the FBI recovered copies of the supposed photograph of the bomb in three different States.

THE HUSH-HUSH attitude, which runs counter to the opinion of scientists familiar with atomic fission, is aparently based on the belief that the average layman looking at a diagram, a photograph or scientific notes could pass on to someone else valuable knowledge about atomic energy. Actually the subject is so enormously complicated that only a very few specialists are equipped to comprehend such data.

The question of prosecution is nevertheless a delicate one. On June 9, Hoover recommended prosecution of the two former Army sergeants arrested this past weekend. For four weeks, lawyers of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Justice debated the question. Finally, on July 7, before the New York Sun broke the story of an atomic leak at Oak Ridge which was denied by all authorities concerned with atomic energy, Attorney General Tom C. Clark ordered the men prosecuted.

Here is the vital issue: Can we fit control of this overwhelming new power into the framework of our democratic institutions? That is what the Atomic Energy Commission is seeking to do with the aid of the FBI.

Its task is being made doubly difficult by what appears to be a deliberate campaign to discredit the commission. The objective is to restore control to the Army, which would then presumably exercise a dictatorship over the greatest force on earth.

BOTH IN Congress and within the commission, the belief is growing that General Groves has encouraged this campaign. At the time that control passed from the Army to the civilian commission, every effort was made to pay tribute to Groves for the enormously important work of organization he did on the Manhattan Project. But Groves' admirers reflect what may be his own inner conviction that only he can be entrusted with the preservation of the "secret."

Other recent news stories gave prominence to communism in connection with the atomic energy project. While this occurred while the military was still in control, that fact is not brought out and the casual reader is left with the impression that it happened under the civilian commission.

The real threat to our security lies deeper than the sensational talk of secrets and spies. Our scientific progress depends on perhaps a hundred key men. They are men of genius and intellect, with sensitive minds. They will not—cannot may be a better word, in view of their temperament and bent—work in a concentration camp with Congress and the Army sitting outside the door.

The American experts who investigated why Germany had made so little advance in atomic research concluded that one of their chief reasons was the Nazi dictatorship. Despising the mind and men of the mind, the Nazis put their scientists in a gilded cage and said, "Now, produce for us."

In Soviet Russia, the cage is even more cushy and padded. Russia's distinguished scientists—and many, particularly of the older generation, have true distinction—are showered with privileges. But still it is a cage.

Our heritage is freedom for all peoples, freedom for the mind. This has made us great. It sometimes seems that there are forces in the American life bent on destroying it.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Special Session Choice

*PRESIDENT HARRY TRU-*MAN and Secretary of State George C. Marshall a few days ago conferred at some length at the White House on the difficult and immensely critical decision which now faces them. They must decide whether or not a special session of the Congress is to be called in the autumn.

No final decision was made at the White House conference, for the choice which confronts Truman and Marshall is not an easy one. They must carefully balance the growing urgency of decisive American action in Europe against the very serious political dangers inherent in a special session.

If nothing is done about the Marshall program before the regular session starts on January 1, it will be little short of miraculous, on the basis of past performance, if the congressional mind is made up before March or April, 1948. And it is possible that by then it will merely be a question of slamming the barn door shut after the European horse is stolen. Therefore the State Department technicians are already engaged on as careful a preliminary assessment as is possible so long before the event, of the risks involved in such a delay.

IN THIS ASSESSMENT, the two key points are, of course, Italy and France. If economic chaos forces either country into the arms of the Communists and the Soviet Union, the Russians will have come very close to winning the whole European contest. Of the two, the Italian situation is considered the most immediately critical.

Some optimists believe that the mere hope of eventual support under the Marshall program may alone be enough to steady the Italian economy and halt the flight from the lira. But most of the experts make the informed guess—it is no more than a guess—that Italy must have some sort of help before next February 1 if a full-scale economic and political explosion is to be averted.

These men point to the fact that there is not much more than 100 million dollars left in the Italian dollar exchange kitty, while the dollar deficit for this year alone will probably be three or four times that amount. They point also to the fact that Palmiro Togliatti's Communist Party has already declared open psychological warfare against the Italian non-Communist majority. The Italian Communists recently decided by a slim majority to eschew temporarily the use of violence to gain their ends. But Togliatti himself made it clear that this was a temporary decision, capable of being reversed at any time. The non-Communist Italian government thus operates in the shadow of the submachine gun.

THE FRENCH dollar position is slightly less pressing than that in Italy. Moreover, if the recently announced World Bank bond issue is successful, France stands to gain another quarter billion dollars of credit in the fall. Thus it is believed that France could probably squeak by until early spring without greatly reducing essential American imports. But here again any assessment must be made at least as much in political as in economic terms.

The Communists who control the General Confederation of Labor have threatened the French government with a general strike of the miserably underpaid French civil servants. Such a strike, if at all prolonged, would of course reduce the government of France to a shambles. The price of averting it, the Communists have made clear, is Communist participation in the government. It is not a price which the Ramadier government is prepared to pay. Thus a great test of strength is probable in the near future.

One key is the government workers themselves. The Communist intention is quite clear—to make French participation in the Marshall plan impossible. If the civil servants, underpaid as they are, nevertheless show signs of unwillingness thus to play the Soviet game, the Communists are expected to back down, rather than risk their hold on the Confederation of Labor. But under any circumstances, the Communists will certainly continue to exert all the immense political and psychological pressure at their disposal to wreck the Marshall program.

THUS THE decision which confronts Truman and Marshall is a question of the most exquisite timing. For there is no doubt at all that the whole idea of a special session is profoundly unpopular on Capitol Hill. Nor are the full political implications of the Marshall program generally understood. It is not just a question of allocating the necessary funds. For the present Congress, hating executive authority, will necessarily be asked to grant great authority to an American agency to control allocations and export priorities on the essential goods.

It will certainly be asked, for example, to permit the chartering to foreign governments of Liberty and Victory ships. This would permit, over a period of time, the saving of as much as a billion in dollar exchange in carrying charges to such governments. But it would also vastly irritate both the powerful shipping interests and the maritime unions.

Obviously it will not be easy under any circumstances to persuade Congress to do what must be done if the Marshall program is to work. It will be doubly difficult if the Congressmen feel that they have been badgered and bludgeoned by an unfeeling Administration into leaving their political fences at home all unmended.

On Capitol Hill itself, a possible compromise has been advanced. It has been suggested that only the members of the two foreign affairs committees, and possibly of a couple of other key committees, return to Washington for hearings on the Marshall proposal and the Europeans' response to it. This might save weeks of precious time. Perhaps this suggestion offers the best solution of the enormously difficult choice which confronts President Truman and Secretary Marshall.

Rents at Pelham Courts Go Up Average of 9½% for 53 Units

Average 9½ per cent rent increases for 53 apartment units at Pelham Courts, 2115 P st. nw., were announced yesterday by Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell.

The increase will mean about $3060 more rents each year to the owner, Mrs. Allene Barrett. She had sought a $4830 boost to cover increased operating and maintenance costs and highere taxes.

New monthly rents will be up $3 for one room and bath, formerly $30 to $35; $4 for one and one-half room and bath, formerly $40 to $42.50; $5 for two and one-half rooms and bath, formerly $47.50 to $55; and $7 for three and one-half rooms and bath, formerly $70 to $75.

Edward R. Raigler, attorney for a group of tenants, said last night he planned to meet with them soon to discuss a possible appeal to Rent Control Administrator Cogswell. The appeal must be filed within ten days or the rent boost will go into effect.

The case was heard May 9 by Examiner Ernest F. Williams, who has since been named general counsel for the board. John J. Carmody represent the landlord.

Arlington Apartment Tenants Plan Protests

Tenants in several Arlington apartment developments have planned protest meetings against rent boosts allowed by the Housing and Rent Act of 1947.

Lee Gardens residents meet tonight at 8:30 at the Lyon Park Community Center; Buckingham residents at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Bethel Temple, while Fillmore Gardens tenants will gather at the Patrick Henry School at 8 p. m. next Monday.

Residents of Kaywood Gardens in Mt. Rainier, Md., meanwhile, have been asked to sign leases calling for a 10 per cent jump in rental before August 1.

Nathan Habid, who lives in the development, said tenants were planning an organization to combat the proposed increase.

According to Habid, Kaywood Gardens charges "the highest rent for any project in the Washington area," with $29.50 asked for an efficiency unit, $60 to $65 for one-bedroom units, and $70 to $75 for two bedroom apartments.

House Passes Loyalty Bill

said he was unwilling to have any Attorney General to define for him what is subversive. Such a provision, he declared, "is wrong and dangerous in principle." He said the Attorney General could declare the Republican or the Democratic Party to be subversive.

The House finally accepted a single amendment offered by Representative Keating (R., N. Y.) which would require the proposed loyalty board to make decisions on the basis of a "preponderance of evidence" rather than on "reasonable doubt." However, this change was made to only one section of the bill and the "reasonable doubt" policy appears elsewher in the measure.

The "sympathetic association" phase was attacked by a score of members, Representative Holifield (D., Calif.) said it would lead to a "tremendous witch-hunt." Representative Javits (R., N. Y.) warned it would lead to "thought control" of Federal workers. He challenged anyone to define the words.

Communist Issue Debated

Representative Mundt (R., S. Dak.) defended the controversial words. A member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, he said the bill would be weakened if the words were stricken since Communists in this country have many times more sympathizers than they do actual party members.

A charge that the bill would lay the groundwork for a red-baiting smear of the Democratic Party in next year's presidential campaign was made by Representative Sabath (D., Ill.), an ardent New Dealer. His claim was echoed by Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) who said the Republicans had been shouting and hunting Communists for the past 14 years but that they were really after New Deal Democrats.

She went on to say that the bill would make two million Federal workers the "whipping boy" of the two political parties.

Representative Vursell (R., Ill.) took the position that the bill would be a "great favor" to the vast majority of Federal workers who he said were loyal beyond doubt. He said they would be able to walk with their heads high as they would be cleared of suspicion.

Bill Declared Unconstitutional

A different view was taken by Representative Carroll (D., Colo.), who described the measure as a "bill of attainder" and predicted that no court in the land would uphold it. Representative Hobbs (D., Ala.) said the bill would not accomplish its objective to run Communists out of the Federal service. He said it was an "ex post facto" and that it would be thrown out by the courts since it lays down new rules in the middle of the game for people now in Government. Representative Johnson (D., Okla.) said the bill proposes the ugly star-chamber system of Communist Russia to get rid of the Comunists in Government. He, too, said it would be thrown out by the courts.

Briefly, the bill provides for a loyalty check on each Federal worker to be conducted by the FBI. The Civil Service Commission is given authority to make a loyalty check on each applicant about to be hired by a Federal agency.

When either FBI or Civil Service develops "derogatory" evidence, the case is to be turned over to an independent five-man loyalty board to be created by the bill. This board would be given the power to recommend disposition of the case, and an annual report would be sent to both the President and Congress on cases where the agency heads failed to follow the board's recommendations.

Lyle Urges Truman Plan

Representative Lyle (D., Tex.) urged the House to approve the President's loyalty plan. He said it would be impossible for a single five-man board to dispose of the estimated 60,000 cases it would be called on to decide in its first year of operation.

Earlier, the House Rules Committee gave its unanimous approval to the compromise Stevenson retirement bill which would increase pensions and provide other benefits for Federal workers. The bill will be called up for debate in the House next week.

The Senate Civil Service Committee gave its approval to the House-approved Jones bill which would permit an employe who has less than 10 years of service to withdraw his money from the Civil Service retirement system when he leaves the Federal service.

Cab Drivers Protest Rates

Opposition to Montgomery County's new taxicab ordinance broke out in Bethesda, Md., yesterday as more than 100 cab drivers lined up to fight for "more just" zones and fares.

Enforcement of the law, however, which became effective yesterday, was postponed by Albert E. Condadis, county public agent, until copies of the new zones and rates are available.

He said he hoped they would be ready for distribution by August 1.

Ignore New Rate

The protesting drivers, members of four Bethesda cab companies, were operating as usual, refusing to abide by the prescribed 25-cent rate in the Bethesda business area.

James H. Pugh, former State's Attorney who has been retained by the four companies, said an early effort would be made to "try to work it out."

But if a conference with Conradis seeking "fairer and more just" zones and fares is unsuccessful, he warned, court action will be taken.

Say Law Conflicts

He said the group wil attack the constitutionality of the ordinance and contend that the ordinance is in conflict with the State motor vehicle law.

Principal complaint of the hackers, Pugh said, is the 25-cent fare in the Bethesda business district. Ninety-five per cent of the business is in the commercial area, he said, and the cab operators feel they cannot afford to remain in business under that rate.

The four complaining cab companies are Suburban, Bethesda, Community, and We Cab.

Ask Fee Reduction

Jack Bigelow, of We Cab, pointed out that the new rule requires the cabs to carry passengers two miles in the first zone for 25 cents and then return without fares, with cruising prohibited, to their stand.

Pugh stated that the hackers wanted the license fee for cabs reduced to $25, the drivers' licenses reduced to $5, and the 25-cent rate upped to 50 cents.

Late yesterday, Conradis said he was "sympathetic" to the reduced fare proposal in Bethesda, but added he would defer judgment on other proposed changes pending the conference with Pugh.

Montgomery Authorizes Bids On New School Construction

An authorization to advertise bids for approximately three million dollars in Montgomery County school construction was granted the Board of Education yesterday by the county commissioners.

It was disclosed by County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr that Dr. Edwin W. Broome, school superintendent, had submitted on April 30 a list of needed construction totaling $2,675,500.

McNayr said the commissioners had told Dr. Broome to proceed with advertising three million dollars worth and when the estimates were approved by both boards, a bond issue would be made to cover the costs.

Included in the three-million-dollar figure is a $190,000 item for purchase of sites for new schools, Dr. Broome said.

A request by J. Bond Smith, attorney for the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, that the Commissioners guarantee $300,000 in bonds for the planning body was taken under advisement.

Two prominent builders, J. A. Watson and R. Bates Warren, appeared to protest recent unfavorable zoning decisions. The Commissioners promised to consider the requests for rehearings.

A recommendation by George E. Keneipp, director of vehicles and traffic for Washington, that Baltimore ave. from Fenton st. to Ellsworth st., Silver Spring, be closed, was approved by the commisisoners.

A parking lot operated by the county is planned for the area situated diagonally opposite the new Hecht Co. store.

Salary increases from $4250 to $5000 annually for Wilton T. Allen, supervisor of assessments, and J. O. Harvey, county road supervisor, were announced.

The board also authorized a survey of communities adjoining the boundaries of Rockville, which will determined the cost of installing sewer lines to the more than 300 homes involved.

First Md. Sales Tax Warrant Accuses Ocean City Vendor

The first warrant charging violation of Maryland's 2 per cent sales tax has been sworn out against a frozen custard vendor, enforcement officials in Baltimore announced yesterday.

The announcement came while Walter E. Kennedy, chief of Maryland's retail sales tax division, was seeking cooperation from Washington merchants doing business in Maryland. He spent the day in the offices of the Washington Board of Trade interpreting the tax for about 50 merchants who stopped in to ask questions.

Kennedy explained that doing business in Maryland meant having a branch store over the line or running delivery trucks into the State. Merchants doing business this way are responsible for collecting a use tax, a companion to the sales tax, he said.

In announcing the first crackdown on Maryland merchants avoiding collection of the sales tax, the enforcement office said that the vendor, who operates on the boardwalk at Ocean City, had been warned four times to take out a collector's license and collect the tax. The warrant, they said, named Benjamin Shoemaker and the Kohr Brothers, a York, Pa., firm. They are to appear today before Magistrate James B. Robbins at Ocean City.

In answering questions of Washington merchants Kennedy said that:

When goods are delivered into Maryland by comon carrier the purchaser and not the seller is responsible for seeing that the use tax is paid.

In installment sales the merchant has the choice of collecting as installments are paid or of collecting the entire tax when the sale is made. His policy, though, must be consistent.

Kennedy said he is pleased with the cooperation he is receiving from Washington merchants and will return to the city to answer further questions if there is a demand.

Meanwhile, the newly formed Consumers Antisales Tax Association in Arlington named a five-member "interim executive committee" to fight any attempt at introduction of sales tax legislation in the Virginia Assembly when it meets next January.

J. Maynard Magruder will head the committee with Judson Reamy, jr., as secretary. Other members are Paul Hill, Charles Toone and George S. McKenzie. The group was organized in a meeting Monday night sponsored by the Clarendon Business Association.

Guest speaker Robert I. Black, president of the Maryland Economic Council, Inc., said sales-tax legislation had been passed and signed in Maryland "before the business people had a chance to organize and fight it." He warned Virginians to take immediate steps to block such legislation.

Another speaker, Col. Christopher Garrett, chairman of the Arlington County Planning Board, termed the sales tax "unsound and uneconomical," and added that it placed an undue tax burden on low and medium income groups.

Colombia Quake Damage Severe

Bogota, Colombia, July 15 (AP).—Widespread damage was caused by yetserday's violent earthquake at Pasto, but only seven of the city's 50,000 inhabitants were reported injured. No fatalities were recorded.

Damage was estimated at one million pesos (about $580,000).

Rep. Rayfiel Opposed for U. S Judge as 'Inexperienced'

Two bar association spokesmen yesterday called Representative Leo F. Rayfiel (D., N. Y.) a political choice for the Federal bench in New York.

Both said Rayfiel was an honest, smart, hard working man, but they said he did not have enough experience in law to be a judge, and urged a Senate Judiciary subcommittee to turn him down.

Rayfiel has the backing of 15 or 20 New Yorkers, who have written the subcommittee, and of President Truman, who nominated him. He is due to go before the subcommittee himself tomorrow.

Jackson A. Dykman, chairman of the New York State Bar committee on judicial selection, told the subcommittee he thought Rayfiel's nme was urged on Mr. Truman for strictly political reasons. He said Rayfiel went to law school two years—1906 to 1908—but did not graduate and was not admitted to the bar until 1918.

Then he had just an office practice until he was elected to the Legislature in 1934. He came to Congress in 1944. Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) roke in to say he knew of men who had to support themselves and their families who took years to qualify for the bar. McCarren said he did not think they ought to be penalized.

Besides that, McCarran added, bar investigations do not seem to give much weight to good horse sense. Dykman said they did, and that he himself did not like to try cases before former professors.

Senator Cooper (R., Ky.) said he thought the protest ought to be backed up by some facts.

An Appeal to the American Congress . . .

Don't Let It Happen Again!

IS THE Congress again going to pass a law which will cause economic upheaval, serious depression and chaos in Cuba? Will history repeat itself?

The United States is now supporting the economic systems of a number of European countries! Is it wise to pass a law which will so disrupt the economic system of your self-supporting good neighbor Cuba as to make chaos inevitable?

The Senate will consider this week a bill, S. 1584, which would cut in half the amount of sugar which Cuba is now permitted to supply to the United States. In turn, this bill increases the quota allotted to production of subsidized sugar grown in the United States by over 50%.

Price Increase for U. S. Consumers

Representative John Flannagan of Virginia termed this legislation a grab by the "sugar trust" which will keep sugar prices high and extract $300,000,000.00 more from the American consumer. Secretary of State George C. Marshall has expressed his support for a substantial quota of Cuba's basic export commodity.

History has shown us what happened in the past. When the Smoot-Hawley Tariff law was passed, increasing the tariff on Cuban sugar, exports of sugar to the U. S. were drastically reduced. Wages fell as low as 20c a day and ground corn husk was the only food for a large proportion of the people. Naturally, purchases of goods from the United States were drastically curtailed. For every dollar paid for Cuba's sugar by the U. S., 75c is spent for U. S. goods.

Cuba Faces a Needless Depression

During the war, Cuba was encouraged to increase her sugar acreage to meet U. S. needs. Neither domestic U. S. production or the Philippines or Hawaii, thousands of miles away, could produce enough to fill the need for sugar, molasses, and alcohol. Today, Cuba is supplying 60% of U. S. sugar needs, as compared to the previous quota of 28.6%; in the new bill now before Congress, Cuba's quota is again being forced down to 28.6%, thus making a depression in Cuba inevitable.

The U. S. Endangers Its Cuban Trade

Cuba's purchases from the United States last year were $272,000,000.00, a figure much greater in value than the market price of the additional sugar which this bill proposes to grow in the United States with the help of subsidies. Liberalizaton of the sugar quota for Cuba has been urged by the American Chamber of Commerce of Cuba, which includes American business firms widely known in the United States as processors of foodstuffs, and manufacturers of finished goods.

Congress Can Assist Cuba to Economic Stability

It is for these reasons that we, the workers of Cuba, appeal to the Congress of the United States to set the sugar quota at least at 50% of United States consumption to permit your good neighbor to avoid economic chaos. This will assure a large volume of exports of American goods to our country and help maintain employment and decent living standards for both Cuba and America.

Irregularity Marks Stock Price Trend

New York, July 15 (AP).—The climbing stock market today suffered its second average dip in 14 straight sessions although the retreat was far from unanimous and assorted favorites continued to post new highs for the year or longer.

Irregularly lower tendencies ruled from the start. There was a comeback rally around midday and again in the final hour with short covering and mild investment demand propping motors and special issues. While gainers were plentiful at the close, declines predominated. Dealings slowed at intervals and transfers for the full proceedings tapered to 1,180,000 shares from Monday's 1,660,000 which were a peak since May 19. It was the tenth successive day in which the million mark was exceeded.

Brokerage customers generally inclined to trim accounts on the idea two months of climbing prices, with the industrials at a top since last August, called for a sizable technical correction. Doubts regarding European affairs and domestic tax relief chilled enthusiasm. Inflationary psychology and the plethora of idle hours seeking yields served as an antiliquidating argument. Dividends and earnings were helpful although there were exceptions here.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at 67.6, first slip since last Wednesday.

Recording tops for 1947 were Hershey Chocolate, up 4 points at 32 on a single 100-share sale following the first extra dividend in several years; Chrysler 1⅛ at 60¼, McGraw Electric, 1½ at 44, United States Lines ⅞ at 22⅝ and Union Pacific ½ at 139½.

Phillips-Jones added 4 at 31 on 500 shares in the wake of a sharp earnings jump. Ahead were General Motors, Hudson Motors, Studebaker, Willys-Overland, Nash-Kelvinator, American Telephone (despite declining net for the June quarter), Santa Fe, Great Northern Railway, Guantanamo Sugar, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Public Service of New Jersey.

Douglas Aircraft conceded 2¼ at 55½ when the concern reported a six-months' loss, compared with a substantial profit a year ago. Down a point or so were U. S. Steel at 75, Bethlehem 90, Youngstown Sheet 68¼, Western Union "A" 23½, Dow Chemical 170⅞, Spencer Kellogg 29½ and U. S. Gypsum 104⅜. Backward were Anaconda, Northern Pacific, North American, Texas Co., Sperry, Du Pont, J. C. Penney, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward and Johns-Manville.

Bonds were uneven.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 15 (AP).—Wheat and corn futures started lower today but soon gained momentum and showed gains of about 5 cents a bushel at the close.

September and December wheat, September, December and May corn and May oats all hit new seasonal highs. July corn equaled its all-time peak of $2.21, established last week.

There was considerable short covering and commission house buying, with wheat strength influenced somewhat by reports of fair flour business. Oats climbed with corn.

Wheat closed 2½ to 4¼ cents higher than the previous finish; July, 2.39¾@2.39. Corn was up 1¾ to 5 cents; July, 2.20½@2.20⅝; and oats were ⅛ off to 1⅛ cents up; July, 1.02@1.01⅞.

November soybeans sold at 2.78, up the 8-cent daily limit. Offerings were light and buyers had to bid up the price.

It was reported from Kansas City that the Government had increased its buying price slightly for July wheat in store at Galveston, but that it had lowered its price slightly for September wheat for gulf shipment.

Corn started lower on selling which traders said was influenced by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson's statement at a news conference yesterday that private reports indicated the corn crop might show considerable improvement over the low Government forecast of 2,612,000,000 bushels, issued as of July 1.

The Government weekly weather and crop report said generally above normal temperatures and abundant sunshine in the main belt had stimulated development of corn, and much improvement was reported. It said that in Nebraska, corn made excellent progress in Iowa, progress and condition were good, and that Illinois corn was mostly fairly good and was growing rapidly.

Yanks Blast Tribe for 15th in Row

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, July 15.—Rocky Graziano, the up-from-the-streets young ruffian who is fighting for the world's middleweight championship tomorrow night, made the magnanimous gesture toward Tony Zale today in the ringside gym.

POVICH

Said Rocky, talking of Zale, "He ain't no slob." It was raffish Rocky's way of admitting that Zale was a pretty good fighter, and there would be nothing easy about tomorrow night's battle.

The characters in the ringside gym included Rocky's brother who similarly acknowledged it would be a tough fight and put it pretty reasonably wid de comment that "The one who gets up off the floor the most times will win it."

The most popular bet is that somebody will win it inside of six rounds. It ended the last time in six with Zale bouncing a left hook off Rocky's chin—his famous two-one punch just after sinking a murderous right under Graziano's heart.

RAY ARCEL, KNOWN as the meat man because he has dragged 11 of Joe Louis's knockout victims back to their corners, flew back from Sweden to attend Zale for this fight. His patchwork on Zale's cut mouth in the third round of the last brawl in September in New York, is credited with keeping Zale in there until the champion could win that one.

Greatest body puncher that ever lived, Arcel says of Zale, and he relates what Billy Soose told him after his last Zale fight. "Zale's right hand to the body is like somebody ramming a red hot poker into you and leaving it there," said Soose.

Arcel's mission tomorrow night will be to stop the blood flow if Graziano opens up Zale's mouth again or rips the scar tissue from the champion's well-marked brows near the eye. Graziano damaged everything but Zale's fighting heart in their last bout, but Zale said today he's sharper now. "Those four years in the Navy made me rusty. I can handle Rocky now."

HOW MUCH THE last fight took out of Zale and what Rocky's reaction to his knockout may be, ought to go far toward determining tomorrow night's winner. Let me take you back to the dressing room scenes following Zale's victory in September.

There was Graziano, knocked out five minutes before, breathing easily, unmarked and apparently unhurt. He looked still full of fight and was talking about a re-match.

In Zale's dressing room, the champion was slumped over a stool, looking like anything but a man who had won a fight. He had to be helped up by his handlers to go to the shower room. He was heaving and puffing, and looking like a beaten old man instead of a guy who had just knocked out Graziano.

"He was too cocky," was all Zale could manage to say. He could have said, too, that in that sixth round, he was simply obeying the impulse of a champion when he saw a challenger standing in front of him with his hands shockingly at his side and his chin within reach.

IT WAS NOTHING NEW for Zale to get up off the floor and win. He had done that against Al Hostak twice, and against Soose and Abrams. His managers, A. M. Pian and Art Winch, were saying today that "the trick is to keep Tony down."

How much did the last Graziano fight take out of Zale, though? If you knew that, you'd know tomorrow night's winner for certain. Rocky must have bounced 50 right hands off Zale's head that night, and Zale at 33 may not rebound from that fierce beating on the night that, paradoxically, he won.

There's a kind of contempt for Graziano in Zale's camp, however. They point out that Rocky was only belting out welterweights of doubtful quality before he finally bumped into a man his size and got bumped out himself.

But the memory of their last brawl lingers. That was the night when the question seemed not to be who would win, but how long the champion would last against the wild-punching Graziano who had him in a bad way, until Zale corrected that impression.

Tigers Jump On Poor Old Nats, 11 to 6

Special to The Post

Detroit, Mich., July 15.—Virgil Trucks stopped the Nats today after they had forced the retirement of two other pitchers, and Detroit gained an 11-6 decision in a twilight game at Briggs Stadium.

The rally that wrecked Washington developed in the sixth inning while Milo Candini was on the mound. Subsequently, the Tigers fattened their lead at the expense of lefthanded Scott Cary.

To the chagrin of 11,378 paying spectators, the Nats opened with an attack that produced three runs off Dizzy Trout in the first inning. Mickey Vernon drove in two with a double and scored the other himself on Cecil Travis' single.

Rae Scarborough, starting pitcher, was not properly appreciative of this early advantage. Three passes and a scratch single by Walter (Hoot) Evers enabled the Tigers to score twice in their half of the first.

Robertson Doubles Run In

The Nats added a run in the second when Sherry Robertson doubled behind a pass to Buddy Lewis, but Detroit promptly tied the count at 4-all. Roy Cullenbine hit his twelfth home run of the season after Eddie Lake had reached third on a fluke triple.

Hal White replaced Trout as the Nats started their third turn at bat. He walked Travis, who raced to third on Gerald Priddy's double and scored on a single by Early Wynn, batting for Scarborough.

Washington was now leading 5 to 4, and Candini held the margin until the sixth when the Tigers grouped five hits for four runs.

Eddie Mayo, Bob Swift and White singled in succession before Lake popped to Vernon for the first out. This proved only temporary relief for the Washington side.

A double by Wakefield, a pass to George Kell and a single by Pat Mullin followed before Evers ended the rally with a foul to Vernon.

Trucks to the Rescue

When Travis and Priddy singled off White in the seventh, the Tigers called Trucks from the bullpen. The Alabama righthander retired the Nats in rotation until the ninth when he walked Vernon, leading off.

Vernon ran to second and then to third without an effort by the Tigers to stop him. He was thus in position to walk home with Washington's last run when Rick Ferrell singled for the only hit off Trucks.

Meanwhile Detroit had completed its scoring in the eighth when Cary yielded two singles, a pass and a triple by Evers. The net result was three surplus runs.

The series continues tomorrow with a double header. Ossie Bluege said the Washington pitchers would be Walter Masterson and Marino Pieretti. The Detroit choices are Harold Newhouser and Stubby Overmire, both lefthanders.

Rocky Cocky, But

Zale Choice To Retain His Crown

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, July 15.—Tony Zale exposes his middleweight championship of the world to the threatening fists of Challenger Rocky Graziano again tomorrow night in Chicago's indoor stadium barely 10 months after their New York brawl that set up the cry of re-match.

The magic names of Zale and Graziano, synonymous with prize ring fury, will draw to the stadium a 20,000 capacity crowd geared to the expectancy of a knockout inside of six of the scheduled 15 rounds.

Zale, the Gary, Ind., steelworker who got up off the floor to save his title against Graziano with a six-round knockout in New York, rules the pre-fight favorite at odds of 13 to 10. At 160 pounds, he will have a four-pound advantage over Graziano, but at 33 he will be conceding eight years to his youthful challenger.

To Chicago has flocked the inveterate fight follower, with Promoter Arthur Wirtz host to five Governors and six United States Senators, who will watch the fight. Former Champions Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and Barney Ross have been on the scene since early in the week.

This Time Zale Stays Down

Zale, the fearful body puncher, whose right hand below Graziano's heart set up the knockout punch in their last battle, took a final limbering-up workout today, but Graziano was content to rest in his hotel. Zale denied that he would have difficulty weighing in at 160 pounds and pointed out that he always worked out the day before a fight.

In Graziano's camp, the challenger and his handlers were bubbling with confidence bordering on cockiness and saying "it won't go two rounds this time. Zale won't get up."

Tomorrow night's battle, grabbed off by Chicago after Graziano was suspended in New York for failing to report a $100,000 bribe offer, is expected to gross $425,000 at the gate, plus an additional $30,000 in radio broadcast rights.

The higher-priced $30 ringside seats were sold out a week ago, and the promoters this morning asserted that less than 2500 seats remained unsold. "They'll go before fight time," it was said.

World Will Know He's Champ

Graziano was unconcerned over the refusal of the New York Boxing Commission to recognize him as champion if he beats Zale. "He'll be the champion in the minds of the whole world," said his handlers.

In Rocky's camp for the past month, his managers have been cautioning him against the recklessness that cost him a knockout last time. That was when Rocky dropped his hands to protect his body and was belted on the chin by the champion.

Zale has been in training for six weeks for tomorrow's bout and declared today, "I'm in better shape than I was the last time when four years in the Navy took something out of me. I feel a lot sharper, and I won't get hit so much."

Asked if he considered Graziano the hardest puncher he ever met, Zale said "Yes, but I can hit, too. Rocky knows that. He's no man to fool around with though. Anyway, I wouldn't want to lose my championship to a guy like him. He's had it too easy, knocking over welterweights. I got my title chance by beating middleweights."

WRC to Broadcast Title Fight at 11

The Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano fight will be heard over Station WRC Wednesday at 11 p. m. (EDT). It will be described by NBC's director of sports, Bill Stern, and veteran sportscaster Sam Taub from the Chicago Stadium.

Taub will provide the blow-by-blow account and Stern will give the between-rounds color description.

Two Homers Help N. Y. Win, 9 to 4

Cleveland, July 15 (AP).—The New York Yankees rolled to their fifteenth straight victory tonight by trampling the Cleveland Indians 9 to 4, in the first half of a twi-night double-header before an estimated crowd of 70,000.

George McQuinn and Joe DiMaggio hit home runs for the Yankees. Allie Reynolds scattered 10 hits for the winners.

Czech Netmen Rout Yugoslavs As Crowd Riots

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, July 15 (AP).—Czechoslovakia completed a clean sweep against Yugoslavia in the European zone Davis Cup finals today as riotous spectators prevented the playing of the final match after the Czechs made it 4-0.

When Jan Smolinsky, third-string Czech player, appeared instead of Bohous Cernik to oppose Josep Palada, Yugoslavia's No. 2 star, the angry spectators took Cernik's failure to appear as an insult. Some 8000 Yugoslavs threw stones, rocks and paper on the court, making it impossible to play.

The spectators would not be appeased by Czech manager's statement that Cernik had injured a leg and was unable to play, and officialls finally declared Czechoslovakia winner of the match by forfeit.

In today's opening match, Jaroslav Drobny defeated the Yugoslav ace, Drago Mitic, 1—6, 6—3, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1, to give the Czechs a 4-0 margin. They had clinched the series with a doubles victory yesterday.

Yanks Advance In French Tennis

Paris, July 15 (AP).—Margaret Osborne of San Francisco, winner of the women's singles title at Wimbledon last month, opened the defense of her French tennis title today by easily defeating Marie Englebert of France, 6—2, 6—3.

Doris Hart of Miami, runner-up at Wimbledon, defeated Mrs. Jacqueline Patorni of Paris, 4—6, 6—0, 6—4. Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of Hidden Valley, Calif., defeated Mrs. A. B. Varin of France, 6—2, 6—2. In doubles Miss Osborne and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., teamed together for a 6—0, 6—1 verdict over Mrs. J. Henry and Mrs. A. Pluemenail of France. Mrs. Todd and Miss Hart, Wimbledon champions, moved to the second round when their opponents failed to appear.

Louis Says He Won't Defend Crown in 1947

New York, July 15 (AP).—Joe Louis and his board of strategy surveyed the mediocre heavyweight stockpile today and announced that the champion would not defend his title in 1947.

Cancellation of a tentatively scheduled September 19 Yankee Stadium bout for the Brown Bomber was a direct result of a three-way conference of Louis, his manager, Marshall Miles of Buffalo, and Sol Strauss, acting for the ailing promoter, Mike Jacobs.

Louis, however, will not be permitted to rust as two non-title scraps in Madison Square Garden will keep him busy during the fall and winter.

The winner of the July 25 Ezzard Charles-Elmer (Violent) Ray bout is the likely opponent of Louis in a November 14 match and Olle Tandberg, the Swedish heavyweight who upset Joe Baksi, may be the foe in mid-March of 1948.

It is possible, under New York State Athletic Commission rules, for Louis to appear in 10-round scraps without risking his crown because all title fights in that State must be over the 15-round route. However, a moot question would be raised if an opponent put him down for 10.

Greene Says Title Is Always at Stake

Chicago, July 15 (AP).—Abe Green, president of the National Boxing Association, said today that if Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis is knocked out in one of the proposed so-called nontitle bouts agreed on in New York today, the NBA would recognize his conqueror as champion.

Green said that where heavyweights are concerned, even if a bout is not specifically scheduled as a championship fight, the title would have to change hands on a knockout.

"Any time a heavyweight champion goes to bat, even in an exhibition, the title is at stake," Abe asserted. "However," the NBA head added, "this is not an official pronouncement."

Labor Board Dismisses Charges Against Bucs

Harrisburg, Pa., July 15 (AP).—After a year of legal crossfire, the Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board today dismissed charges of unfair labor practices against owners of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The joint action rang down the curtain—for the time being, at least—on attempts to unionize baseball players which less than a year ago nearly precipitated two separate strikes among the Buccos.

Hectic Gambling On Rocky, Tony

Chicago, July 15 (AP).—The betting fraternity reported more "action" today on the Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano middleweight title fight tomorrow than for any bout here since the second Dempsey-Tunney fight in 1927.

The largest bet talked about resulted when a well-known New York gambler arrived and announced he had $30,000 he wanted to put on Graziano. A Cleveland bettor obliged him by wagering $39,000 against the $30,000 at the prevailing odds.

Povich Picks Graziano in 4

Chicago, July 15 (AP).—It's Tony Zale by almost three to one over Challenger Rocky Graziano in tomorrow's middleweight title tussle, in the opinion of the sports writers here for the fight, but what's more to the point is the experts figure all will be all over in about five rounds and one minute.

A cross-section of the more than 200 writers here for the brawl in Chicago Stadium, balloting in the Associated Press poll today picked Tony to hang onto the title by a considerably wider edge than even the bookmakers, who've made Zale the 5 to 7 betting choice.

Among the selections:
George Barton, Minneapolis Tribune—Zale in seven.
Sid Feder, Associated Press—Zale inside six.
Al Buck, New York Post—Zale in three.
Wilfred Smith, Chicago Tribune—Zale in six.
Charley Dunkley, Associated Press—Zale in six.

Overton's 65 Snares Title In Maryland

Catonsville, Md., July 15.—Rallying with a sensational five-under-par 65 for the last 18 holes, Spencer Overton, Rolling Road pro, won the Maryland Open golf championship here today with a 36-hole total of 137.

Tied for second were Ralph Beach of Suburban, with 69—70—139, and Leo Walper of Prince Georges, with 71—68—139.

Overton, twice winner of the Maryland amateur championship, fired a 37—35—72 over the first 18 to set the stage for his blistering finish. He is former Middle Atlantic titleholder.

Marino, Paterson Set for Title Go

Glasgow, July 15 (AP).—Hawaiian Dado Marino, who dazzled the Scots with his aloha wardrobe when he arrived, doffs his gaudy shirt tomorrow night and attempts to dethrone Jackie Paterson, flyweight king here.

Their 15-round championship scrap in Hampden Park football stadium started out to attract a Scottish record gate of about 45,000 but two postponements—from June 11 and July 9—have left the fans skeptical, their money in hand.

Bell Orders Teams to Keep Public Posted on Injuries

By Al Costello
Post Reporter

No longer will the general public be kept in the dark about the physical condition of players in the National Football League.

Bert Bell, league commissioner, will see to that.

Saying in effect that he is tired of having the fans duped by gamblers, Bell disclosed at a news conference here yesterday that:

National league coaches will act under his orders next fall to make known in news releases all injuries to players as well as possibilities of such players participating in the next game.

Bell is convinced that coaches in their desires to keep opponents guessing about the condition of key players, too long have withheld from the fans information to which they are entitled.

The commissioner hopes that his new orders will make it impossible for gamblers to learn more about injuries to players than the public knows.

"It is only fair for the public, which supports our game, to know if star players are in good shape or are not in condition to play," Bell said.

Bell expressed enthusiasm over the recently passed O'Hara anti-bribe bill for the District, which would punish would-be bribers, players who listened to any shady propositions without reporting them, and anyone who withheld knowledge of a bribe attempt.

"It will give the public a better idea of what to expect if fellows like Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman, Bob Waterfield and others are not in shape to play their best games. It will end a lot of this nonsensical talk of "in the bag," which has happened when injuries to key players have been kept quiet and the stars failed to play up to form."

Bell added that the recently passed rule barring "undesirable characters" from the pro parks (meaning gamblers) would be strictly enforced and that individual owners would be held strictly accountable for failure to do so.

"We have been working and hoping to get such bills passed in every city and State in which the National Football League operates," he said. "We have such legislation in five of the 10 cities now and by next year the league will be covered entirely by such laws."

Ward's 141 Gains Medal in Western

Des Moines, July 15 (AP).—Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, Wash., posted a 36-hole total of 141, three strokes under par to gain medal honors in the qualifying round of the Western Amateur Golf Tournament here today. Ward's second round was one-over par 73.

Runnerup for the medal was Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill., 1932 champion, who fired a par-72 on the 6526 yard strip for a qualifying 143.

Hursey, Kapilow Encore Likely

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

SMUGGY Hursey and Danny Kapilow very likely will meet again at Griffith Stadium on August 11.

This return affair will be for the special edification of the 15,486 cash customers who sat in on Monday night's fight and still are wondering what happened.

Kapilow, whom Hursey blasted out of the Griffith Stadium ring in 41 seconds of the first round, is more than willing to expose his whiskers again to the bull-shouldered Washington Negro middleweight.

The Smug, after banking the biggest payday—more than $8000 for 41 seconds' work—of his young career, said he'd fight Danny again, but there would have to be more money in it this time.

"Goldie Ahern (promoter of the Liberty A. C.) has got to give us more than 25 per cent," said Mighty Mel Stevenson, Hursey's wheel chair pilot. "Hursey is the drawing card here and we're going to cash in on that."

AHEARN, who confesses he "sneezed and missed the fight," called on Hursey and Stevenson yesterday to deliver the check and tried to get Mel to agree to the return for August 11.

"That guy wants the sun, the moon and the Washington Monument thrown in for good measure," Ahearn barked after his mission.

The $8,000 Hursey earned for his short stand with Kapilow brought his boxing earnings to over $20,000 for his three outdoor appearances this season—a good package for a 19-year-old boy who was broke four months ago.

The Liberty A. C. promoters originally planned to throw the winner of Monday night's tiff in with a topflight 160-pounder, but the sensational kayo the Smug scored brought an abrupt halt to their plans.

Ahearn and his associates are convinced that a retake of Hursey and the 26-year-old New Yorker would do $60,000. Monday's shindig grossed $46,000.

HURSEY'S increased demands are not to be taken too seriously. He and Ahearn will get together soon, probably tomorrow, and articles for the return will be signed with Hursey probably receiving 30 per cent for his efforts this time.

Meanwhile, boxing patrons are still trying to decide among themselves how one punch—a solid left hook to the button—brought Kapilow the only kayo he's suffered in nine years of ear scrambling.

A few hold that Danny hit his head on the lower rope as he caved in. That, however, can be discounted, as Kapilow did not fall on the rope with any force. The punch rocked him against the ropes and he slipped down easily.

"I wasn't warmed up properly," Kapilow explained early yesterday morning. "It was a lucky punch and he just caught me with it right on the chin. That's all that happened."

At Charles Town.

Dear Folks:

Jockey Willie Nertney suffered a dislocated arm when he fell from his horse at the starting gate last Saturday. It will be at least six weeks before he can resume riding. A tough break for the former serviceman who was staging a fine saddle comeback. Apprentice Eddie Hopkins is a good prospect but he can eat himself out of a job, particularly on those chocolate sundaes. Despite a suspension, Jimmy Baird has 48 winners in 41 days and it looks like those who bet Palumbo would top the riders are going to have to dig down. Racing Commission Chairman Beverly Broun was here today and says both Wheeling and Charles Town will have totes installed in the near future. Starter Harold Holland has ordered further entry of the horse Harry O refused due to the gelding's failure to leave gate recently. Jockey A. F. Martinez, onetime rider for the Denemark Stable, was a visitor yesterday. The meeting here is 48 days and badges have only 45 slips on them. The stub of the badge will be honored for the three final days of the session. See you on the rail . . . BILL.

Army Belle Is Second In Thriller

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 15.—In a five-way photo finish that saw less than three quarters of a length separating the quintet, Wayne Kendrick's Sure Gift took the camera nod by a nose in the Duckett Purse.

The thrilling battle found J. K. Wynkoop's Army Belle second and a head in advance of V. Senseman's Robert E. Lee. Another head back was Mrs. W. J. Berry's Stinging Sam, which, in turn, was a half length in the van of J. R. Bringhurst's Tristernagh.

Six Horses in Running

A scramble every inch of the way, the struggle will live long in the memories of the onlookers.

After the early running, six of the eight starters looked like a probable winner. The stretch drive, with riders throwing caution to the winds, was a rough, tough affair with almost every horse lacking room.

The Washington-owned Sure Gift, ridden by Jockey Woody Kirk, paid $9.20 and was clocked in 1:47 for the 1 1-16 miles over a fast track.

Sammy Palumbo, from the No. 1 post position, tried to dominate the race with Army Belle. He took his mare to the front at the opening jump, set the pace and kept the rail. Unheard was closest to the pace with Robert E. Lee, the favorite, and Tristernagh rated and in good position.

Several of the riders, including Johnny Tammaro on Tristernagh, appeared to be waiting for Army Belle to quit or run out—which she did not do.

At the far turn, Unheard began to falter. Robert E. Lee and Sure Gift moved up and from the back came Stinging Sam to get into the battle. Tristernagh, at this stage, was trying to run without the necessary room.

Ino the stretch, the quintet ganged up. Army Belle clung to a brief lead. Sure Gift moved on the outside. Stinging Sam and Robert E. Lee were in a jam along with Tristernagh. It was anybody's race from that point into the wire with Sure Gift, in the clear on the outside, getting up in the final surge.

No one could have called the order of finish. The chartmen had to wait for the photo to get the line-up correct.

Chase of Fan Brings Fines to Manager, Player

Columbus, Ohio, July 15 (INS). An altercation with a fan in which five players left the field to challenge a heckler resulted today in the levying of fines totaling $175 against Manager Harry Leibold of the Louisville Colonels and five members of his team.

The trouble flared during the eighth inning of a game July 11 with Kansas City at Louisville.

President Frank C. Lane of the American Association fined Leibold $50 "for challenging a heckler to meet him under the stands . . . and thereby obviously inciting five of his players . . . to quit the playing field and seek out the heckler."

Each of the five players was fined $25. They were Frank Shoffner, Charles Koney, Bud Kimball, Paul Campbell and Jack Aragon.

Dodger Lead Over Braves Cut by Game

Brooklyn, July 15 (AP).—The cellar-dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates came out of their lethargy with a vengeance today, hammering out 25 hits including eight for extra bases against seven Brooklyn pitchers to defeat the Dodgers in both ends of a doubleheader 12-4 and 9-3.

The double defeat cut a full game off the stunned Brooks' lead over the second-place Boston Braves in the National League pennant race.

Birkdale Sought For Curtis Golf

London, July 15 (AP).—Birkdale, scene of the 1946 British Amateur Golf Championships won by Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., has been invited to entertain the revival of the Curtis Cup women's golf matches between the United States and Great Britain in 1948, the Ladies (English) Golf Union said today.

The matches are tentatively scheduled for late May. The matches were instituted in 1932 and were contested every other year until interrupted by the war after the 1938 meeting. The U. S. teams never have been defeated.

According to present plans, the entire U. S. contingent would remain in Great Britain for the British Women's championships at Harlech, Wales, May 31 to June 4. Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Denver, became the first American to win the title at Gullane, Scotland, last month.

Favorites Win 1st Matches in Army Tennis

Top-seeded Pfc. Hugh W. Stewart led the favorites through their first round matches yesterday as the Army Championship Tennis Tournament got under way at the Army-Navy Country Club in Arlington.

Stewart, who came in from the Philippines, had little trouble disposing of Pfc. John Thommen of the Air Force Headquarters in the District of Columbia, 6-2, 6-0.

Second ranking Lieut. Dave Freeman from the Caribbean command, eliminated Master Sergt. Lewis Persinger of the Sixth Army, 6-0, 6-3. Capt. Bill Nixon of Wright Field, Ohio, was the 6-0, 6-1 victim of third seeded Capt. C. R. Hippenstiel of the Sixth Army. Tom Molloy of Camp Lee, Va., ranked fourth, made quick work of Capt. G. L. Stehmler of Elgin Field, Fla., 6-2, 6-0.

The second round of singles begins today at 10 a. m., with the first round of doubles beginning at 2 p. m. Singles quarterfinals are slated for tomorrow.

Mrs. Gillean Victor In Woodmont Tourney

Mrs. Peggy Gillean of Belle Haven nosed out Mrs. Marie Walper of Prince Georges for low net honors yesterday in the Woodmont Country Club invitational ladies' day golf tourney.

Mrs. Gillean carded a 93-18—75 and Mrs. Walper an 83-8—75, but Mrs. Gillean was awarded the victory when the cards were matched. Trailing the two top-runners were Mrs. Estelle Hollander of Kenwood, with 93-18—78, and Mrs. T. J. Trolinski of Army and Navy with 90-12—78.

Canadian Open Begins Today

Toronto, July 15 (U.P.).—Bobby Locke of South Africa topped an entry list of 174 players in the $10,000 Canadian Open golf tournament which starts tomorrow at the Scarboro Golf Club, with United States Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington and PGA king Jim Ferrier also highly rated.

Canadian fans admitted there was slight chance that one of the 70 Canadian pros entered would be able to bring the title back to Canada. George Fazio of Los Angeles won the 1946 tournament and is back to defend it.

Other American entrants include Sam Snead, Ed (Porky) Oliver, Herman Keiser, Toney Penna, Ed Furgol, Dick Metz, Clayton Haefner, Fred Haas, jr., John Palmer, Harry Todd, Cary Middlecoff, Vic Ghezzi, Ellworth Vines, Gene Sarazen and Craig Wood.

Snead is a three-time Canadian Open winner, having taken titles in 1940 at Scarboro, 1941 at Lambton and in 1938.

Mrs. Simmonds' 77 Wins Duffers' Cup

Mrs. A. G. Simmonds of Washington Country Club won the Duffers' Cup for Class B players at Columbia yesterday with a low net of 97-20—77. Low gross laurels went to Mrs. A. D. Loda of Manor, with 101.

Second low net was posted by Mrs. R. L. Brister of Washington, with a 102-24—78. Mrs. Pauline Ramey of Prince Georges was third with 101-23—78.

Md. Lawyer Indicted for Evasion of Income Tax

Chas. T. Leviness Held Key Posts In Administration Of Ex-Gov. O'Conor

Baltimore, July 15 (AP).—Charles T. LeViness 3d, who held key posts in the administration of former Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, was indicted today by a Federal grand jury on charges of evading income taxes for the years 1943 and 1944.

The indictment charged the Baltimore attorney reported net income for each year approximately $10,700 less than he actually received, thereby evading $9496.76 in Federal income taxes.

When LeViness filed his 1943 return, he was chairman of the State Board of Correction and head of Maryland's penal system. When the 1944 return was filed, he had become general counsel of the Public Service Commission.

Bail Set at $1000

Bail was set at $1000. The defendant was in Federal Court while the jury was deliberating.

The indictment, prepared by United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn and Assistant U. S. Attorney Anthony Purcell, read that during the two years LeViness did "wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income and victory tax due and owing by him to the United States of America . . . by filing a false and fraudulent tax return."

One count specified the former State official reported a net income of $9468.55 and a tax of $2025.73 when, the Government charged, his net for the year was $20,183.67, and the tax payable was $6750.61.

For the year 1944, the indictment said, LeViness reported $9345.89 net income and a tax of $2028.88 and charged the real net was $20,028.15, with taxes properly payable amounting to $6800.76.

Quick Trial Sought

LeViness said he had asked for a quick trial and issued a statement declaring, "I specifically deny each and every charge that any tax money was wilfully withheld from the Government and that there was on my part any intent to defraud.

"I long ago reported voluntarily to the Government that during 1943 and 1944, certain legal fees earned by me were inadvertently omitted from the tax returns . . ."

LeViness' written statement said he had already paid "these deficit taxes . . . together with 6 per cent interest and the maximum penalties the Government may assess in the matter. . . ."

LeViness, 45, was born in Baltimore, but spent much of his youth in Salisbury.

Graduate of Princeton

He was graduated from Princeton in 1923 and from the University of Maryland Law School three years later. He was a member of the editorial staff of the Baltimore Sunpapers four years.

His first public post was that of assistant State attorney general, which he held from 1935 until 1939.

In February, 1939, he became chairman of the Baltimore Board of Liquor License Commissioners, and took the State Board of Correction post in 1943.

He is also a former head of the Better Business Bureau of Baltimore.

In November, 1945, LeViness resigned from his position as PSC counsel and returned to full-time private practice of law. At that time, he was appointed counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad in Baltimore and several Maryland counties.

8 Spotted Fever, 4 Polio Cases Reported in Va.

Richmond, Va., July 15 (AP).—Eight new cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever and four of polio were reported in Virginia last week at the State underwent a renewed, if still minor, outbreak of these diseases.

The incidence of spotted fever represented a sharp increase over the previous week's single case. The number of polio victims was one greater than that of the preceding seven-day period.

The fever occurred in Mecklenburg, where two cases were reported; Norfolk County, two; and Henry, Prince William, Southampton and Warren, with one each.

Two Henrico County residents were victims of polio, with the other two cases divided between Henry and Arlington counties.

Looping Pilot Indicted For Flying While Drunk

Atlantic City, N. J., July 15 (AP).—The Atlantic County grand jury listed in its records today what authorities said was probably New Jersey's first charge of piloting an airplane while intoxicated.

The jury voted an indictment yesterday against Stanley Woodward, Forked River Airport owner, who was arrested on the intoxicated flying charge after landing his plane at the Pomona Naval Air Base despite control tower warnings to keep away from the field.

State Trooper D. B. Kelly said Woodward's plane had been looping and rolling throug the skies, causing a passenger to suffer a heart attack just before the landing.

Washington Slum Fund Is Approved

The Senate yesterday approved a $95,000 fund for planning Washington's slum clearance and redevelopment program.

The question of slum funds must still clear the House.

If the money is finally granted, it will be used by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to plan a 20-million-dollar District redevelopment program authorized by Congress last year.

The planning money was approved by the Senate as part of the Independent Offices Appropriation bill. The House earlier had knocked the planning fund out of the bill.

Goes to Conference

Senate passage of the Independent Offices bill late yesterday sent the measure to a conference with the House to settle differences. At the same time, the Senate's passage of the bill spelled final Congressional approval for these major Greater Washington projects:

1. A $1,700,000 fund for starting the proposed 22-million-dollar Washington hospital center.

2. An $850,000 appropriation for site and plans of the proposed National Institute of Mental Health at Bethesda, Md.

1,250,000 for Plant

3. A $1,250,000 fund for finishing the Government's West Central Heating Plant at K st. and Rock Creek Park nw.

4. A total of $279,000 for the Planning Commission, of which $200,000 would be for buying land in nearby Maryland for the proposed George Washington Memorial Parkway extension.

Two other Senate items in the bill must return to the House for agreement. One calls for appropriating $400,000 to continue the Office of Government Reports. The House gave it no money. The second would grant $900,000 for returning nine Federal agencies to Washington.

Bids on 2 Bridges, Grading Asked By Prince Georges

Bids for construction of two concrete bridges over Mataponi Creek and grading of St. Thomas Church rd. have been asked by the Prince Georges County Commissioners.

The bids will be opened at 11 a. m. August 5 at the meeting of the board in Upper Marlboro. The projects are in Nottingham Election District.

A delegation seeking purchase of a Scout reservation by the county for use by county Boy Scouts appeared before the commissioners. The request was taken under advisement.

Also at the board meeting, the commissioners took no action on an invitation to affiliate with the Citizens Roadside Council of Maryland, which has as its objective the beautification of Maryland roads and entrances to Baltimore City and removal of roadside signs. The board took no action.

Cockrill Resigns Post As Agent for B. & O.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 15.—Frank R. Cockrill retired today as Baltimore & Ohio Railroad agent after 43 years of service.

A former Mayor of Charles Town and vestryman of Zion Episcopal Church, Cockrill also served the railroad as relief agent.

L. W. Weller of Shenandoah Junction has been named acting agent, effective today.

Vincent Seen Slated As Envoy to Swiss

By the United Press

John Carter Vincent, director of the State Department's Office of Far Eastern Affairs since 1945, will be nominated Minister to Switzerland in the near future, it was revealed yesterday.

Vincent, a career diplomat and foreign service officer since 1925, will replace Leland Harrison, present Minister in Switzerland who will retire.

Boost Asked In U. S. Fund For Court

60 Pct. Paid by D. C. More Than Quota, House Group Told

Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws suggested to Congress yesterday that the Federal Government pay a bigger share of his District Court's expenses.

The District now pays 60 per cent and the Federal Government 40 per cent of the expenses.

Justice Laws, testifying before the House District Subcommittee on reorganization and home rule, said the present division of costs is "not unreasonable," then added, "If I were to make any change, simply from impressions, the contribution of the United States should in my judgment be increased, and that of the District reduced."

More Than 40% Federal

Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens of the United States Court of Appeals for the District, said he believed more than 40 per cent of the District Court cases were Federal, and less than 60 per cent local.

Justices Laws and Stephens both opposed shifting local cases now handled by District Court over to Municipal Court, if the District is given self-government.

Justice Laws said the present division of work between the two courts has been in effect for many years and "works well."

"A change would involve delays and a considerable amount of expense to litigants," Justice Laws warned.

Superior Court Suggested

Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court said if the District were given its own system of local courts under home rule, there should be both a municipal and a "superior" local court.

He said the "superior court would take over the local civil and criminal cases now handled by District Court. He pointed out the "superior" court would mean duplicating existing facilities, and said it was up to Congress to decide whether the dual system should be set up.

Representative Brooks Hays (D., Ark.) told the subcommittee he favored early action to give the District some form of modified statehood. The subcommittee also heard Douglas W. McGregor, assistant to the Attorney General, outline the present court setup in Washington.

Boy, 9, New Polio Case

A 9-year-old Chevy Chase (Md.) boy has been admitted to Children's Hospital with polio, bringing the Greater Washington total of actual cases to 10.

The boy, whose home is in the 3900 block of Oliver st., Chevy Chase, Md., was admitted to the hospital Monday night and his case definitely diagnosed yesterday as polio.

A total of 13 possible polio cases have been reported here this year.

Two brothers, age 7 and 10, of the 1300 block of South Capitol st., are still under observation at Gallinger Hospital for possible polio.

A 5-year-old boy was sent home from Gallinger Hospital July 5, after doctors said he was not suffering from polio, as at first believed.

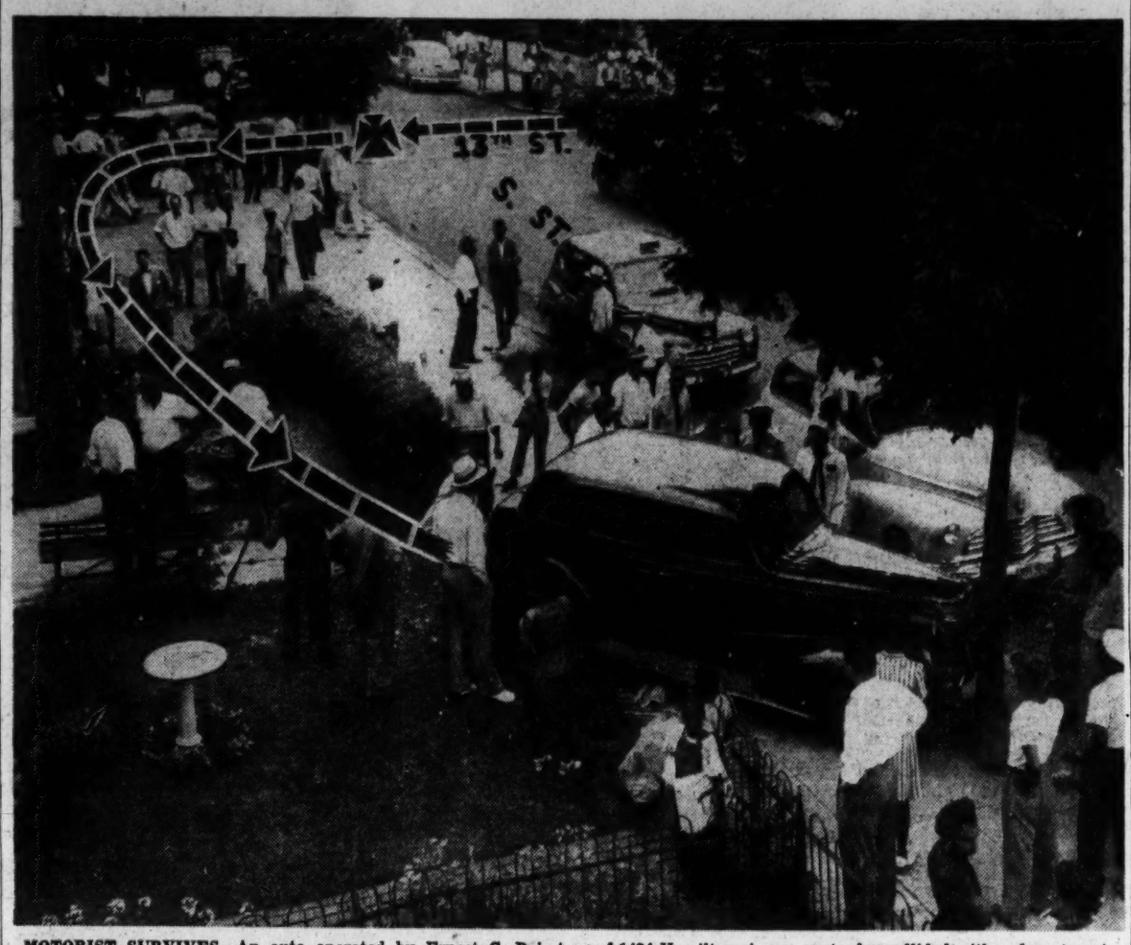
Of the nine other actual cases recorded by the Health Department here, three were reported in the District; two each in Arlington County, Va., and Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md. One of the Montgomery County cases resulted in death.

Death June 16 of a 5-year-old Arlington boy, originally attributed to polio, was later revealed to have resulted from a brain abscess, the Health Department reported.

Bullitt Arrives in Japan

Tokyo, July 15 (U.P.).—William C. Bullitt, former American Ambassador to Russia and France, arrived in Japan today for a brief visit.

Auto Takes Driver on Wild Ride After Crash



MOTORIST SURVIVES—An auto operated by Ernest C. Bairstow of 1424 Hamilton st. nw., yesterday collided with a department store delivery truck operated by Edward Hobbs of McLean, Va., at Thirteenth and S sts. nw. Then things began to happen. Bairstow's car caromed off the truck into a store window; bounced off, went through an iron fence and a hedge, hit a house, bounced off the house through another iron fence, and finally wound up against a tree. Bairstow said he suffered a dizzy spell just before the crash

Roanoke Man Loses Appeal In Bank Fraud

Real Estate Dealer Must Pay $2000 Fine Or Serve 3 Months

Richmond, Va., July 15 (AP).—The appeal of D. E. Nelson, Roanoke real estate dealer, from his conviction in Federal District Court here on charges of aiding in the misapplication of funds from a Fredericksburg bank, was ordered dismissed today.

The dismissal was effected through a stipulation signed by Nelson's attorney, W. R. Ashburn of Norfolk and Assistant United States Attorney George R. Humrickhouse, who had presented the Government's case against Nelson and eight other defendants in an eight-week trial here this spring.

In agreeing to the dismissal, Nelson became the first of the nine defendants to submit to the punitive sentences imposed by Judge J. Waties Waring.

(Paul Karsten, jr., former vice president of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg, was placed on probation for one year immediately after his conviction in the case.)

Nelson, still free on $5000 bond, now has the option of paying $2000 fine or serving three months imprisonment.

By the terms of his bond, Nelson remains free until such time as he may be ordered to appear before Federal District Court.

Appeals in the case still are pending by Hugh N. Rakes, Leesburg dairyman, and his wife, Lillian C. Rakes, Delegate Joseph Edwin Proffit of Floyd County, Clarence L. Robey, president of the Purcellville National Bank; Kyle M. Weeks, Proffit's law partner in Floyd; Joseph A. Sowers, cashier of the Floyd County Bank of which Proffit is president, and Harry Lawson, Washington real estate man.

All were convicted of aiding and abetting William Reeves Gardner in misapplying funds of the Fredericksburg Bank.

Anti-Poll Tax Bill Approved by Hous Subcommittee

A House Administration Subcommittee yesterday approved legislation to prohibit levying of poll taxes as a prerequisite to voting in elections for Federal offices.

The full committee will meet tomorrow to consider the bill, which the House Republican leadership has programmed for the present session of Congress.

Such poll taxes now are levied in seven Southern States.

Dead Man on Road Held Victim of Hit-Run Car

Maryland State police said last night that Jess Carr, 70, Bel Air carpenter, who was found dead yesterday morning on U. S. Route 1, ten miles north of Bel Air, was apparently the victim of a hit and run accident.

Carr was found lying beside the highway about 7 a. m. by his grandson, Jack Carr. A skull fracture was listed as the cause of death. Police said they had no clues.

Woman in House Chair First Time This Session

Representative Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) presided over the House during a roll call yesterday—the first time a woman had taken over the chair in this session of Congress.

And it was the first time a Republican Congresswoman had done it for 15 years.

TRUCK DRIVER INJURED—Edward Hobbs, driver of the delivery truck, is placed on a stretcher before removal to Emergency Hospital, where he was found suffering from contusions

Police Check Plank Murder Suspect's Alibi

Fairfax County detectives toured downtown Washington last night in a check on the alibi advanced by their only suspect in the suicide-faked murder of Norman LeRoy Plank, 29, clerk in the District Small Claims Court.

County Detective Chief Henry Magarity and Sergt. James Mahoney sought to locate the cheap hotel where the suspect, Alvah B. Martin, 29, of Taunton, Mass., said he spent some time Sunday night, July 6, the night Plank was found dead. They searched also for a woman known only as "Virginia," whom he said was his companion.

They said 16 hours of questioning of Martin on Monday and yesterday produced only confused versions of previous statements made by him to arresting police, of Kingston, N. Y. Martin, detectives said, could supply but meager descriptions of the woman and the hotel.

Suspect is Cooperative

Martin told a Post reporter that he had been given rough treatment by the New York police. "After they had slapped me around," he said, "they gave me some truth serum. He said that he had been given excellent treatment by the Fairfax police.

Chief of Police Carl McIntosh, after the questioning yesterday, said that the suspect had been very cooperative in answering all the questions, but that his statements were confusing. "Looks like something is worrying him, he looked down and cried several times."

Fairfax County police said they must establish when Martin left Plank and when Martin left Washington. They said they have established that the slain man was shot about 11 p.m., Sunday, July 6, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Nellie Burrer at 4108 Forest la., Chesterbrook Woods, Fairfax County.

Martin told a Post reporter he left Plank sitting on his bed around 7 p. m., Saturday, July 5, and never saw him again. He said he phone shortly before he left the talked to Mrs. Burrer by telehome whereas Mrs. Burrer has told police she called at 3 p. m.

A Vienna, Va., carpenter positively identified a picture of Plank and partially identified Martin as his companion as the two men to whom he sold raffle tickets at a Vienna carnival at 11 p. m., Saturday.

Martin is now being held on charges of stealing the auto. It belongs to Mrs. Burrer, who loaned it to Plank while she went away for the weekend.

Earlier yesterday, Martin was questioned and given a physical examination by Dr. Nelson Podolnick, Fairfax County coroner. Dr. Podolnick said that Martin was in "good shape" but that he found several old bruises on his back and arms.

House Votes To Transfer Welfare to Commission

Present Relief Unit Would Have Only Advisory Status in Bill Sent to Senate

The House voted yesterday to give the District Commissioners full control over the city's public welfare setup.

The welfare reorganization plan was in one of 10 bills cleared by the House in its final scheduled District Day this session. All the bills were approved by voice votes and without opposition.

Under the welfare bill, the present volunteer citizens' board in charge of welfare would be stripped to a purely advisory role. The Commissioners drafted the bill to take over welfare control, and the Board has opposed the change.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) teamed with committee members, Representatives A. L. Miller (R., Neb.) and Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), to steer the bills through the House.

Senate May Defer Action

Senate District Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) said later only the bills about which there is no demand for hearings were likely to clear the Senate before Congress adjourns.

He indicated this would mean delaying action on the welfare reorganization bill until next year.

House approval sent three of the bills to the White House. These would:

1. Let Episcopal parishes and congregations write their own by-laws for vestry elections.

2. Credit military service for fixing the amount of relief and retirement benefits for police and firemen.

3. Let Municipal Court reporters collect fees for official transcripts.

7 Bills Sent to Senate

Seven bills went to the Senate, where they must clear through the Senate District Committee before final passage. This list included the welfare reorganization bill, and bills to:

1. Change the present methods used by the Recorder of Deeds. The bill calls for use of photographic instead of typewriter recording. It also shifts the job of recording auto liens to the Department of Vehicles and Traffic. It would also let the Commissioners issue regulations on recording processes, and fix fees for recording. Recording funds would be subject to a District audit. A section to place the Recorder entirely under the Commissioners were dropped from the bill in the House District Committee.

Limit on Radio Towers

2. Let District insurance companies operate without interference from the antitrust laws, but under control of the District Superintendent of Insurance.

3. Limit radio and television towers in residential areas to sites that would not endanger homes, schools, and recreation facilities. Representative O'Hara said in his opinion the bill would not affect towers for which licenses have already been granted.

4. Pay four police lieutenants the salary of captains while they head key detective squads—homicide, robbery, general assignments and special investigations.

5. Make the Interior Department repay the District for park police expenses now charged to the city.

6. Extend from 20 to 50 years the time for building up the teachers' retirement fund to the point where all the heavy starting costs will be absorbed.

Spotted Fever Strikes Again

Three new cases of Rocky Mountain fever were reported in Greater Washington area hospitals yesterday.

Two were local cases, bringing this year's Greater Washington total to 13. They included a 7-year-old Marlboro, Md., boy under treatment at Children's Hospital, and a 51-year-old woman from Fort Foote, Md., at Sibley Hospital.

The third case was a 31-year-old woman brought to Suburban Hospital from Germantown, Md.

Previous Greater Washington cases reported this year included five in the District and two each in Montgomery, Arlington, and Fairfax counties. Two of the District cases resulted in death.

Meter Receipts Off

Hagerstown, Md., July 15 (AP).—Parking meter receipts here for the first six months of this year totaled $7162—a drop of $771 from the corresponding period of 1946.

City Treasurer Clyde R. Stouffer said the revenue loss resulted from the fact that there are now but 170 meters in the city, compared with the 200 used last year.

Tuck Hits U. S. Aid to Schools, But Wants Virginia's Share

Salt Lake City, July 15 (AP).—Governor Tuck said today he was opposed to the principle of Federal grants in aid to States, "particularly in the field of public education," but that Virginia intends to ask for and get her share as long as there are Federal grants, "simply as a matter of self-protection."

Speaking at a Governors Conference roundtable on education, Tuck said he believed the system of Federal aid to schools was "a sure method of undermining the remaining rights of the States and thereby wrecking a fundamental unit of our machinery of government and quite possibly ruining what we are pleased to call our American way of life."

"First of all," he declared, "money returned to States in Federal grants has come from the pockets of the taxpayers in the respective States, and in most instances it would have been better for the States to have levied the necessary taxes themselves, as well as to have administered the services. When abuses creep into a State or local school system, they certainly can be more readily eliminated at the local and State level than they could in a Federally-directed system where the immensity of the machinery would, in itself, make the process of revision slow and difficult, if indeed, possible at all.

"Secondly, grants from the Federal Government always are diminished substantially in comparison with the tax collected, and the fraction of the tax dollar that finally does return to the States is burned with the expense of the swarm of Federal administrators set up to regulate the manner of spending, according to a Federal pattern instead of a pattern of our own.

"These strings attached to Federal grants constitute the principal threat to our system of States rights and State government, and I hope the time will never come when we are faced with a federally controlled system of education.

"But so long as there are Federal grants, Virginia proposes to ask for and get its share, as it has done heretofore, simply as a matter of self-protection."

Rural Letter Carriers Elect Greensboro Man

Frederick, Md., July 15 (AP).—Charles S. Bilbrough of Greensboro was elected president by the Rural Letter Carriers Association of Maryland at the close of its two-day convention today.

Bilbrough, who succeeded James Myers of Taneytown, also was chosen delegate-at-large to the national convention in Tampa, Fla., next month.

The other new officers are John R. Connors of Baltimore, vice president; Stanley S. Sentman of Port Deposit, secretary; and Newton Sharrer of Rocky Ridge, treasurer.

A. W. Myers of Upperco was named State delegate to the national convention and T. O. Kiler of Westminster and Jonathan Jones of Millington as delegates.

The association's auxiliary elected Mrs. Elmo Powell of Princess Anne, president; Mrs. Frank Martiling of White Hall, vice president, and Mrs. Charles Bilbrough, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Powell was named delegate-at-large and Mrs. A. M. Myers State delegate to the national meeting.

The association voted to hold next year's meeting in Betterton.

2 Drown in 4 Feet

Cumberland, Md., July 15 (AP).—Two Cumberland men, who were unable to swim, drowned today in the south branch of the Potomac River while a third swam ashore when their boat capsized, Corporal E. R. Roush of the West Virginia State Police reported.

Coroner A. R. Russell identified the dead as Charles Cornelius, about 55, and Thomas Stump, 32-year-old overseas war veteran. Russell said they drowned in about four feet of water a few feet off shore.

Engineer Sues Railway

Norfolk, Va., July 15 (AP).—W. E. Harris, a locomotive engineer, has filed a $100,000 suit in Norfolk Circuit Court against the Norfolk Southern Railway Co., charging that he was wrongfully discharged and that the railroad is indebted to him for mileage traveled between terminal points of a run assigned to him for a number of years.

Harris said in his petition he was discharged by the Norfolk Southern October 3, 1946, after having been employed by the company continuously since 1908.

Body Recovered

Newport News, Va., July 15 (AP). Recovery of the body of H. Venance Simpkins, 34, of Pasagoula, Miss., who was drowned Saturday when a boat sank about 300 yards off the local shipyard, was made this morning in the No. 8 shipway of the yard by H. H. Riley, watchman, and J. B. Lowery, also an employe of the yard.

The body will be sent to Nashville, Tenn., for funeral services and burial.

Simpkins was the last of three persons drowned Saturday when the boat sank. His wife and Mrs. Mabel Parker also were victims. Only one member of the party of four, Walter J. Parker, of Copeland Park, survived the sinking.

Family Life Study Set

A 15-day workshop on family life education will open today at the University of Maryland, Dean Marie Mount of the college of home economics announced yesterday.

The workshop, limited to 30 students, will be conducted from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. daily in the Maryland room of the Home Economics Building, with Dean Mount as director and Dr. Muriel W. Brown, family life education consultant, Home Economic Education Service of the United States Office of Education, as consultant.

Carrier Near Completion

Newport News, Va., July 15 (AP). Capt. A. P. Storrs, USN, arrived at the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. today to take command of the giant airplane carrier, Coral Sea, now undergoing completion at the yard.

Captain Storrs was welcomed in Newport News at the offices of Capt. A. O. Gieselmann, supervisor of naval shipbuilding and naval inspection of ordnance at the shipyard, after making a customary naval report to the commandant of the Fifth Naval District in Norfolk, Rear Admiral W. L. Ainsworth.

Danville, Va., July 15 (AP).—The rape trial of Buford Russell Morton, charged with dragging a 27-year-old woman into a woods in the suburbs and criminally assaulting her on the night of May 9, was continued in Corporation Court today until July 24.

Boy's Body Recovered

Newport News, Va., July 15 (AP). The body of Herman Bruce Rudolph, Richmond schoolboy who drowned Sunday in York River off the Colonial National Park beach at Yorktown, was recovered shortly after 10:30 this morning after divers had been working for two days.

It was located about 50 yards from shore and about 150 yards east of the spot where the youth went under. A man pulling his crab pots found the body caught on one of the ropes.

The youth, who was at the beach with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Rudolph, went under while he and his father were splashing on an innertube about 100 yards from shore.

Md. Delegate Charged

Baltimore, July 15 (AP).—Charles Lyman Schueler, newly appointed member of the House of Delegates from the Second District, was charged in a police warrant today with assaulting Ray Martin, staff member of the Labor Herald newspaper.

Magistrate James R. Cadden of Central Police Court said Schueler is charged with "assault by placing his hands on and shaking" Martin.

Man to Hang Offers Eyes

Baltimore, July 15 (AP).—A Deal Island, Md., waterman sentenced to be hanged Aug. 1 for the murder of his sweetheart has offered his eyes "to someone who can use them."

Warden Patrick J. Brady of the Maryland Penitentiary said today the condemned man, Ross. J. Abbott, had discussed with him the means by which his wish could be fulfilled.

Abbot was convicted of first-degree murder after the body of Pansy Twigg was found on the beach at Deal Island July 19, 1946.

Norfolk Yard in Lead

Portsmouth, Va., July 15—(AP). With 53 per cent of its total force engaged in actual "production work," the Norfolk naval shipyard is leading other naval shipyards in the Nation in this field, yard spokesmen reported today. "Production work" consists principally of ship work and manufacturing.

Of 9400 workers at the yard, 5200 are currently engaged in production work. The average yard has about 3700 workers or 44.2 per cent of its total force so employed.

Help for Navy Officers

Annapolis, Md., July 15 (AP).—Former Navy officers, seeking assistance in getting jobs, will find a helping hand from Ralph A. Sentman, Naval Academy graduate of 1925, at the home of the Academy Alumni Association.

Rear Adm. C. E. Coney, USA, (ret.), executive director, announced today the expansion of the employment service with the hiring of Sentman.

He added the service was available not only to Academy alumni but to any person who served as a commissioned officer in the Naval Reserve and was honorably discharged.

45 in Auto Class

The automobile driving class taught under the adult education program of the Prince Georges County schools has reached an enrollment of 45, with a waiting list of 50, it was announced yesterday.

The 8-hour course, taught by J. Paul Kemerer and Fred Wyvill, has been given mainly in the Hyattsville and Bladensburg areas. It costs $6, and dual control cars are used. A class is contemplated for Upper Marlboro if enough adults apply at the board of education office, according to G. Gardner Shugart, superintendent of county schools.

Pastor Goes Abroad

Norfolk, Va., July 15 (AP).—Dr. Henry W. Tiffany, pastor of Park Place Baptist Church, and Mrs. Tiffany left today to attend the Baptist World Alliance meeting in Copenhagen, Denmark, July 19 to August 3.

They also expect to tour England, Holland, Switzerland, Italy and France before returning.

Herd Service to End

Easton, Md., July 15 (AP).—Extension service dairyman Floyd Arnold told herd owners here that various artificial breeding cooperatives in Maryland will have to become self-supporting after September 1.

Arnold said operating expenses of the projects have been too high because farmers have not been living up to their contracts.

Workshop in Language

A workshop on the language arts is being sponsored by the Prince Georges Board of Education in cooperation with the Maryland State Board. The workshop will be held July 21 to August 1 at the Hyattsville High School and will produce bulletins on methods of instruction in the language arts field for grades 1 to 12. Fifteen selected teachers from Prince Georges and five from St. Marys County will participate in the workshop.

Huntington, W. Va., July 15 (AP). The Cunningham Core Drilling Corporation of Salem, W. Va., submitted a low bid of $243,780 for a drilling and grouting job at the Bluestone flood control dam, the Huntington district engineer's office announced today.

The government estimate of the job was $484,500. The Dravo Corporation of Pittsburgh holds the general contract for the project on the New River near Hinton.

Children Confer Title, 'Uncle John,' on Man Who Provided Forestville Camping Ground

SYLVAN PARADISE—Ninety-acre tract owned by "Uncle John" Plato, near Forestville, Md., makes an ideal camping ground for children. Plato, now 70, spent years improving the natural woods, built a lake and forest trails for their benefit. Above, Plato leads the pony "Pee Wee" as Sharron Dye, 9, of 2817 31st st. se., and Martha Stecher, 8, of 3012 Gainesville st., Naylor Gardens, ride by a group of Brownies

When you drive out past Forestville, Md., and ask a kid where you can find the "Plato Place," he'll look you over carefully.

If he decides you should be told, he'll point out a dirt road that leads into a 90-acre natural woods where 70-year-old "Uncle John" Plato has set up a camping ground for children.

"Uncle John," a slightly stooped, white-haired man with a white mustache, has been entertaining children in his park for more than a decade.

A man of only moderate means, Plato, a Spanish-American War veteran, started buying the land 13 years ago a few acres at a time. With shovel and wheelbarrow he dug a lake and then dammed one of three streams running through the land. He built boats for the children, a toboggan and slide and then bought them a pony.

To supplement the natural beauty of the land he set out silver birch and bamboo trees and 400 varieties of ferns.

This year to his countless other nieces and nephews he added 140 Brownies and Girl Scouts from Washington's southeast section. They move in each Tuesday divide up into small camp groups along the streams and stay until late Thursday.

"We looked for a place like this for years before I met 'Uncle John'," said Camp Director Mrs. Frederick A. Blumer of 3366 Denver st. se.

The enthusiasm of campers and counselors is sared by Plato.

"I have never had so much fun," he said. "They call me 'Uncle John.' You can't buy that sort of thing."

A bachelor, "Uncle John" lives in a home-made house along the road that leads to his woods. When the Scouts are in residence he takes turns eating at the 10 camps. He has to take turns because he has 10 invitations each night.

Of all the children who have visited him, "Uncle John" likes the Girl Scouts the best. They take care of the land, are careful with fires and help him set out new plants.

Boy Scouts, he said, are too rambunctious. They are always blazing new trails.

So happy is "Uncle John" with his nieces that he hopes to leave them the camp.

"It is hard," he said "to leave a place to children. If it's a public park adults come in. I am going to try and give it to the Girl Scouts and Girl Guides.

As he spoke, "Uncle John" watched the children gathering wood for their camp fires.

"I am very lucky," he said. "Not many people live to see an ambition realized."

Songwriter Donaldson Is Dead at 54

Santa Monica, Calif., July 15 (U.P.).—Songwriter Walter Donaldson, 54, who composed a hundred odd hits including "My Blue Heaven" and "Mammy," died at his home today from a liver ailment.

Donaldson, one of the country's most prolific songwriters although he never took a music lesson, had been ill nearly a year.

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., Donaldson began turning out his first tunes after learning to play the piano by ear while still in high school. He was sidetracked briefly by a job with a Wall Street brokerage house, but soon snared a job with the Mills Music Publishing Co.

His first published song was "We'll Have a Jubilee in My Kentucky Home." Since then the Nation has sung and danced to his "How You Gonna Keep 'Em Down On the Farm," "You're Driving Me Crazy," "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby," "My Buddy" and others.

He collaborated with two of the greatest American popular tunesmiths, Gus Kahn and Irving Berlin.

When talkies came along, Donaldson followed the crowd to Hollywood where his first score was for the movie, "Whoopee." He als penned "Sleepy Head," "Good Night, a Thousand Good Nights" and "It's Been So Long" for the films.

House Group Approves Hospital for Negroes

By The Associated Press

The House Veterans Affairs Committee yesterday approved a bill to establish a hospital for Negro veterans at the birthplace of Booker T. Washington in Franklin County, Va.

The measure, by Committee Chairman Rogers (R., Mass.), would authorize expenditure of two million dollars for the Veterans Administration to acquire the birthplace of the late Negro educator and for construction of the hospital.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman, 77, Dependent on Married Daughter, Insists on Spending Summers at Ancestral Home, a Rundown Farm, Where Life Is Drudgery

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My mother, 77, an invalid, has made her home with me the last five years. I, who am 47, have children of my own ranging from 7 to 18 years of age.

Each summer the children and I go with mother to her childhood home, leaving my husband and eldest son (who has a job) to look after themselves. There is no electricity or plumbing at the farm and wood must be chopped for fuel.

After a few days one falls into the routine and carries on, but it means great hardship to me and mother likes to stay indefinitely. Some years I've had to send the school children off without me, to make out as best they can during September, until mother is ready to leave. There is always some reason in her mind to keep her there,—cattle or grain to go to market, etc.

Due to my love of mother I've given in and tried to see her way, but after my return last summer I spent a month under a doctor's care. "Too much, too long," he said. This summer I long to stay home and get some rest. We have a large home, debt-free, and a son in college. We are trying to make ends meet.

Married Daughter Wants Summer Rest

A NIECE writes me that she plans to come to the farm this summer, as she has for the past three summers. The younger children look forward to going to the country. However, mother expects to keep me at her side, because while her condition is good she can't even comb her hair. I seriously believe I need a two months' vacation.

I am one of four children and surely four of us shouldn't find it too much to take care of one mother who cared for all of us. But the other in-laws say they will walk out if mother walks in, which leaves me to care for her, financially and physically. She realizes my burden but says she has no one to lean on but me.

She has a few thousand dollars that she will need in case of long illness, so I charge her nothing for staying with me. How does one carry a cross so heavy, and not hurt mother by rebelling or complaining? I need advice soon. P. G.

Case of Neurotic Filial Obedience

DEAR P. G.: Here you are, 47, a middle-aged woman with husband and children, still acting compulsively on the assumption that your mother's will is imperative, insofar as your ability to comply with her wishes is concerned.

To paraphrase the poet, "Mine not to reason why; mine but to do or die (in the attempt)—," seems to be your concept of filial duty. It is a neurotic, unrealistic concept, because at 77 your mother is again somewhat a child herself—as proved by her indifference to logical considerations or others' rights, needs or feelings, when trying to push through what she wants to do.

"New occasions teach new duties," wisely observes another poet. Your paramount duty in the circumstances, if you're near collapse, is to be adamant in ruling out futile, piddling or nonconstructive drains on your energy,—inasmuch as you are vested with long-range obligations to husband and children, as well as mother.

Policy Lacks Common Sense

THERE IS no common sense, no objective justice to the family as a unit, in your erstwhile policy of passively complying with her "notional" insistence on being a summer farmer and using you as her Man Friday,—if it means your health is being wrecked (as your present nervous state and your doctor's view implies), while your husband and children pay special penalties, too, in addition to suffering indirectly from your gloom.

For advice: It's time to act your age in relation to your mother. You're not tied to her apron strings. You're a grown woman, entitled to express and abide by your own preferences, within reason. Hence, if you're sorely in need of rest and want respite from farm drudgery this summer, stay home.

Serve notice on the family—your mother, her other offspring—that you just aren't going; not this season; you're too worn out. Let them—mama, et al—make the best of your decision, any way they will. Either mama stays in town or somebody else chaperones her; not you. Don't take it on yourself to try to engineer a "please everybody" alternative; don't apologize for your decision and don't worry about the consequences. If you take a firm stand, immovable and detached, things will work out somehow. Remember that.

DuVals, Magazine Writers, Entertain At Cocktail Party

Mr. and Mrs. Alex DuVal, down for a brief visit from New York, entertained a large group of Washington friends last evening at cocktails at the Wardman Park. Mr. DuVal recently returned from Manchuria, where he was on the staff of UNRRA. He and his wife have just signed a dual writing contract for a national magazine.

Mrs. DuVal, also known as Nancy Shores, is the author of numerous short stories, most of them woven around the personality of cats. The couple's first team story, "In a Pig's Eye," is about a pig in the Philippines that just didn't like Japs and waged his own war against them. It is scheduled for early publication in a national weekly.

Mission Chiefs Entertained

CHIEFS OF MISSION and their wives were invited to tea yesterday at Blair House with the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Robert A. Lovett and the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Norman Armour as hosts.

Earlier this season Secretary of State and Mrs. George Marshall had entertained the heads of the Diplomatic Corps and wives shortly after General Marshall had been named to the Cabinet post.

As Mr. and Mrs. Lovett and Mr. and Mrs. Armour are new members of the "little Cabinet" the idea of the party was to simplify the customary rounds of official calls to be paid on new officials of state by members of the Diplomatic Corps.

The reception yesterday was simple in arrangement. Mrs. Lovett and Mrs. Armour both wore print gowns, the former in ankle-length white organdy splashed with blue and black flowers. Mrs. Armour's gown was navy blue and white.

Iron Rayons While Damp

You'll get much better results if you iron rayons as soon as they have dried to the right degree of dampness, instead of waiting until they are bone dry and then sprinkling.

Griddle Trick

Here's a neat trick that will eliminate both griddle greasing and pancakes that stick. Fill a small cheesecloth bag with table salt. Then when you are ready to bake pancakes rub the bag over the bottom of a hot skillet or griddle. Believe it or not, the batter won't stick!

PUTTING felt pads on the bottoms of lamps, ash trays, and vases will help prevent many scratches on your tables. As shown at left, spread flexible glue on the base of the article and on a piece of felt cut to proper size. Wait a minute or so until the glue becomes tacky (semi-dry), then press the felt evenly on the base

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Could you give me simple instructions for making an old-fashioned braided rug? How wide should I tear the strips of material for braiding? How should the braids be sewed together? I want to make an oval rug about 3 by 2 feet. How much cloth will it take? E. J. N.

You'll need about 16 yards of 36-inch material to make a rug this size. Cut or tear fabric into strips 3½ inches wide. Sew short pieces together, but do not have strips more than 1½ yards long or they will tangle when braided. Turn in ½ inch on each side of strip and press down. Fold strip through the center.

Pin three strips together and fasten to a table or any stationary object. Fold the strips once more through the center as you braid. Make the braid about ¾ inches wide and keep it firm and straight at the edges. An oval run requires a hard, tight braid.

If the strands in the braid run short, sew on new strips. Do not add new strips to two strands at the same place, or the braid will look lumpy.

In sewing the rug together, start by folding a 20-inch strip of braid in half and whipping the edges together with heavy thread. This will be the center of the rug. Wind braid around this center, sewing as you go. Take care that the work lies flat, as it will have a tendency to cup up.

How can I remove white oil paint from a plaster figure? Also, can wallpaper be put on with a starch and water mixture and removed easily later? Or could you suggest something I could use to dampen and peel wall paper off a small area. How can I remove a 7-year-old paint stain from a lace napkin? M. J.

Paint remover can be used in taking the paint off the plaster figure. Use a stiff tooth brush to scrub crevices.

A thick starch would hold a small piece of wallpaper on the wall temporarily at least. However, you couldn't be sure when it might pop off. It might be more satisfactory to use regular wallpaper paste. You could remove the paper later by soaking with hot water (applied with a brush), or with one of the penetrating solutions sold as wallpaper removers.

Saturate the paint-stained napkin with turpentine, then roll it up to let the paint soften. Sponge with additional turpentine, then launder. Since the paint stain is of such long standing, it may be impossible to remove it all.

Can you tell me how to remove green mold stains from white rawhide luggage? D. R.

Experts say that once mold stains penetrate rawhide, there's little that can be done to remove them. Wiping the luggage with a cloth wrung out in diluted alcohol (1 cup denatured alcohol to 1 cup water) may help some. So may washing with a thick suds of mild, neutral soap or saddle soap. After washing, wipe the leather with a cloth dipped in clear water and dry in an airy place.

My bedroom suite, which is limed oak, has gotten darker. I've always used wax paste polish on it. How can I bleach it, or keep it from getting darker? What is the best method for removing the wax? Also, would it be a good idea to use polish made of half turpentine and half linseed or lemon oil on this furniture? Should I remove the wax before using this polish? E. McF.

Since wax is available in different colors I'm wondering if perhaps the wax you have been using is too dark. Of course, the aging of the wood may have something to do with its changing color.

You may be able to lighten its appearance by completely removing the old wax, then using polish or light wax. Use liquid wax to remove old wax. Apply it freely, then wipe off while it's still wet. Fresh wax dissolves the old wax beneath, just as fresh liquid nail polish dissolves an old nail polish coating.

If you plan to use furniture polish, I'd wash the furniture with mild soap and warm water after using the liquid wax to remove the old coating. Then rinse with a cloth wrung out in clear water and dry with a soft cloth. The polish you mention can be used on limed oak. It can be buffed more quickly than a wax finish. However, it does not offer quite as much protection for your furniture. Apply the polish sparingly, and let it stand for 15 minutes before rubbing with a clean, soft cloth.

Your Baby and Mine

Two-Year-Old Still Too Young To Channel Emotion Properly

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

MOTHERS look askance at the young, supposedly friendly child, who suddenly hauls off and hits a playmate, takes a nasty bite at his arm or kicks him in the shins. What is she harboring—an incipient criminal?

Not at all. Babies are as apt to bite as to kiss. Children from 24 to 30 months are thrust into situations in which they develop strong emotions and which they are too inexperienced to express properly. If a child feels like hitting, he hits. If he feels tense and excited, he is just as apt to hit. He hasn't learned either to control his emotions or to channel them into acceptable paths.

Girl Pulls Hair

Mrs. H. G. says her little girl pulls hair. "She will be playing with two little friends. She was very casual about pulling one child's hair, then when she cried she turned and pulled the other one's.

"I have taken her shopping and on occasion she has pulled some stranger's hair. I love my little girl and want others to think well of her. Yet, I see my neighbors casting angry looks at her.

"I've tried slapping her hand and pulling her hair but she doesn't even whimper. I have tried to ignore this and finally I have turned to spanking. She is a bright child and truly loves other children. It is hard to understand."

Might Be Jealous

Remember even adults do strange things when they find themselves in exciting situations. You may have squeezed a friend's hand too tightly for comfort, or your husband may have dealt his buddy a paralyzing blow on the back. Your daughter's behavior is along those lines. All it says is, "Look at me. I'm here, play with me."

When you slap her or pull her hair you are descending to the level of childhood instead of illustrating to her the words you say, "You must never do that. It hurts your little friend and you like her, and don't want to hurt her."

You, her mother, do not want to hurt your little girl, either, especially when you are trying to show her that this behavior is taboo. Then, of course, you mustn't be guilty of it.

Separate her from her little friends, immediately, when she does this. But keep on showing her how to express her emotions of delight and excitement by patting their cheeks or holding hands or putting an arm about them. When she wants attention she won't have to use this painful method of getting it.

"Peanut Roaster" Drying

Who remembers the old-time peanut roasters, in which the goobers tumbled over and over in a heated cylinder? The principle is the same in the new automatic household washing dryers. Again there is the cylinder, inside an attractive cabinet, however. Air circulated through the drying articles is heated by gas or electricity, automatically controlled at just the right degree.

Dutch Envoy's Odd Looks Are Prison-Proof

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

EELCO VAN KLEFFENS, the new Netherlands Ambassador, is due to arrive next week. Though the new envoy exudes charm and cosiness, he wouldn't win a beauty prize. His shoulders are narrow, his head big and his ears protuberant. Mr. Van Kleffens, who doesn't kid himself, tells an amusing story of how his unusual physical characteristics kept him out of jail.

EELCO KLEFFENS

When the Nazis swept into Holland the Dutch government retired hastily to London. Van Kleffens, then Foreign Minister, was among the last to leave. He was forced to embark in a rickety seaplane. About to take off, the pilot balked because he had lost his maps. The resourceful cabinet officer figured out a course. The plane landed safely in Brighton Harbor, but when Van Kleffens stepped ashore he was surrounded by British soldiers. Alerted against an invasion, they couldn't believe the strange plane's occupant was the Dutch Foreign Minister.

With a bayonet impatiently pricking his spine, Van Kleffens listened while the commanding officer called London, relayed a most unflattering description of his appearance. There was a moment's silence, then the officer hung up, waved the bayonet to a more comfortable distance.

"You're the foreign minister, all right," he admitted grudgingly. "Nobody else could look half as queer!"

From Stirrups to Stump

NEWEST entrant in the nearby political arena is Raymond Guest. After a deadlock, Raymond received the unanimous nomination for Virginia State Senator. He is tall, dark and almost unbearably handsome and is, of course, one of the two famous polo-playing Guest brothers—but he is trying his best to live it down.

Since the war began he's been far from polo fields. He started as an admiral's aide and worked his way down to all kinds of dangerous action, including a stint in underwater demolition. After VJ-Day he continued on as a Navy civilian employe. He's smart, civic-conscious, just the kind we need in politics.

He's a brother of the more publicized Winston, one of the country's most efficient mallet wielders. His mother uses her Phipps steel money to promote aviation and, incidentally, backed Amelia Earhart. Ray and wife, Lily, have lived on a farm at Front Royal for several years. She's a daughter of the late Frank Polk, one of New York's most distinguished lawyers.

Real Estate Transfers

THE GENEROUS and energetic Mrs. Pearl Mesta, so they say, will have an exceedingly handsome milieu for her next winter's entertaining. It's rumored persistently that the Oklahoma heiress, who "goes to town" to amuse Margaret Truman, has bought Mrs. Dwight Davis' wonderful house at 2145 Decatur pl. Meanwhile, Mrs. Davis is moving from the Ryan house on Foxhall rd. and is supposed to have purchased Senator Reed's mansion.

Mrs. Davis, widow of the Davis Cup donor, loves to move. It gives her an opportunity to "do over" a house. According to decorating experts she has the country's most perfect taste in decor and—important, too—the means to satisfy her whims.

Big houses, which used to be a drag on the market, are beginning to come into their own. Unbelievably, the Chinese can't find a rooftree large enough to cover the 1500 they like to ask to posh receptions—and there's a Latin American country searching frantically for an elaborate new embassy.

Washington's almost professional diners-out are having to depend heavily on home cuisine these sultry nights. The three Mrs. Bs—Bacon, Beale, Bliss—who give the most comprehensive and stimulating parties in Washington, are relaxing in cooler climes.

Mrs. Robert L. Bacon and her daughter, Ivy, both pals of Alaska's Governor, are touring the Territory under his guidance. Mrs. Bliss is sunning herself in California, resting for a European jaunt in August. Mrs. Beale has been taking a too long bisque from her social travails. Since March she's been whisking through North Africa, France and England and is now catching up on herself, taking the "waters" at Italy's Monte Caetini.

Good Will Missionary

DONALD NELSON, former WPB chief and more recently boss of the Independent Motion Picture Producers of America, will soon be off to Mexico. Shrewd Mr. Nelson is to whip up an economic plan for our Southern neighbor. His young wife, once Miss Washington, died a few months ago and a change of scene will do much to pull him out of the doldrums.

Limpid-eyed ZaSu Pitts, guest-starring at the Olney Theater, opened last night in "The Late Christopher Bean." La Pitts recently finished off the juicy role of Cousin Cora in "Life With Father" and is now one of the happier Hollywood refugees. Face to face off screen, Miss Pitts is quite a surprise. Her trademarked dreadiness is nonexistent, she's a snappy dresser and takes keen pleasure in visiting the nicer flesh pots with her married daughter.

Last night Columnist Marquis Childs and his wife gave an after-show party for the star and, incidentally, the Childses' daughter Malissa, who has a bit part in the play. Malissa is toiling to roll up enough acting hours for membership in Actors Equity. One more role and she'll make the grade, and be allowed to emote on the professional stage.

Ambassador's Son to Wed

Canberra, Australia, July 15 (AP). Elaborate preparations were made today for the wedding tomorrow of Shirley Louise Riedel of St. Paul, Minn., and Walter Butler 3d, son of U. S. Ambassador Robert Butler.

Some 300 wedding guests from Melbourne, Sydney and Brisbane have arrived in Canberra by plane, automobile and train. Four florists from Sydney—200 miles away—are decorating St. Christopher's Roman Catholic Church.

The couple, both 22, will live in Melbourne, where young Butler is studying at the university. They have been friends since childhood days at White Bear Lake, Minn., where their families have homes.

Mrs. Cox Honors Engaged Couple

MRS. Eugene Cox, wife of Representative Cox, was hostess at cocktails yesterday in her apartment at the Wardman Park for Mlle. Gisele Chautemps and Dr. Thornton Tayloe Perry, who will be married tomorrow in Charles Town, W. Va., at the home of Dr. Perry's great uncle, Thornton Tayloe Perry.

The former Premier of France and Mme. Camille Chautemps, parents of the bride-elect, were in the group which included only members of the family and close friends.

Prince Abdullah Feted by Villards

By Elizabeth Maguire

HISTORY-MAKING figures in American relations with Yemen attended a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at the Carlton Hotel. The party was given in honor of the visiting Yemeni prince, HRH Saif al-Islam Abdullah by Henry Villard, of the State Department, and Mrs. Villard.

The first American to go into the Yemen was a missionary, who was killed by a Turk in 1910. Charles Moser, who went to Yemen to inquire into his death, was a guest at yesterday's party. He told Charles R. Crane, who was then U. S. Minister to China, about the country, and the latter made the journey in 1926.

Carl Twitchell Is Guest

Carl Twitchell, another guest, was sent to Yemen as an engineer in 1926. Twitchell later told Harlan Clark, our Consul at Aden, about the country, and in 1945 Mr. Clark journeyed to see the Yemeni King. The next "invasion" was Col. William Eddy's mission for the State Department in 1946, which resulted in Rives Childs being made U. S. Minister to Yemen as well as Saudi-Arabia. It was Mr. Childs who arranged Prince Abdullah's present visit to the United States.

The cordial prince received guests yesterday with his hosts. Members of his entourage, He Said Hasan Ebrahim and HE Muhammad al-Amri, were also in the receiving line. The prince spoke through an interpreter. He arrived at the party about 10 minutes late, because of his unusual interest in a drive taken that afternoon to Mount Vernon.

Honors Lincoln

When the prince passed the Lincoln Memorial, he said "Ah, Mr. Lincoln, let's go in and have a look." He knows the Gettysburg address almost by heart. When he visited George Washington's tomb, he showed more than perfunctory interest. He paused for quite a while after placing a wreath on the tomb, and said "I am very happy to have done that."

The Ambassador of Turkey, Huseyin Ragip Baydur, was at the party, and the Egyptian Charge d'Affaires, Anis Azer. Others invited included the Iraq Ambassador and Mme. Jawdat, the Minister of the Lebanon and Mrs. Malik, the Saudi-Arabian Minister, Asad Al-Faqih, and the new Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khoury.

Saravias Honored At Farewell Party

OUT at the Army-Navy Country Club yesterday afternoon, friends of the retiring Naval Attache of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Saravia gathered to say farewell to the popular couple. Hosts at the cocktail fete were the Assistant Naval Attache and Senora de Anzorena.

The Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Ivanissevich were among the guests. Others included Fleet Admiral and Mrs. Chester Nimitz, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Marshall Greer, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. William Oscar Spears. About 150 guests were present.

Czech Envoy Fetes Health Group

By Marie Mclvair

THE Czechoslovak Embassy was filled with Czechs only yesterday afternoon for the reception given by the Ambassador and Mme. Slavik honoring members of the visiting "sokol."

The sokol isn't a secret organization nor a political body. It's simply a gymnastic group of Czechoslovakians whose aim is health. "A healthy spirit in a healthy body" is their creed.

Two chartered buses brought the more than 60 members of the group from the Czech colony at Belcamp, Md. There were others from Washington, which boasts a colony of its own. It was definitely a party for Czechoslovakians. They drank foaming Pilsener beer, nibbled from the buffet, and sat in conversational groups.

Mme. Slavik, in a summer print, had her cousin, Colonel Slavik, to receive with her until the Ambassador returned from Blair House and the reception given by the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Lovett and the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Norman Armour.

I met Dr. Prechal, robust and smiling head of the sokols in the United States, and Maria Provaznik, tiny, wiry little woman who runs the women's division of the sokols in Czechoslovakia. It was the first visit to this country for many but they all spoke English and said they had pictured America very much as it is.

Five Million Members

Dr. Kavalir, head of physical education in Czechoslovakia, told me that the sokol takes in one million families in Czechoslovakia, which means about five million citizens of all ages are members. Dr. Schauer, a young, bronzed athlete, seemed very pleased with all he had seen of Chicago, New York, Omaha, St. Louis and Toronto, but hopes he'll not miss a visit to Harvard University before he returns home.

The only familiar faces I saw in the gathering yesterday were those of the Military Attache of the Embassy and Mme. Schejbal, the Assistant Military Attache and Mme. Hajsman, and Dr. Mica Trbojevic, cousin of the Yugoslav Ambassador.

Dowdy or Chic?

OPPONENTS of the new fall fashions have assailed them on the grounds that they are a return to ugliness. Adrian, famed Hollywood stylist who was responsible for the padded shoulder fad, maintains that "the tied-in-the-middle figure is not only ugly but offensive — the dowdiest period of fashion history."

In extreme cases, Adrian may have a point.

Designed by Adele Simpson and shown with her collection yesterday, this gold satin dinner dress features all the radical style-items we have been hearing about; natural shoulder-line, wasp-waist, full gathered skirt to give the effect of fuller hips, and longer hemline. Would you say it is ugly?

Trip Winners Entertained At Embassy

SIX American boys and girls, winners of a contest sponsored by the Centennial Commission of Holland, Mich., were entertained at the Netherlands Embassy yesterday afternoon. The Minister of the Embassy, Jonkheer O. Reuchlin, acted as host in the absence of the Ambassador. Mrs. Reuchlin has left town for the summer and was unable to attend.

The contest marks the 100th year of Dutch emigration to the Midwest, and a six-week trip has been awarded to the six prize winners. They leave today from New York by KLM plane for Amsterdam, and will return in August by Holland-American liner Veendam.

Guests attending the reception yesterday included Senators and Representatives and their wives from the home States of the prize winners, and a few Congressmen of Dutch ancestry. Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. William Benton were invited, and Mr. and Mrs. William Stone. Also, Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Senator and Mrs. Homer Capehart, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Senator and Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Senator and Mrs. Bourke B. Hickenlooper and a score of others.

Son to Olmans

Mr. and Mrs. Morton A. Olman of Fairfax Village, announce the birth of a son, Mark Blumenthal Olman, on July 8 at Sibley Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Olman have a daughter, Sydney Ellen, aged 4.

"Now who told them it's my birthday?"

Isn't it wonderful when all your good friends remember to send you birthday cards. You, too, can make others happy by always remembering to send them birthday greetings. When you send a Gibson Birthday Card they'll know you sent the finest.

Town Talk

By Eva Hinton

WASHINGTON, even in the summer departure season, has almost as many people arriving as leaving. Just arrived from Paris is Mme. Francois Charles-Roux, wife of the Counselor of the French Embassy. In Paris Mme. Charles-Roux bought and took possession of an apartment owned by the former Mrs. Tony Biddle.

The building is a lovely old seventeenth century house with other dwellers. This makes for such complications as, "who is responsible for the upkeep of the cobble-paved court at the entrance?" and, "who must keep which part of the halls?"

Mme. Charles-Roux says that there's a man in Paris with the wisdom of Solomon and an equally detached point of view who makes his living just running these cooperative real estate ventures and that the co-owners have retained him to say who shall do what and when.

Mme. Charles-Roux found a touch of F st. in the Rue de la Paix when she met up with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey in Paris with their daughter, Mrs. Edward Smith, and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Peter Dewey. They were en route to a family reunion at the Deweys' seaside place in Normandy. Their beach had been an invasion point, and was known in secret landing parlance as "Omaha Beach."

Also in Paris for the season were Washingtonians Mrs. Truxton Beale and Mrs. Tom Sturges, who had been in Morrocco. Mrs. Beale's immediate plans sound very "prewar." After Paris she will "take the waters" at Monte Catini and go on to Venice and Sienna!

In Marseilles, while visiting her family, Mme. Charles-Roux had the happy experience of seeing relief packages which she had sent from Washington last winter opened by the little orphans for whom they were intended.

At the "Orphanage of the Cholera" (founded 100 years ago to care for tots left helpless after a decimating cholera epidemic) gaiety belied the institution's gloomy name.

"The tiniest ones, called 'poupees,' looked like little angels in the short pink and blue frocks from my packages," said Mme. Charles-Roux, "and they unpacked every single thing before my eyes."

And Mme. Charles-Roux had earned the money in Washington last winter for those gifts by being "teacher" at some literary French luncheons for a group including Mrs. James Pomeroy Hendrick, Mrs. William Benton, Mrs. William Burden, Mrs. Abram S. Hewitt and Mrs. Raymond Guest.

SHERATON MANAGERIAL CHANGE. Thomas A. De Veau, well-liked manager of the Sheraton Hotel for several years, also chairman of the operating committee of the Sheraton chain, leaves Washington this week to take over the management of Pittsburgh's Keystone Hotel, also a Sheraton unit. He'll be succeeded by James Patterson, manager of the Keystone . . . Before Mr. De Veau leaves our town he's vowed to spend at least two days in sightseeing. His Washington years have been so busy that he's never had time to enter the Capitol, the White House or go up the Washington Monument! . . . One of incoming Manager Patterson's first chores will be a study of the hotel's Dubonnet Room which may be considerably altered both in policy and appearance . . . Maestro George Berg will be back in the Dubonnet Room on Saturday after his Atlantic City vacation. Jack Powers has been pinchhitting smartly as leader while Herbie De Barry of WPIK has filled in at the piano.

Miguelito
At The Madrillon

Sidney Seidenmann (Sidney of the Mayflower) is off to Rangeley Lakes, Me., for a vacation that's been coming to him for a long time . . . Olmstead's Leonard Mitchell postcards from Manhattan that he enjoyed "A Young Man's Fancy," new comedy of summer camp life.

A LITTLE WHITE GARDENIA, about as big as a 10-cent piece, was given to every guest at "Mayor" Ciro's recent dinner party at his Ciro's. These fascinating pigmy posies were the gift of Mary Pearson, the beauteous soprano insurance lady. She has a huge gardenia bush in her apartment which she solemnly states was raised from a single gardenia given her years ago . . . The Mayor's dinner was superb—stuffed tomatoes and celery, spaghetti with clam sauce, baked red salmon, chicken cacciatore, 1934 Melino white wine, coupe Romanoff (strawberries frozen with blended cordials) and flaming cafe diable.

No dreamy clinging vine is organist Edith Davies of the Neptune Room. When the loud speakers went dead on her the other night, she serenely asked the audience to excuse her for a moment, climbed around the bandstand until she located the trouble-making gadget, adjusted it and resumed playing "Begin the Beguine" right where she'd left off.

MADRILLON PERSONALITIES. Singer Sue Milroy wears a wrist band whislte to call help in case of wolf truble (or could it be she's a wolfette?) . . . Trombonist Marty Emerson writes a column about records for Hi-Notes, the musician's mag . . . Bandleader Johnny Robb tries to put vocals in every number—idea is to step up entertainment . . . Singer Miguelito is a former antiaircraftsman, has three combat stars . . . Tana, the country's best dressed seeress, is flaunting luscious hand-painted blosuses.

MAESTROS' CHOICES. Bobby Simpson, handsome young bandleader at the Old New Orleans, likes the tunes of some seasons back. His favorite is "Too Marvelous for Words."

Corn Outlook Is Improved By Weather

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Both the Weather Bureau in its weekly report and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson reported yesterday good growing weather has greatly improved prospects for this year's corn crop.

At the same time, traders on the grain exchanges shoved prices of both wheat and corn up. July corn yesterday closed at $2.20½, up five cents from Monday's close. July wheat jumped 4¾ cents to $2.39¾.

In New York, buyers swarmed into the Cotton Market, sending futures up $4.45 to $5.25 a bale. In New Orleans prices went up $4.25 to $4.50 a bale.

Heaviest buying followed the termination of July contracts at noon at a final trading price of 38.98 cents a pound in New York and 39.11 cents in New Orleans.

Futures Trading Increases

From the Commodity Exchange Authority at the Agriculture Department came word that futures trading in agriculture commodities has increased 56 per cent in the 12 months ended June 30.

The number of transactions totaled 6,720,000, compared with 4,294,000 in 1946, but below the 7,194,000 estimated in 1940.

Cotton comprised the largest market, the total being the highest record since 1929, the last and greatest year in the big boom of the late 1920s.

Cotton transactions numbered 2,205,000, compared with 1,207,000 in 1946 and 891,000 in 1940. The volume, amounting to 110 million bales, compared with 60 million in 1946. Trading has declined, the report added, since the postwar peak at the time of the break in the cotton market last October.

Grain transactions increased 44 per cent, from 2,902,000 in 1946 to 4,179,000.

Corn Trading Tops Wheat

"Trading in corn futures," the report said, "which came back more quickly than wheat trading after removal of price controls, is currently the most active grain commodity. The volume in June was 530,764,000 bushels."

Brokers reported that for the first time in 19 years most brokerage house accounts show a larger short position in corn than long position, indicating a feeling on the part of traders that a break should develop.

This situation so close to closing of trading in July futures, which comes next Wednesday, is one factor of strength in the present market. Traders are short more corn than is available, and will face difficulty making deliveries.

Further factors entering into the market was Anderson's optimistic statement statement yesterday that American grain exports this year will probably remain at the record levels of last year.

Weather Aids Corn Crop

The Weather Bureau report said that generally above normal temperatures and abundant sunshine in the main Midwestern corn belt have stimulated growth of the crop, which is much later than normal.

In Iowa the major corn State, both progress and condition of the crop was reported good, with 24 per cent laid by on July 12 in comparison to 90 per cent last year.

The winter wheat harvest, the bureau said, made rapid progress during the week. The condition of spring wheat was reported to be good to excellent.

Cotton made generally good to very good progress.

Egg Trading Sets Record

In its report on other commodities than grain, the CEA stated that futures trading in eggs was "the largest on record."

"The 135,325 carlots of egg futures traded in the recent year compared with 79,357 in 1946 and represented nearly three times the prewar activity."

While CEA was making its report, J. A. Higgings, jr., vice president of the National Association of Commodity Exchanges and Allied Trades, was telling the House Agricultural Committee that commodity exchanges are "the most effective of all price stabilizers" in a free market.

He urged rejection of "any and place our time-proven system of all proposals that would again redistribution with a controlled market."

Artificial Limb Display Opens Today at VA

You can go there, to Room 890, and see what is being worn these days in the way of artificial eyes, artificial hands, artificial ears, artificial noses, artificial legs and arms.

And although the sight may depress you at first—the idea that so many man-made limbs are needed—you may eventually get around to the idea that some of the men have who work with prosthetics:

"If you have lost a foot or an arm or a leg, you really are lucky, in a way. Because then you begin to live—to appreciate the fact that you have two good eyes and that your mind's okay, that your "handicap' has made you realize how many assets you have."

Veterans Given Choice

It's rather amazing to see how many ways people already have found to combat the handicaps. Research now is going on to improve the lot of the amputee and the maimed, both in the Government and in private industry.

And the Veterans' Administration display is designed to eliminate duplication of effort in research work by providing a centralized point at which inventors may learn what already has been developed in the field of aids for the physically handicapped.

To veterans, these aids in the form of the best available prosthetic devices are furnished without cost. The veteran, wherever possible, is allowed to choose the appliance he will wear. And the Veterans' Administration checks his choice against available manufacturers' supplies in the area in which he lives.

For the man who has lost a leg below the knee there are all kinds of below-knee legs to choose from. Those with air sockets, slip sockets, with soft leather or solid leather or wood.

"Cosmetic Gloves" Provided

There has been experimentation in facial restoration and it has been found that plastic is a better restorative than wax. So you can get a plastic nose or ear or cheek or mouth.

There is a thing called a cosmetic glove for use by those who have lost one or more fingers. It looks like a man's hand, even down to the veins and hair on the "skin" of the back of the hand.

There are a myriad of other exhibits in the display, which now is a permanent part of the VA's prosthetic section and which may be viewed between the hours of 9 and 5 tomorrow and from 10 to 4 on weekdays after that.

At today's opening, Harold Russell, handless former GI and a star of "The Best Years of Our Lives" will assist VA officials in explaining devices for the disabled.

India May Study Constitutions Here as Model

New Delhi, India, July 15 (AP).—India's constituent assembly accepted today for consideration a committee report proposing provincial constitutions modeled upon States of the United States after one member objected because the constitutions were not patterned after the Russian model.

Provincial constitution proposals provide for adult suffrage above the age of 21, a popularly elected governor holding office for a four-year term and a unicameral or bicameral legislature as the individual provinces my choose.

Maulana Hasrat Mohani, Communist leader and now a Moslem Leaguer from the United Provinces, opposed the draft constitution on the ground it was not modeled after that of Soviet Russia.

Independence Bill Passes

London, July 15 (AP).—The India independence bill was approved by the Commons today without a formal vote. It now goes to the Lords.

Pilotless Blimp Lands After 8-Mile Journey

Eureka, Calif., July 15 (AP).—Navy blimp K-99, caught in a terrific down-draft of air, plunged into the ocean south of here yesterday and, after its 11 occupants had escaped unhurt, rose again to come finally to earth 8 miles north of Eureka.

Suicide Failure of Gangster's Girl Reported at Monte Carlo

Nice, France, July 15 (U.P.).—Glamorous Virginia Hill, girl friend of the lately liquidated Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel, tried to kill herself at an exclusive Monte Carlo beach hotel where she was in hiding from Los Angeles gunmen sent to shoot her also, police said tonight.

Miss Hill swallowed a full tube of sleeping tablets in the attempt, police said, but hotel employes found her in her room and she was sent to the Villa Albert I Clinic, where she recovered.

She was discharged from the clinic, operated by the Monte Carlo Hospital, last Friday, two days after the attempt, it was said.

Miss Hill had come to France the week before Siegel was shot to death June 20 through a window of her Beverley Hills home in which he was staying.

It was reported from Los Angeles last week that two gunmen had been sent to Paris to liquidate her, as they had rubbed out Siegel, because she knew too much.

Police and attendants at the clinic indicated that her condition was serious when she was found but physicians managed to save her, they said.

Police said they believed Miss Hill despaired of eluding the gunmen reported to be on the way to France.

Warned Siegel of Death

Las Vegas, Nev., July 15 (U.P.).—Virginia Hill warned Benjamin Siegel he was marked for death, it was disclosed here tonight.

The warning was uttered as Miss Hill was being treated early last month at a hospital here for an overdose of sleeping pills.

Siegel was so grateful because her life was saved that he offered to give the doctor a new wing to his institution.

"Better give him your hotel and let him turn it into a hospital," she was reported to have said. "We'll both get out of here before those guys kill you."

Truman, Marshall in Policy Rift

By Drew Pearson

Republican leaders hushed it up, but seldom has so much oratorical vitriol been poured forth in a session of a GOP policy conference as was heaped on the head of fellow-Republican Senator Bill Langer of North Dakota last week for snafuing the probe of the Kansas City vote scandal.

Sen. Langer

The two Republican Senators from Missouri were especially vitriolic. Bricker of Ohio ranted and raved. But all they succeeded in doing was to make the tempestuous, cigar-chewing North Dakotan madder than usual.

Langer, one of the most independent voters in the Senate, never hesitates to thumb his nose at the Republican leaders who once tried to prevent him from taking his Senate seat. Once prosecuted by the Justice Department on a political charge when he was Governor of North Dakota, Langer contends that a lot of unfair politics can creep into a vote investigation. He even states in his self-penned biographical sketch that he is the "only person ever to be arrested in an English-speaking country for filing an affidavit of prejudice against a judge."

Langer now controls the deciding vote on the Senate Judiciary Committee, and GOP Senators Donnell and Kem of Missouri demanded to know if he intended to support Democratic efforts to block the Kansas City probe.

If so, they threatened to discharge the Judiciary Committee and set up a special committee to conduct the investigation.

"Well, I'm damned if I'm going to change my position," shouted the North Dakotan angrily. "I don't care what you do."

At this, Bricker jumped into the fray with a lecture on party "regularity."

"This is one of the best campaign issues we've got," he declared. "Kansas City is more important to us than flood control, soil conservation or almost anything before Congress. You should see the way papers in Ohio eat up the news about Kansas City."

The Democrats should be made to answer for the "crooked politicians" of the Pendergast machine, Bricker continued, adding that he would join the fight for a special committee if the Judiciary Committee failed to do the job.

Everybody at the secret caucus agreed with Bricker's political strategy — except Langer. The North Dakotan, who never hesitates to vote as he pleases, sat champing at his cigar with an expression on his face that plainly told his GOP colleagues to go jump in the lake.

Michigander Vandenberg

Burly Senator Arthur Vandenberg has been accused of neglecting his State of Michigan to devote full attention to the problems of the Nation. But he won't let anyone belittle Michigan and get away with it—not as long as he is presiding over the Senate. When Republican William Langer of North Dakota referred to Pontiac, Mich., as "another little town" the other day, Vandenberg cut him short.

"A point or order," boomed Vandenberg. "What does the Senator mean by 'another little town'?"

Truman's Wisecracks

Harry Truman is getting to be almost as much of a wisecracker as Franklin Roosevelt when it comes to receiving visitors at the White House. He let loose quite a line when Democratic leaders from six Southern States called on him recently.

White House attaches privately were expecting "rebel yells" from the Southern politicos as a result of the labor and tax-bill vetoes. However, Texas' expansive Myron G. Blalock broke the ice by plunking down a $50,000 check as the Texas contribution to the Democratic National Committee. After that, everything was plain sailing. Oklahoma's Governor Bob Kerr followed with a donation of $26,000.

The Southern leaders all urged the President to get on the back end of a campaign train and make a political swing through the South, speaking from the rear platform at every sizable stop. Blalock was particularly eager to have the President come to Texas.

"You know, Myron," replied the President, "I was down in Mexico recently for the 100th anniversary of the Mexican war. When I got back to the States, Texas urged me to attend the 100th anniversary of their liberation from Mexico."

Earlier, Democratic Party Executive Director Gael Sullivan had remarked that Kentucky's national committeeman, Undersecretary of Labor Keen Johnson, was "full of mellow wisdom."

"As long as that mellow wisdom is made from good Missouri corn," shot back the President, "that's all right."

The President also said he hoped Johnson wasn't too full of it.

Best Truman gag of the conference came in reply to National Committeeman Henry Servier of Louisiana, who promised the President a big reception if he visited the South.

Louisiana Oratory

"That reminds me," Truman said, "of the time Senator Broussard took a Washington big-shot down to the Cajun country to make a speech. The Cajuns didn't understand English, so the Senator stationed a friend who understood both Cajun and English behind the speaker. The crowd had orders to applaud when the man behind the speaker held up one finger. If he held up two fingers, they were to applaud still louder. And if he held up both hands, they were to raise the roof with their applause.

"At the end of the speech, the big-shot from Washington turned to the Senator and said, 'My, Senator, this is the most responsive audience I have ever had. I would like to be invited back.'

"I hope," concluded Truman, "that isn't the kind of reception you're planning for me if I come to Louisiana!"

This prompted Louisiana State Chairman John Fred Odom to assure the President he would get a tumultuous welcome. Then, letting his voice ring out as if he were in a convention hall, Odom boomed:

"Mr. President, I feel like saying now, 'Louisiana casts its 22 votes for Harry S. Truman!' We'll be shoutin' that next year."

After Servier assured Truman there are no Republicans in Louisiana, Texan Blalock proclaimed:

Even Oklahoma's Bob Kerr laughed.

Pittances for Plays

An Author Tells Of Leaner Days

By Richard L. Coe

IF YOU HAVE the habit of mistaking strangers for old friends, you'll know how we felt sometime back when we stopped a distinguished looking man, sixty-ish, and asked if he were our old headmaster.

No sooner had we done so than we knew he wasn't, but he was very charming about the episode. He turned out to be George Middleton, of whom we'd heard a good deal because of his activity with the Dramatists Guild.

Now Middleton has produced his autobiography, "These Things Are Mine," a book of theatrical reminiscences dating back to the turn of the century. He makes no bones about not being a "great" dramatist, but objectively describes himself as a "journeyman playwright." He collaborated a great deal, made effective adaptations from the French and from novels and won friends in America and Europe.

Washington, literally home to him now, is a recurrent background to his story, for he married Fola La Follette, daughter of the late Senator and presidential candidate. Since the war began he's been serving the Office of Alien Property as a trade specialist in international copyright problems involving authors and composers, which accounts for our opening night assault on him at the National.

It is in his capacity as a protector of dramatists' rights that Middleton has scored his most solid bullseye, both in life and in his book. For "These Things Are Mine" tells the story of our American playwrights' struggle for their property as it has not been told before.

"Way Down East"

To anyone who follows the complicated legal technicalities of stage and screen scripts, it will seem incredible that only 22 years ago our playwrights had almost no protection in what happened to their brain children. Scripts could be sold to the screen, for instance, with the original management copping almost all the profits.

The case of "Way Down East" was earlier and is an extreme example, but it serves. William A. Brady first produced this in 1896 and kept it touring for 22 years. Total box office returns were over 14 million, but Author Lottie Blair Parker sold it outright for $5000.

How the dramatists finally got together to insure equitable shares in their plays' profits is a fascinating story. Told by one of its leading figures, the chapters devoted to their struggle (which still continues in the Screen Writers Guild) are a unique contribution to our theatrical history (and, for that matter, to trade unionism generally).

Those One-Act Plays

Because the French playwrights were the first to succeed in the fight for protection, Middleton knew the continental dramatic picture intimately and writes, too, of how Shaw and the British dramatists backed up their American confreres. As in all books of theatrical recollections, his visits with Shaw are among its most vital paragraphs.

Another facet of "These Things Are Mine" is his attempt to popularize that neglected child of the drama—the one-act play. Noel Coward's enormously successful "Tonight at 8:30" is today's most heartening white knight in that consistently losing struggle. But we'll string along with Middleton in favor of one-act plays despite their only drawback: the public rarely takes to them.

It's a leisurely book, affectionately lingering over names and events long forgotten and doing so with an exactness for authenticity that amounts to a passion. But such is often the tone of a story-teller who is in love with theater. And whatever his other interests—and there are many—and no matter how old he grows, George Middleton always will be in love with theater.

NEW FLICKS: Though it's doing "swell business" at the Earle, "Great Expectations" must give way tomorrow to "The Perils of Pauline," the comedy wherein Betty Hutton reenacts Pearl White's hair-raising serials . . . Nor will "Odd Man Out" stay at the Metropolitan, despite its solid reception. "The Unfaithful" goes in . . . "The Hucksters" sticks to the Palace's Friday opening sked . . . "Easy Come Easy Go" takes over the Capitol with Boyd Raeburn's ork, as the Variety spelling has it . . . This morning's opening is "They Won't Believe Me," at Keith's . . . The Little, as it always does, is having a happy time with "Storm in a Teacup" on its umpteenth visit . . . And the Columbia gets "The Michigan Kid," with Rita Johnson and Jon Hall, another new one.

NAUGHTY GIRL, BAD BOY: Susan Hayward and Robert Young are the lustful couple who get involved in a double murder during Keith's "They Won't Believe Me," opening this morning

Why Mike Todd's Bride Won't Get Her Million

FINANCE DEPT.: In the Stork Club Michael Todd was relating to his bride, Joan Blondell, some of his experiences as a high-stake gambler in Broadway and Hollywood. These reminiscences were brought on by Blondell's sighing: "I wish I had one million dollars" and Mike's reply: "NOW you tell me?" . . . Todd, who foreswore all gambling two months ago, used to play gin rummy for such high stakes that a syndicate would finance his opponent. Five, 10 and 20 cents a point shares were meted out to the syndicate members . . . One day Al Lackey, former husband of Sophie Tucker, needed $50 for a hotel room. He approached Todd just before a gin game began, and Todd gave him the $50. When the game was over Todd collected his winnings, and discovered that Lackey had bet the $50 against Todd. Lackey admitted it, and when Todd berated him for it, he replied, "Don't tell me what to do with my money."

Joan Blondell

SOCIAL NOTE: Clyde Pangborn heard of the illness of Max Aiken and said, "If Aiken has let it be known that he's ill, then his ailment must be serious." Pangborn cited this example of Aiken's reluctance to discuss his personal affairs: In the early days of the war Pangborn was at a party given by Aiken's father, Lord Beaverbrook. Aiken arrived three hours late. "Sorry to be a little late," was all he said . . . Pangborn checked and learned that Aiken was "a little late" because his plane had been shot down during a fight over the Channel, he parachuted to safety, was rescued and then rushed to the London party.

MOVIES: A bridge game was played the other night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Small. George Burns, of Burns and Allen, was paired with Dore Schary, production head of RKO. "Mr. Schary, let's get one thing straight before we start," Burns warned the movie producer. "I don't want to go into pictures, so the first mistake you make I'll punch you in the nose."

CRIME DEPT.: One of the policemen assigned to the Sheila Mannering murder case on W. 57th st., New York, went into the kitchen to search for clues. Another policeman heard him trying to force open the door of the refrigerator, and when he emerged from the kitchen he was asked: "Well, did you find anything?" He shook his head . . . "What about the refrigerator?" he was asked. "You were in there a long time. Why?" . . . The cop shrugged: "I was hungry."

ADVERTISING DEPT.: Nicky Blair's Carnival was a sell-out last night. When this news was brought backstage to Lou Holtz, who is appearing there with Bert Wheeler, Barry Wood, Patsy Kelly and Diosa Costello, Holtz said: "In the words of an English comic who once worked at the Palladium, 'It proves conclusively that I've been properly advertised.'"

Fowler Insists 2-Line Script Enough for Man of His Talent

Hollywood.—Gene Fowler's pals, Nunnally Johnson and George Kaufman, are insisting on his playing a newspaper morgue clerk in their picture, "The Senator Was Indiscreet." But Gene is holding out for approval of his two lines of script and a salary worthy of his talents. "However," says he, "since everybody's going ham, I might as well, too, especially since my son is associate producer on the film." Incidentally, studio bidding for the movie rights on Beau Broadway," Gene's biography of Jimmy Walker, is nearing a million dollars; and the book is still far from being completed . . . The picture Mark Hellinger will make with Humphrey Bogart will likely be Ernest Hemingway's last published book. Mark has all the Hemingway stories not previously sold for pictures tied up now; and he can make films from them anywhere he chooses.

George S. Kaufman

Human Dynamo

If Betty Hutton could bottle and sell her energy she could ruin the vitamin business. Her latest film, "Perils of Pauline," is an exaggerated, rip-snorting story of the old days in Hollywood, in which the little Hutton is a combination of Pearl White, Sophie Tucker, and Texas Guinan. Her vitality shakes the screen, and it'll shake hundreds of laughs out of you, too . . . Rumors of a separation between John Payne and Gloria De Haven are about town again. But when John got a call from Gloria to join her in San Francisco the other night, he stood up a friend for dinner, grabbed a plane, and got north quickly . . . Bing Crosby will likely have Lucille Norman opposite him in "Connecticut Yankee." She's testing for the part, Lucille, a radio singer, was formerly under contract to Metro. . . . Butch Jenkins' brother, Skipper, makes his screen debut as Butch's pal in "Virtuous." Metro had to promise him a new bicycle to do the part. Unlike Butch, he's not interested in pictures.

Spanish War Veterans Elect Richmond Man

Roanoke, Va., July 15 (AP).—T. J. Cousins of Richmond today was elected commander of the Department of Virginia, United Spanish War Veterans, in the final session of a two-day encampment at Hotel Roanoke. He succeeds Clyde George of Portsmouth.

Mrs. Ruth B. Davis of Charlottesville was elected to succeed Mrs. Myrtle Wymer of Staunton as president of the Women's Auxiliary.

The next convention will be held in Portsmouth, the veterans agreed. Approximately 200, including members of the auxiliary, attended this convention.

H. T. Cook of Winchester was elected senior vice commander and H. T. Reid of Norfolk, junior vice commander. Cousins will appoint additional officers later. M. E. Bristow of Richmond was indorsed by the department as a candidate for junior vice commander in chief of the national organization.

Resort Project Reviewed

Oakland, Md., July 15 (AP).—Evidence that the Kenstro-Clarke Management Co. still planned a multimillion-dollar recreation resort at Deep Creek Lake was contained in payment of a recording fee at the Garrett County Court House.

The company paid the fee for recording its lease of the Marsh Hill property from Aubrey Brenneman. The firm originally announced plans for building a seven million dollar resort, but earlier this year announced the start was being delayed because of high prices and shortage of materials.

Berkeley 4-H Clubs To Spend Week at Camp

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 15.—Berkeley County 4-H Clubs will open a week-long camp Monday at Camp Frame, 4-H summer resort, County Agent W. N. McClung announced today.

This marks the first time in more than 10 years that Berkeley County has sponsored a camp of its own.

70 Laid Off at Detrick

Frederick, Md., July 15 (AP).—Col. Lloyd E. Fellenz, commanding officer, today announced the layoff of 70 civilian workers at Camp Detrick.

Va. Highway Travel Gains Again in June

Richmond, Va., July 15 (AP).—Travel over Virginia's primary highway system continued its steady increase in June, amid indications that many Virginia motorists are using their automobiles more for business than pleasure, the State Highway Department said today.

In its monthly survey of traffic throughout the State, the department found a 15.5 per cent increase over traffic in June, 1946, and a 19.2 per cent increase over travel in June, 1941.

Some of the data assembled by traffic counters last month was analyzed separately to see how "Sunday driving" in 1947 compares with the old prewar habit of many car owners.

It was found that Sunday traffic has increased over 1941, but by less than 6 per cent.

Other information reaching the department, however, indicates that many Virginia motorists are taking their vacations entirely within the Old Dominion. It is believed that this same condition—blamed largely on the shortage of new cars—exists in most other States and is a primary factor in this Summer's tourist slump.

The department's figures showed that traffic by out-of-State cars dropped last month, while 19 per cent over such traffic in June, 1946, still was nearly 5 per cent below out-of-State travel in June, 1941.

National Weather Summary

TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR FORECAST: Weather experts say hot sultry weather will continue over most of the United States for the next 24 hours. Afternoon temperatures will be in the eighties in the Lakes Region, the Ohio Valley and the Far West. Highest readings in the Nation will be recorded in the Southwest Desert Region where the mercury will soar above 100 degrees. Maximum temperatures in the rest of the Nation will be in the nineties.

Towering thunderheads followed by showers and thunderstorms will extend from Maine to Florida, through the Plains States, along the east slopes of the Rockies and the Northwest coast. (Storms will occur in the affected areas in the coming 24 hours.)

Skies will be overcast from New York to Tennessee and Georgia today. The remainder of the United States will be mostly sunny with clear to partly cloudy skies. (See inset map.)

Air flow will continue to determine the weather over the Nation. Warm southerly breezes will continue carrying warm moist air inland. (See Fotocast.) This warm, moist air causes us to feel uncomfortable and will produce the storms shown on the map.

Weather fans will note high pressure cells are located in the Atlantic, the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific. The location of these "high cells" gives a southerly air flow over most of the country. (See air flow arrows.)

Highest temperatures expected this afternoon include Atlanta, St. Louis, Fort Worth and Tulsa, 96; Kansas City, 95; New York, Hartford, Nashville and Albany, 88; Philadelphia, 87; Washington, 86; Boston, 85; Duluth, 84; Chicago, 83; Detroit and Pittsburgh, 82; Cleveland, 81; Buffalo, 80, and Milwaukee, 78.

Missing Girl Found Dead In Millrace

A 14-year-old Catonsville, Md., girl, missing from her home since Saturday night, was found dead yesterday in a Patapsco River millrace, near Catonsville.

The victim, Anne Ryan, daughter of Mrs. William Ryan, had been dead about two days, Dr. George Kieffer, medical examiner, said. He declared there was no surface evidence of four play though the child's face was battered and bruised.

Finding of her body followed discovery of her brother's bicycle, on which she apparently rode from home, on the bank of the Patapsco a mile and a half upstream. Her body was fully clad save for one missing shoe and sock.

Mrs. Ryan said her daughter went to the basement of her home Saturday evening to play and did not answer when called at 9:30 p. m.

In an apparently unrelated case later yesterday, Baltimore police broadcast a lookout for a man wanted for rape on a 6-year-old Catonsville girl.

The police message identified the wanted man as Milton Payton, white, between 23 to 27 years old, dark hair, wearing light blue slacks and a white shirt. Attack on the child occurred at 2:15 p. m. yesterday, police said.

Md. Incomes Yield 1946 Tax Of $12,771,295

Annapolis, Md., July 15 (AP).—Comptroller James J. Lacy announced today a total of $12,771,295 had been collected on 1946 State income taxes.

The final figure on returns was made public after Lacy had announced that total receipts in income takes during the fiscal year, including payments from preceding years, were $15,346,496.

Resident individuals paid the State $10,808,871, making out 258,697 returns.

Corporations, filing 3740 returns, paid $1,783,430.

Other classifications and payments: Fiduciaries, 584 returns, $71,701; nonresident individuals, 1333 returns, $62,162; tax withheld, 131 returns, $40,923; miscellaneous, 96 returns, $4205.

Meanwhile, payments of the second installment on 1947 taxes were pouring into the income tax division office today—the deadline for such payments.

Airline Seeks Route Permit To Rehoboth

Baltimore, July 15 (AP).—Chesapeake Airlines announced today it has applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board for authority to start service immediately to Rehoboth, Del., on a temporary basis.

Benjamin C. Howard, attorney for the airline, said the CAB auso has been asked to separate the air line's applications for service on the Delaware-Maryland peninsula from the complex "middle Atlantic case" now before the regulatory body.

Chesapeake already serves the Eastern Shore from Baltimore, with flights into Salisbury and connecting bus trips to Ocean City, Md.

Howard said Rehoboth Beach needs service at the height of the resort season and that it would be "silly" for the CAB to let another summer go by without authorizing a route there.

Lutherans Open Mission Session

Strasburg, Va., July 15 (AP).—Addressing the opening session of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia in St. Paul's Lutheran Church here tonight, the Rev. F. Epping Reinartz, D. D., of New York, discussed the question of what Christians should give to God in return for the blessing they receive.

Dr. Reinartz emphasized the futility of anyone's attempting to make an adequate list of what man should render to God. He said, however, that Christians should exalt the idea of God, the glory of His power as creator, the majesty of His power as redeemer and the beauty of His power as sanctifier.

Reserve Unit Activated

Winchester, Va., July 15—Battery B, 159th Airborne Antiaircraft Battalion, Second Army Reserve Corps, has been activated as a Class C unit. Officers assigned to the unit include Vincent M. Noonan, commanding officer; Lieut. David Kuhn, executive officer; Lieut. Braxton Duvall and Lieut. Robert Sargent, platoon commanders.

Teen-Age Play Plan May Drag Till Teens Pass

Annapolis, Md., July 15 (AP).—Annapolis teen-agers learned today that by the time the city acquires the building they want for a recreation center, they may no longer be teen-agers.

The youngsters campaign for better play facilities, and particularly for turning the present USO building into a recreation center, reached City Council last night.

There Mayor William U. McCready and Councilmen told a delegation of teen-agers the Federal Government holds a lease on the two-story building until 1952. The mayor explained, however, that the lease may be dropped at the end of this year.

John B. Smith and James Meredith, spokesmen for the 25 young campaigners who have been circulating petitions and putting up posters, wanted to know if the city had specific plans for operating the building.

Counselor George B. Woelfel replied with a distinct "No"—not until we hear from all the people of Annapolis."

AAserting that "I favor recreation for young people," McCready said that when the city helped finance the USO building, it was planned eventually as a community center. He promised a special meeting for "the whole of Annapolis" when the city hears it may take over the building.

In the meantime, he suggested the teen-agers try Anne Arundel County Commissioners for some recreation funds.

Crops Flourish, Farmer Well Up With Work in Va.

Richmond, Va., July 15 (AP).—Crops in Virginia made rapid growth during the week ended July 11, according to the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. Harvesting of small grains and hay, however, was retarded in many areas by frequent showers.

Throughout the State, the report said, farmers are busy harvesting hay, cultivating tobacco, corn, peanuts and cotton, and in the northern and western counties are harvesting wheat and oats. As a whole, farmers are well up with their work, and in most sections labor is reported to be sufficient for present requirements.

Lady Astor Denies Bid to Royalty

Richmond, Va., July 15 (AP).—Lady Astor said here today she was amazed to see published stories from London July 12 that she had invited Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten to spend their honeymoon at Mirador, her ancestral estate in Albemarle County.

"I cabled my congratulations but I never thought to make such an offer," the American-born former member of Parliament said. "I would be delighted to have them come to Virgina because they would get a royal welcome, but I never had the impertinence to offer them my estate."

Napier Ordered Held for Jury

Wise, Va., July 15 (AP).—William Napier, 39, charged with violating the Dyer Act involving interstate thefts of motor vehicles, was ordered held in bond of $10,000 for the Federa lgrand jury following a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Carl Hamilton today.

Charles Thompson, president of the Thompson Motor Co., at Pennington Gap, Va., and his son, Cecil, obtained continuances of their cases on Dyer Act violations.

Napier is accused of unlawful transportation of a vehicle from Richmond, Ind., to Pennington Gap, where he allegedly offered the car for sale at the Thompson Motor Co. The FBI charges that during 1946 and 1947 approximately 200 late model cars had been sold by Thompson Motor Co. and that many of these automobiles were believed to have been stolen in Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, and Ohio.

Large-Profit Period Ending, Farmers Told

Orkney Springs, Va., July 15 (AP).—A Virginia Tech economist today advised farmers to operate "on a sound basis," to consider "the period of good crops, advancing prices and large profits either at or near an end," and to "arrange their operations to meet a possible recession."

"The element of nervousness in the price situation could develop into a serious break," Dr. Harry Love, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, said, "and farmers who recognize this and gear themselves to it might not continue to make as large a profit as those who do not, but they will be more safe in the event history does repeat itself again."

Love spoke at today's session of the conference of directors of Production Credit Associations in Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland. The conference will be concluded tomorrow.

The agriculturist economist declared that "a break in prices today would be most serious to agriculture, since as a result of the war farmers have geared their operations to high fixed costs in production."

The peak postwar price level for farm products was reached in April and dropped nine points in June to an index of 271, while at the same time farmers were paying on an index of 230, Love said. This indicates, he added, "a smaller possible profit to the farmer, a situation somewhat parallel to 1920."

Condemnation Extended

Frederick, Md., July 15 (AP).—The Federal Government wants to add 44 acres to an order condemning 35 acres of farm land for the possible expansion of Camp Detrick.

An amendment to the original condemnation order has been filed in the Circuit Court here. It has the signed approval of Federal Judge W. Calvin Chestnut of Baltimore unless cause to the contrary is shown by Thursday.

The amendment increases the amount that the Government estimated as just compensation for the land owned by D. Chester Kemp from $7000 to $17,300.

22,627 in County Schools

Total enrollment for the past school year in Prince Georges County, Md., was 22,627, according to the report of Miss Kathleen Shears, supervisor of school attendance. Of this number 6644 were high school students. The county as a whole had a 92.6 per cent attendance through the year, considered an extremely good average, Miss Shears said.

Bond Issue Approved

Cumberland, Md., July 15 (AP).—A resolution calling for the sale of a $250,000 bond issue to raise funds for the erection of a new Alleghany County infirmary and juvenile home was approved by the board of Alleghany County commissioners today.

Tuck Schedules Arbitration Parley

Richmond, Va., July 15 (AP).—An arbitration conference will be held in Governor Tuck's office at 11 a. m. Thursday among representatives of the Roanoke Railway & Electric Co., the Safety Motor Transit Corp. and Local 1368, International Association of Machinists, the Governor's office announced today.

The parties are deadlocked in negotiations on a new contract after several conferences conducted under provisions of the State labor relations law.

DADDY, THERE'S A MAN AT THE DOOR SELLING SOMETHING--
HUH? YOU SEE HIM, TAFFY-- IF HE HAS SOMETHING WE NEED, BUY IT-- IF NOT, DON'T TAKE IT--- YOU'LL BE A HOUSEWIFE SOME DAY, AND YOU'LL HAVE TO LEARN TO HANDLE SITUATIONS LIKE THIS!
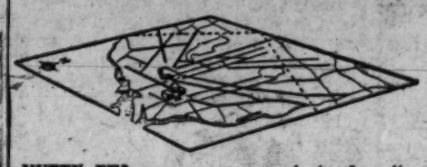
THERE'S MONEY ON THE TELEPHONE TABLE IF YOU NEED IT--Z-Z-Z.
I GUESS I'LL MAKE LOTS OF MISTAKES LIKE THIS BEFORE I LEARN--WON'T I, HUH?

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold



Georgetown Squirrels Profit As Mechanics Err

NUTTY, EH?

You've heard stories of gardeners who planted tomatoes and reaped weeds? Well here's one about a gardener who planted tomatoes and harvested nuts.

Shannon Allen, the radio producer guy, is forever digging up nuts in the garden of his home at 3230 N st. nw.

Investigation of this strange phenomenon reveals that the nuts are the property of some neighborhood squirrels who have stumbled on a rare bonanza.

The Allen back yard adjoins the Chestnut Farms Garage, at 3241 Prospect ave. And the boys in the garage have evolved a novel way of enforcing shop rules.

Whenever anybody does something he shouldn't have done, he's fined a certain amount of nuts—the fines varying according to the offense. The nuts are put out for the squirrels, and the squirrels immediately bury them in Allen's garden.

Allen reports that the system meets with the enthusiastic approval of all concerned—most especially the neighborhood nut vendor.

MAIL BAG

This unsigned gem was waiting in my mail box when I got back:

My girl's legs
Are so darned crooked;
Her seams are straight
But they don't look it.

GIVE-AWAYS

"One black female cat with white 'boots.' We already have a male cat and feel you ought to help us find a home for this one because we found her on the steps of The Post one night and temporarily adopted her. NOrth 7696 before 10 a. m. or after 8 p. m."

Okay, we'll help. After all, if she's a Post cat she'll obviously make an intelligent pet for somebody.

ABOUT STREETS

Meyer E. Colbert of 3736 1st st. se., writes:

"I've noticed that two States are not represented in the District by having streets named after them. They are Missouri and Ohio. Can you tell me why they've been left out in the cold?"

Well, Meyer, Missouri was left out in the cold until Harry S. Truman became President, and then the city stepfathers hurriedly changed the name of Concord ave. nw. to Missouri ave. It runs between 16th st. and North Capitol.

The Ohio situation poses a problem. Dimly, I seem to recall an Ohio ave. some place in the District, but our huge city map here at The Post fails to show it. Can any of you District Liners straighten us out?

LIFE IS LIKE THAT

One of the favorite pickup spots for cab drivers is the Mayflower Hotel. The Mayflower's affluent guests are usually good tippers.

But Wilbur Chesser (Yellow Cab, No. 781) discovered the other day that there are exceptions to the rule.

He picked up a fare at the Mayflower, bound for the House Office Building. Another fare asked to be taken to 12th and the Avenue, so Wilbur took him along.

When the first man got out, he gave the driver 30 cents. But when the cab arrived at the House Office Building the second passenger handed Wilbur a dime.

His contention was that the total fare should have been 40 cents (group riding) and that since 30 cents had already been paid, only 10 cents was still due.

After a good deal of discussion, the passenger forked over the other dime—but he went away convinced he'd been rooked (which he wasn't, of course).

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Ralph Y. DeWolfe of 216 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park, Md., writes:

"I usually go home via New Hampshire ave. and turn left at Ethan Allen ave. At the intersection of these two streets is a sign which points west and says: 'Silver Spring —1 mile.'

"However, if you travel west for about seven tenths of a mile you'll find another sign at the corner of Carroll and Denwood aves. It says: 'Silver Spring—1½ miles.' Am I confused, or is it the highway officials?"

8-BALL IN THE SIDE "POCKET"

Police Superintendent Barrett reveals that a desk at the Detective Bureau was jimmied some time ago, and secret records stolen from it.

Gosh! Have you reported the theft to the cops yet, Major?

Grin and Bear It

"So what?—owning a new car doesn't mean they got so much money—it only proves they had it!"

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

You are declarer of today's three no-trump contract and West opens the deuce of diamonds, you play the four from the board and East puts on the three. Study only the North-South cards, then plan your play for game.

South wins his game by taking the opening lead with an unnecessarily high card to assure an entry to dummy. He can count nine sure tricks; three diamonds, four clubs, a heart and a spade but he needs an entry to dummy to cash the king, queen of clubs. Since West's opening lead places him with four to the queen originally, declarer sees it is dangerous to win the first trick with either the diamond five or eight. If he does so, then cashes the ace, jack of clubs and leads his remaining low diamond toward North's jack West may hop up with the queen and now declarer is locked out of the board.

Declarer therefore wins the first trick with the diamond king. He then cashes the ace, jack of clubs and leads a low diamond toward dummy. Whether West ducks or plays the queen at once, declarer is sure of entering North with the jack and making three no trump.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

YOU DARE TO QUESTION MY WISDOM, SWINE? DO YOU FORGET THAT I AM THEODORE BOR, WHOSE ANCESTOR LED YOUR PEOPLE TO RICH PLUNDER IN BYGONE DAYS?
OH NO, MOST EXALTED ONE! IT IS ONLY THAT WE FIND NOTHING OF VALUE TO US IN THIS FOREST OF MACHINES.
ENOUGH, YOU GREEDY FOOLS! WITHOUT MY LEADERSHIP YOU'D EKE OUT YOUR MISERABLE LIVES IN YOUR BARREN HILLS WITH NEVER EVEN THE HOPE OF PLUNDER— AND YET YOU DISTRUST ME. GET OUT!... AND THINK UPON YOUR INGRATITUDE.
THE MASTER IS RIGHT. WE ARE UNGRATEFUL DOGS, UNWORTHY OF HIS PRESENCE AMONG US.
IT IS SO. THIS OLD GOAT LED US INTO FALSE SUSPICIONS.
BAH! ARE YOU CHILDREN TO BE CHARMED BY WORDS? AS FOR ME, I'LL SEE THE COLOR OF GOLD BEFORE I CHANGE MY MIND.

WAHOO AND STEVE ROPER

STEVE ROPER! WHY DID YOU TAKE MY SONNY'S PLACE IN THE RING? WHERE IS HE?
SHH! TUNE IT DOWN, CUPCAKE! THIS LITTLE HALLOWE'EN CAPER HAS EARNED THE 25 G's THAT WILL PUT YOU BACK ON YOUR FEET!
PULL THE MASK DOWN AGAIN! LUCKILY, NO ONE ELSE SAW THE RUINS OF THE ROPER PROFILE---!
No HUMAN eye saw Steve's secret exposed--- but a tireless robot watched--- and recorded the sight ON FILM! Remember the AUTOMATIC CAMERA?
SPOTSHOT MAGAZ

DIXIE DUGAN

WITH BARBARA KEMPER OUT OF THE WAY, KEN BRADFORD IS ALL YOURS AGAIN!
MAZIE, IF SOMEBODY HEARD YOU WHO DIDN'T KNOW YOU THEY'D THINK YOU MEANT IT
I DO! REMEMBER THAT CORNY OLD SAYING "ALL'S FAIR IN LOVE AND WAR"?— WELL—IN YOUR CASE, IT'S BOTH!
I GUESS WOMEN CAN BE RUTHLESS AT TIMES— EVEN MRS. HACKETT TOLD ME TO FIGHT FOR HIM IF I LOVED HIM
IT'S GOT TO BE SUBTLE WARFARE, USING YOUR GREATEST WEAPON — YOUR FEMININE CHARM
THEN YOU SHOULD SEE THAT KEMPER GIRL'S (WHISTLE) — IS SHE WELL FORTIFIED FOR BATTLE!
WELL, IF SHE'S THAT GOOD I'VE GOT AN EVEN BETTER IDEA — WE'LL USE HERS!

DONALD DUCK

RADIO
BUS STOP
GOSH, DO YOU HAVE ANY CHANGE FOR BUS FARE?..I'VE ONLY A $50 BILL!
OH, DEAR, I HAVEN'T A CENT!
IT'S OKAY... I'LL JUST STEP IN HERE AND GET CHANGE!
WELL, WHAT YOU WANT, SHORTY?
WELL, I GOT IT!

MYRTLE

HIYA, SAMPSON! COME ON OVER AND PLAY!
HOLD THE LINE A MINUTE! I CAN'T HEAR YOU!
NOW WHAT DID YOU THAY?
I SAID COME OVER HERE AND PLAY!
I THOUGHT THAT WATH WHAT MYRTLE THAID, BUT I WATHN'T THURE!
I CAN'T! I HAVE TO THTAY IN THE HOUTHE!

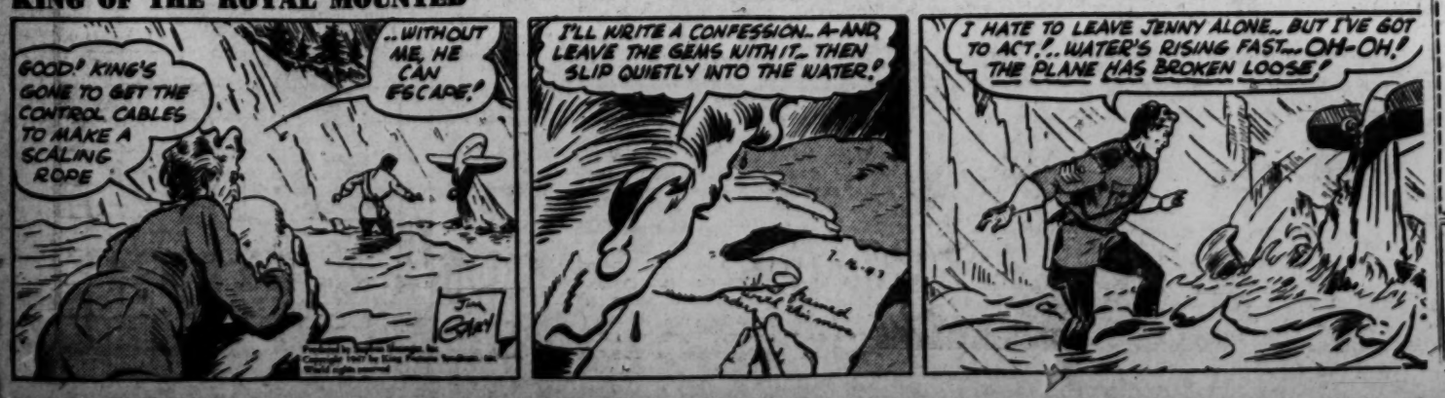
OZARK IKE

(SOB) US BUGS HAD TH' GAME WON UNTIL THEM SOX SCORED FO' RUNS OFF UF SPIKE KLEATS!
I SHOULD-A STOOD IN TH' DANDELION LEAGUE.
AW, FERGIT IT SPIKE...WE'LL GIT THEM RUNS BACK!
AS THE BUGS COME TO BAT IN THE LAST OF THE NINTH, TRAILING 25-22.....
SEE WHUT AH MEAN?... WE DONE STARTED A RALLY!

MARK TRAIL

TRAIL FINISHED THE TRAP TODAY, WE'D BETTER MOVE IN...
I DON'T WANT ANY TROUBLE... SO I FIGURE IF ONE OF US WENT OVER AND SORT OF BORROWED THEIR HORSES...
I GET IT, DART, WITHOUT THEIR PONIES, THEY'LL BE PLUMB HELPLESS!
WHILE TRAIL AND HIS FRIENDS GET MUCH NEEDED SLEEP...
GOTTA BE QUIET... OR I'LL WAKE THAT CUSSED DOG...

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED



GOOD! KING'S GONE TO GET THE CONTROL CABLES TO MAKE A SCALING ROPE
..WITHOUT ME, HE CAN ESCAPE!
I'LL WRITE A CONFESSION.. A-AND LEAVE THE GEMS WITH IT.. THEN SLIP QUIETLY INTO THE WATER!
I HATE TO LEAVE JENNY ALONE.. BUT I'VE GOT TO ACT!.. WATER'S RISING FAST... OH-OH! THE PLANE HAS BROKEN LOOSE!

Ambitious Donnie

Our Donnie is ambitious for . . . A little boy of 10 . . . Who knows just what he wants to do . . . Exactly how and when . . . Each new idea that comes to him . . . Enthralls him more and more . . . And all his thoughts are on the thing . . . That he is striving for . . . It may be selling magazines . . . Or trying for a prize . . . Or doing some good Cub Scout deed . . . According to his size . . . But once he gets the notion, he . . . Unites his heart and soul . . . To conquer every obstacle . . . And reach his special goal . . . He knows exactly what he wants . . . And when and where and how . . . And every time he makes it plain . . . He has to do it NOW!
